Who will help this time?

Dear Doris: I have been experiencing fight - headedness and dizzy spells for about a year. Doctors say it is nervous tension and anxiety. The only anxiety I have is my condition.

It started with something getting caught in my throat and me not being able to catch my breath, causing terrible light - headedness. I still am experiencing dizzy spells and light - headedness a dozen times a day.

Doctors referred me to a psychiatrist, and he only seemed to help briefly. After $250.00 worth of chiropractic treatments I gave that up too. — Cannot Go On.

Dear Cannot: I know. It can be frightening to suddenly feel dizzy; and it seems there are a number of causes.

But this is a medical problem — and even if I were a doctor I couldn't diagnose it at this distance. Better return to your own doctor. It certainly could happen that your anxiety would create tension and thus precipitate a dizzy spell. Quite a vicious circle.

Stay with the doctor you trust, relax as much as you can, get plenty of rest. An improvement in general health habits might well work the miracle you need.

Dear Doris: Please help me to word a nice, simple invitation to a wedding reception. Our son is getting married this summer in the bride's home city and since we haven't any girls, but a lot of relatives and friends who will not be able to go there, we would like to have a reception here, two weeks later, at Home.

Dear At Home: How about:

"Nicky and his new bride are/to have two weeks after the wedding. We'd like you to be with us for an informal reception here at home on Saturday, July 25th at 2:30 p.m. — John and Linda."

You write this kind of note by hand. Often, the bride wears her wedding gown on such an occasion so the guests can see how lovely she looks/ on her wedding day. She leaves off the veil; does not carry a bouquet.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Strawberry Jam with Pineapple

By MARY MOORE

As you know I have to wait until the strawberry season arrives before I can test the jams! I want to pass on to you, However because all of the berry seasons are comparatively short, by the time I have the product made and approved and typed and mimeographed and mailed to the newspaper the season is nearly over. So that explains why this strawberry and pineapple jam recipe was tested on June 24, 1969 and is now being printed in mid-June 1970.

STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE JAM (about eight 8-oz. jars)

1 med. lemon (grated rind and juice)

1 pt. ripe strawberries

One 10-oz. can crushed or tidbit pineapple

6½ cups granulated sugar

Wash and dry the oranges and lemon. Grate rind from them and squeeze out juice. I had 1 1-3 cups combined orange and lemon juice and grated rinds. (Note: This is the most time-consuming step.)

Wash strawberries in colander or sieve and remove hulls. In flat-bottomed pan mash with potato masher. I had 1 1-3 cups.

Now drain syrup from canned pineapple. Tip pineapple into measuring cup and add juice to it to measure ¾ cup less 1 tbsp. Thus you have exactly 3½ cups prepared fruits in all.

Combine prepared fruits in very large kettle and add the sugar. Bring to boil, stirring, and boil hard 1 full min., stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once add ½ bottle liquid pectin. (The bottle has a half-way mark on it.) Now stir for 5 min. to discourage floating fruit. Have ready eight 8-oz. jam jars or glasses and fill to within ½" of tops. Cover with ¼" layer melted paraffin, adding second coating as soon as first is set, tipping jars a little to make wax flow up sides. Put on covers, wash jars and when cold label and date.

A beautiful row of rosy jam jars stood on my bread window sill for me to gloat over for 24 hours.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Becky: "My father is richer than your father. We paid $35,000 for our house and he earns $20,000 a year."

Sue: "My father is always mad at my mother because she runs up so many bills."

Children manage to learn about family finances and family problems by the time they're 7 or 8 years of age, and it's probably unwise to try to conceal the facts from them. However, they also are old enough to learn discretion.

"Here's my idea... I sit here still, gals winds come up, then hold up the beater, and the rug will flap itself clean."

Munro Probes Leak of LeDain Report on Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro began an inquiry Tuesday into the alleged leak to Time magazine of the secret LeDain report on drug abuse.

Meanwhile, the Commons opposition demanded that the government make the report public and launch a broader inquiry into the leak.

However, Prime Minister Trudeau appeared to be trying to define the issue. He said the Time story is full of "falsehoods", and it didn't appear the report itself was given to the magazine.

"There is no certain indication that the report itself has leaked," he said, adding that a judicial inquiry doesn't appear necessary so far.

Mr. Trudeau said that to Mr. Munro's knowledge "the document itself did not leak but perhaps someone who knew of its existence and some of its contents did."

In Mr. Munro's office, an aide said that "we are reasonably sure" the leak didn't come from the health department.

There are some very accurate sections and some inaccuracies," the aide said of the Time story.

Mr. Trudeau said Mr. Munro would "be asking for the assistance of other ministers," principally Solicitor-General George McIlraith, whose jurisdiction includes the RCMP.

Mr. Munro's office said late Tuesday the RCMP "haven't been contacted yet."

Richard Duncan, Time bureau chief in Ottawa, said that to his knowledge, no one on the magazine had been asked about the story by any government official.

In the Commons, Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the cabinet knew the Time article was going to be published. After Privy Council President Donald Macdonald "denied this," Mr. Howard aimed his fire directly at the absent Mr. Munro, saying that an "excerpt or resume" from the minister's office formed the basis of the report.

The House gave unanimous consent to a motion by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) to refer to the Commons procedure and organization committee "the lack of redress on the part of the House of Commons when a confidential document is made public without authorization."

The government refused a motion by Ed Broadbent (NDP —Oshawa-Whitby) calling for an immediate investigation into the leak.

Mr. Trudeau said he would "gladly entertain the suggestion of a full-scale investigation by the RCMP into this very regrettable leak."

"I just hope the House will remember this the next time we order such an investigation on the grounds of maintaining cabinet secrecy."

Mr. Trudeau was criticized last year for having the RCMP investigate the leak of a report by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Petition Opposes Legal Marijuana

TORONTO (CP) — A petition signed by 23,000 Toronto persons urging the federal government not to legalize marijuana has been sent to Health Minister John Munro.

The petition says:

"We feel that if marijuana is legalized, many individuals, especially our young people, will accept this action as sanction of the drug on the part of the government and of society.

"We feel that many who would not otherwise have tried it, would now indulge in its use."

'I'm Flagged'

Peter Blacklock and Peter Cox, members of the North American Albacore Racing Championship committee, check some of the signal flags which will be used in this weekend's competition. The sailing races will commence at 10 a.m. Friday with the finals at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

North American Championships

Albacore Running In Bay of Quinte

Sailors from all over Canada and the United States will be "playing the angles" on a triangular course set out on the Bay of Quinte, this weekend, for the North American Albacore Championships.

The small, two or three-man sailing vessels will race around an equilateral triangle of about three miles, with the location being determined just before the race commences. The likely starting point will be just out from the Union Carbide plant.

The boats will sail twice around the course and one further leg into the wind for a distance of about four miles, unless lack of favorable breezes forces officials to shorten the distance.

Corners of the course will be marked and attended by three "mark boats" whose job will be to see that the buoys stay in place and to assist boaters in trouble in case of a pile up.

A "lead boat" is also provided to guide the racing competitors over the correct route. Action for the race will be co-ordinated from a committee boat, which will carry the racing officials.

Already several members of the yacht club and power squadron have volunteered to help in these capacities, and ramps have been constructed to allow the racers to launch their craft easily.

Competitors are drawn by invitation only from the various albacore groups throughout North America to insure high quality racing and according to committee member Richard Bird, "there'll be some real hotshots here."

At the present time it appears that there will be about 50 boats in the competition, which will begin Friday and end Sunday. One-third of the fleetlis will be American boats, with some hailing from as far away as Washington, D.C.

There will be three races Friday and Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. with the third race beginning immediately after completion of the two o'clock heat.

The final race will be held Sunday morning at 10 a.m.

Feeney Has No-Hitter 'Broken'

A broken-bat single in the sixth inning broke up a no-hitter for Intelligencer pitcher Dave Feeney as the Printers moved into first place in the Industrial Softball League standings with a 12-2 win over Delora Distillts. Meanwhile, the CN Turbos came up with four runs in the final inning to defeat AOCO 4-3 and remain two points back of the league leaders.

A broken-bat single by Dennis Lane and a scratch infield hit by D. Skelly were the only safeties against Feeney as he pitched his fifth win against no losses for the Printers, issuing six walks and striking out one batter.

Rick Halsey and Paul Trumpour were on the mound for the losers, allowing 11 hits, walking nine and failing to strike out a batter.

Bob Brooks had a three-run homer for the Intell, with Harold Redquest banging three singles and Merv Thompson and Ralph Harris collecting doubles.

Rod Bennett threw a three-hitter for the Turbos, but still needed his team's last-inning hitting heroics to overcome a 2-0 AOCO lead.

Bennett walked two men and set down eight on strikes. McCoy took the loss, giving up nine hits and one base on balls. He fanned three batters.

Kinsmen Have Motor Trouble

Twenty minutes made the difference between a 9-2 win and a 9-8 South Hastings loss for the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors last night.

Transportation difficulties forced the Juniors to show up 20 minutes late for their game with the Reserve and forcing the Belleville team to forfeit the contest. Teams are allowed to exceed the 6:45 starting time by 15 minutes.

The two teams played an exhibition contest with the Kinsmen winning a 9-2 decision, but it will go into the records as a 9-8 Reserve win.

Stan Brooks, Terry Meagher and Brian Cousins hurled for Belleville, giving up six hits, fanning seven and walking one hitter. Brunt took the loss as the Juniors collected seven hits and four walks. He struck out five batters.

Terry Meagher had a double and single for Belleville, while Kevin Allen added a pair of singles. Brunt, Hill, Richardson, O'Connor, Brant and Green hit safely for the Reserve.

In the only other game played, Read increased their league lead to four points as they bombed Shannonville 14-0. No report of the game was submitted to the Intelligencer.

Visiting Teams Running Minor Soccer Field

The visiting team had the run of the field last night in the Belleville Minor Soccer League as the Kinsmen Juniors edged their Oddfellows counterparts 2-1 and the Peewee Falcons blanked the Steelworkers 4-0.

Lacrosse Goal Lights Burning

The Belleville Minor Lacrosse League experienced goals aplenty last night as a total of 28 goals were scored in three games.

In novice action Golden Mile whitewashed Dairy Queen 7-0 while in bantam, Queens Motor Hotel edged Towers Food City 5-4 and Bud Gills Appliances walloped Simpson Sears 11-1.

In the novice game Laurie Wilson led Golden Mile with three goals followed by John Nicholson with two and singles for Robbie Gooding, Hugh Graham, and Russell Schmidt. Jeff Dobald earned the shutout.

Dairy Queen Team Gets Cosy Shakedown

In Ladies Softball League action last night Cosy Grill jumped off to an early lead and hung on to upset the Dairy Queen 8-7.

Sandra Claus went the distance for the Cosy giving up 16 hits and striking out 11 and issuing three free passes.

Barb Breadner relieved Barb McCracken in the second for the Dairy Queen as together allowed 22 hits while fanning seven and walking three.

Left fielder Roy White led New York Yankees close to first place and Willie Horton, Detroit Tigers' left fielder, used his bat to help gain a win for a Canadian pitcher Tuesday in American League action.

The Yankees bounced Chicago White Sox 6-2 as White produced four runs with a homer, a double and a single. White ran his hitting streak to 11 hits in his last 14 at bats as the Yankees won their sixth in a row to pull two games behind the East Division-leading Baltimore Orioles.

Horton led Detroit's 5-1 conquest of Oakland Athletics with two singles as Mike Kilkenny of Bradford, Ont., limited the Athletics to four hits and struck out 11. Horton leads the league in RBIs with 55 and has driven across 30 runs in his last 30 games.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday, Minnesota Twins whipped Washington Senators 7-3, Cleveland Indians trounced California Angels 9-2, Boston Red Sox downed Kansas City Royals 7-5 and Baltimore was rained out at home against Milwaukee Brewers.

It's No Popularity Contest

Billy Grabarkewitz and Dick Dietz aren't making much headway with National League all-star voters, but they've left a lasting impression on two more National League pitchers.

Grabarkewitz slammed a four-basing homer off Pittsburgh's Bob Veale to give Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 victory over the Pirates Tuesday night and Dietz' three-run blast off Chicago's Bill Hands carried San Francisco Giants past the Cubs 3-2.

The Dodgers' clutch-hitting third baseman and the Giants' slugging catcher are both among the league's Top Ten batters, but their names don't appear on the all-star ballots, which were made up before the start of the season and distributed recently to fans across the country.

And, while Atlanta's Rico Carty, another torrid hitter who was left off the ballot, has received enough write-in votes to place third in the early outfield balloting, neither Grabarkewitz nor Dietz was among the top six at his position when the first returns were made public Monday.

But the pitchers haven't been able to ignore Grabarkewitz, a .329 batter who has won four games with homers, and Dietz has left his mark on them, too, with a .326 average, 13 homers and 32 runs batted in.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York Mets toppled Cincinnati Reds 8-1; San Diego Padres blanked St. Louis Cardinals 4-0; Philadelphia Phillies nipped Houston Astros 2-1 in 13 innings and Atlanta Braves downed Montreal Expos 7-5.

Grabarkewitz' sixth homer of the year, a two-out shot in the fourth inning, decided a pitching duel between Vale and winner Don Sutton, who stopped the Pirates on four hits and struck out nine.

Orioles Reclaim Grabowsky

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's trading season closed at midnight Monday with a flurry of action involving established major league baseball players, and a shifting of talent to and from the minors or the disabled list.

Baltimore Orioles of the American League got infielder Bobby Floyd to Kansas City Royals of the AL in return for Moe Drabowsky, Don Shaw and left pitcher who was a hero in the Orioles' World Series sweep in 1966. Dave May, a reserve outfielder, was traded to Milwaukee Brewers of the AL for the contracts of two minor league pitchers—Buzz Stephen and Dick Baney, who moved from the Brewers' Portland, Ore. farm team of the Pacific Coast League to the Orioles' Rochester, N.Y., link in the International League.

In order to make room for May on the Milwaukee roster, outfielder Hank Allen, recently acquired from Washington Senators of the AL, was sent out to Rochester.

Cleveland Indians of the American League sent pitchers Barry Moore and Bob Miller to Chicago White Sox of the AL for outfielder Buddy Bradford and pitcher Tommy Sisk, who were to the Indians Wichita farm of the American Association.

Cincinnati Reds of the National League came up with Ty Cline, a 31-year-old left-handed hitting outfielder from Montreal Expos of the NL for Clete Mashore, a 25-year-old outfielder who had been on the Indianapolis farm of the American Association. Mashore goes to the Expos' new minor league team in Winnipeg of the International League. Cline's place at Montreal was taken by John O'Donoghue, a pitcher obtained from Milwaukee this past week-end. To make room for Cline, the Reds returned outfielder Jay Ward to Indianapolis.

Milwaukee not only picked up May from Baltimore but also acquired Bob Humphreys, a free agent who was cut by Washington. The Brewers who recently farmed first baseman-outfielder Bob Burda to Portland, brought him back to the major league roster. Milwaukee then sold relief pitcher Bob Locker to Oakland Athletics of the AL.

To make room for Rich Morales, an infielder coming off the disabled list, Chicago White Sox sent Jerry Arrigo, the veteran lefty pitcher, to the Toronto farm of the Pacific Coast League.

San Diego Padres of the NL got Ron Willis, former St. Louis Cardinals relief pitcher, and solid infielder Bobby Etheridge to the Cards' Tulsa farm. Etheridge had been at Salt Lake City, a San Diego affiliate which received third baseman Van Kelly on option from the parent club. San Diego recalled outfielder Larry Stahl from Salt Lake.

Stadium Sold Out For McLain

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Denny McLain gets nervous when he thinks of his July 1 return to baseball with Detroit Tigers.

"Tiger Stadium is sold out," he says, "and I hope most of them will be cheering instead of booing. I'll need 'em."

McLain is entering the final two weeks of his suspension for associating with unsavory characters. He's physically sound and claims to have learned a lesson.

"This case is closed as of July 1," said McLain at his Lakeland home. "You might say I'm being born again. I have profited much by this mistake.

McLain works out daily and pitches "like I was in a real game," every third or fourth afternoon.

Denny said the spring, right through May, seemed "like an eternity." But, "June has breezed by because I've been busy getting ready for the big July 1 start.

Rousseau Reporting

BROMONT, Que. (CP) — National Hockey League veteran Bobby Rousseau, traded last week to Minnesota North Stars by Montreal Canadiens, said Tuesday he will report to his new club. Rousseau, 29, was exchanged for another right winger, 29-year-old Claude Larose, in the deal with the North Stars — one of a series of transactions between the two clubs prior to and during the NHL annual meeting in Montreal, last season, his 10th with the Canadiens, Rousseau scored 24 goals and added 34 assists in 72 games. Larose had 24 goals and 23 assists in 73 games.

Hodge Signs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Goalie Charlie Hodge signed a one-year contract Tuesday with the National Hockey League Vancouver Canucks. Canucks general manager Bud Poile said Hodge, drafted from Oakland in the NHL expansion draft last week, is in excellent health. The 37-year-old Hodge played with Montreal Canadiens for several seasons and was drafted by Oakland in the original NHL expansion.

Finley Bid Second

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bid for Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League, $400,000 better than an offer by Charles Finley, owner of Oakland Athletics baseball team, was found "commercially reasonable" Tuesday by Judge Robert H. Schnacke of San Francisco Superior Court. The $4,550,000 offer by Roller Derby king Jerry Seltzer of Oakland and two unnamed partners was termed by the judge to be "on its face, substantially better than the Finley offer" of $4,150,000. But the judge also reiterated that Finley's bid was "commercially reasonable." The final decision is up to the NHL board of governors, which meets June 25-27 in Montreal.

Close to Ink

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Gene Ceppetelli was reported almost ready to sign a contract Tuesday with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference. Lawyers Dave Schatia and Larry Sazant accompanied Ceppetelli to the Als rookie camp and Schatia said that Red O'Quinn, general manager of the Als, "has assured us that San Francisco has given the Alouettes clearance to deal with Mr. Ceppetelli." Schatia said a few bonus clauses are all that stand in the way of the signing of a three-year pact between the former Hamilton Tiger-Cat star and the Als. Ceppetelli, a native of North Bay, left the Canadian Football League Ticats in 1968 to try his luck with Philadelphia Eagles and New York Giants of the National Football League. The Als acquired the CFL rights to Ceppetelli from the Ticats this year, and the Giants tried to waive the centre through the other 25 United States pro teams. However, the move failed and Ceppetelli was claimed by San Francisco 49ers.

Muddy Track Could Put Two Violins Off Key

TORONTO (CP) — "Three lengths—no less than two for sure," is the way Avelino Gomes describes the winning distance Two Violins still claim over the rest of the field in Saturday's 111th running of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine race-track.

Gomes is a reluctant spectator of this year's top event for Canadian-foaled three-year-old thoroughbreds, but having been aboard a record four Plate winners, the 42-year-old retired jockey speaks from experience.

"The only way anything is gonna come close to Two Violins is if the track is muddy," said Gomes. "Then it could be anybody's race."

Two Violins is the first horse going into the Plate with an undefeated record since Horometer, who won it in 1954.

The dark bay gelding, bred and owned by George Gardiner of Toronto, has five straight wins this year for trainer Lou Cavalaris. He didn't run as a two-year-old because of minor injuries, but now is favored to win the $86,000 race Saturday and bring Cavalaris and Gardiner their first Plate trophy.

Asked who he thought would set the pace over the 1¼-mile dirt course, Gomes suggested it may be Boss Wax, the sprinter owned by Jack Sanford of Toronto and trained by Gil Rowntree.

The trial victory has led Sanford and Rowntree to think their former sprinter has matured into a distance runner and even Gomes admits there is a possibility such a pace-setter could have a chance.

"Two Violins could get boxed in by the field and the other jockeys could get careless and concentrate only on the favorite, forgetting about the front-runner until too late.

Is boring in another horse legal, the veteran jockey was asked.

But Two Violins was boxed in during most of his last run in a 1 1-16-mile allowance race and jockey Dick Armstrong, leading Canadian rider this year, still managed to thread him through the field to gain a half-length win over Almoner.

Brazil-Uruguay Match Could Be Rowdy

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Much of the world and all of Brazil, West Germany, Uruguay and Italy will be looking toward Mexico today at the semi-finals of the World Cup soccer championships.

Brazil, favored to reach the final and win the Jules Rimet Trophy for the third time, clashes with Uruguay in an all-South American meeting at Guadalajara, while the two European teams square off at Mexico City's 112,000-seat Aztec Stadium, with the West Germans favored.

The final will be played Sunday in Mexico City.

Italy and Uruguay also have won the Jules Rimet Trophy twice, while West Germany won it once. The cup becomes the property of a country that wins it three times.

This has been one of the cleanest an least violent of World Cup tournaments thus far, although the Brazil-Uruguay match could change all that. With 28 of the 32 scheduled games completed, no player has been ejected.

The reason for the disciplined championship is put down to the stringent rules laid out by the International Football Federation—FIFA—at the outset.

They made it clear to referees, managers and players that none of the dirty play or fighting that has marred previous World Cups would be tolerated.

Team coaches in turn stressed to their players that if they were sent off they would be sent home.

Many matches have been billed as possible flare-ups—and the latest is the Brazil-Uruguay meeting which has a history of trouble.

The two last met in the World Cup final in Rio de Janeiro in 1950, when Uruguay shocked the fanatical home fans in the 200,000 capacity Maracana Stadium to win 2-1 with two second-half goals.

In 1929 the two countries met in one of the bloodiest brawls ever seen in South America. Several players, managers and fans were injured in the South American championship match played in Buenos Aires and won by Brazil 4-1.

The Uruguay players will no doubt be reminded of their quarter-final against West Germany in the 1966 World Cup when two players were sent off.

The Italy-West Germany clash is not expected to produce such fireworks, although with an appearance in World Cup final at stake anything can happen.

New Signs Will Warn Against Eating Fish

TORONTO (CP) — A new road sign soon to appear in some parts of Ontario carries a dual message to sports fishermen who may be tempted to taste the fruits of their catch.

The sign is a key part of the province's attempt to entice anglers to continue fishing in waters contaminated by mercury pollution—but not to eat their catches.

Standing 15 by 36 inches, the signs carry a large-size banner at the top stating Fish for Fun. Below is a frying pan containing three fish with a big red X scrawled across it. Underneath in bus letters is the message:

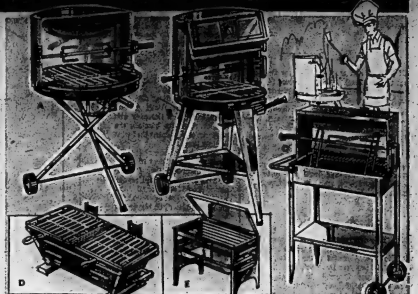
"Fishermen: Warning. For the protection of your health fish from these waters should not be eaten because of mercury contamination."

Lands and Forests Minister Dave Brunelle said Tuesday the signs will be posted on highways in areas where there are lakes or rivers that contain mercury levels in excess of the acceptable .5 parts per million.

Signs will also be posted in areas where there are boat rentals for groups that may be travelling to contaminated waters.

Most of the 1,400 signs being prepared will be posted in northwestern Ontario where the contamination is concentrated in a few bodies of water.

Only about 15 of Ontario's 250,000 lakes have been ouna among contaminated waters, all of them on such large river chains as the Winnipeg, English, Wabigoon, Ottawa and St. Clair.



In southern Ontario, the federal appeal will apply only to the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers and Lake St. Clair.

Commons Bill Raises Federal Minimum Wage to $1.65 an Hour

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons passed and sent to the Senate Tuesday a bill to raise the federal minimum wage to $1.65 an hour from $1.25 after defeating an NDP attempt to raise it to $2.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey repeated earlier statements that the measure is temporary, pending far-ranging changes in the Canada Labor Standards Code next fall.

He said the $1.65 figure was based on combined indexes of the cost-of-living and productivity trends.

A higher minimum might have force industries in depressed areas to automate prematurely and create greater unemployment, the minister said.

The federal minimum wage applies to businesses operating in more than one province.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North), supporting a $2 minimum, told Mr. Mackasey he should be ashamed of himself for proposing "this miserable increase."

Stanley Knowles, (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), sponsor of the amendment, said it is "downright immoral" for chartered banks whose profits run into millions of dollars to pay employees below the new minimum.

The NDP amendment was defeated 146 to 33. The bill passed on a voice vote.

The House then moved into committee of the whole to start clause-by-clause study of the 355-page government bill to make major changes in the Canada Elections Act.

In the debate on the minimum wage increase, Mr. Orlikow said he didn't believe Mr. Mackasey's statement that the $1.65 figure was based on a scientific calculation of cost of living and productivity.

He said it was merely the highest figure Mr. Mackasey could persuade the Treasury board president, C. M. Drury, and other ministers to accept.

Mr. Knowles, attacking the wage rates of banks, said labor department figures for June, 1969, showed that banks employed 8,000 of the 20,747 Canadians earning less than $1.65 an hour.

The new minimum wage applies to people over age 17. The rate for those under 17 remains at $1.

Brisk Winds Break Up Athabasca Oil Slick

FORT CHIPEWYAN, Alta. (CP) — Brisk winds Tuesday on Lake Athabasca broke up and dispersed an oil slick which covered an estimated 24 miles of lake surface last weekend.

Dr. W. J. Doug Stephen, federal officer supervising the cleanup, said winds with gusts to 40 miles an hour have added snagging up operations.

He estimated that up to 50,000 gallons of oil could have spewed into the Athabasca River following a break June 8 in a Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. pipeline carrying synthetic crude oil from Fort McMurray to Edmonton.

The oil was transported by the river to the lake, straddling the Alberta-Saskatchewan border, and had accumulated in large slicks.

A 900-foot boom was to be in place today near the outlet of Lake Athabasca to prevent oil from moving into the Slave River, and subsequently through Great Slave Lake into the Mackenzie River. The Mackenzie empties into arctic waters, 1,500 miles north of Edmonton.

Dr. Stephen said risk to the river systems now is believed minimal.

Two other booms—of straw, wire and plastic—were to be finished by noon. They will be swung across the river channel if needed.

In the river delta, where the Athabasca empties into the lake, a canvas conveyor, operating on a water combine principle, was to be operating today dragging oil in a channel.

In Edmonton Tuesday, Premier Harry Strom told a news conference the spill was not a result of negligence or failure to follow regulations.

The pipeline had been constructed to international standards, tested and had been licensed by the department of mines and minerals.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"He's in the middle of our monthly countdown to bankruptcy!"

Welfare Workers Are Called 'Pimps of Poor'

TORONTO (CP) — The poor turned on their guardians Tuesday, labelling social workers "pimps" and taking over a meeting room at the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare.

About 75 persons representing the poor occupied a discussion room at the Toronto hotel where the conference is being held and hung up a sign reading: "Counter-conference of the poor."

The action came shortly after several welfare recipients argued angrily with speakers about the actions of social workers.

One woman wept as she said: "You're killing us, remember you're doing it slowly or fast.

"You invited 75 of us to come here as delegates. Thanks an awful lot. But I'm still going to go home and be poor and my kids will be poor.

"You people live off us. If it wasn't for me you'd be out of a job."

Alex Burke, president of the Toronto Union of Prices Edward Island and a welfare father of five, called the social workers among the 1,300 delegates "pimps of the poor."

"This conference is a farce," he shouted.

Allen Payne, an Indian from the Calgary Welfare Rights Group, slammed her books and pencils to the floor, shouting:

"We're being taken over already by a bunch of churches and social workers."

At a luncheon meeting Alan Borovoy, counsel for the Toronto-based Canadian Civil Liberties Association, said welfare recipients in Toronto are treated worse than suspected criminals.

He said they have to sign a form, when receiving welfare, that gives investigators access to their homes. He suggested such investigators should be forced to get a search warrant.

In a letter to John Yaremko, Ontario's family and social services minister, Mr. Borovoy says:

"There is no valid reason why an innocent indigent on welfare should claim fewer legal protections than a suspected criminal at large."

New Pioneer Museum

This beautifully restored pioneer log cabin will be opened to the public on June 28. The cabin was moved to its present location, west of the Ameliasburg Township municipal buildings from the original location on the second concession road.

Restored Log House Will Open June 28

AMELIASBURG (Special)— There are signs the township's historical fortunes will keep on growing.

And the indication of the possibility is the subject of discussion where officials meet and residents gather to visit. The discussions speculate on the report that the eight acres of land purchased by the township west of the municipal building last year have been reserved for the development of attractions to complement the museum undertaking.

In the meantime, an important link between Ameliasburg's present and past has been restored and will be on exhibition on Sunday, June 28.

The early settlers log house from the second concession, now is in beautiful condition. Under continuous maintenance it is being opened to the public by the township's museum board. An invitation to join in the ceremony has been extended to many outside dignitaries. The event will be taking place outdoors on the museum grounds.

The hosts for the occasion are to be dressed in pioneer period costume.

The log house is the second project successfully completed by the museum board since it was established four years ago.

The first was the restoration and conversion of the century-old United Church in the centre of the village as a showplace for Ameliasburg historical treasures.

Historical information concerning the log house is available at the registry office for Prince Edward County at Picton provides researchers with the approximate date of the house's erection.

According to the records, the original location, lot 101 in the second concession of Ameliasburg was Crown land deeded to Capt. Richard Porter in 1797.

Then Henry Murney became the owner and passed it along to his son of the same name as a gift in 1828.

On March 14, 1856 on a bill of sale from Henry Murney and his wife, the land was registered to a William Corbman who married shortly afterwards. It appears that Corbman was the builder of the log house.

In later years Vince O'Hara became owner of the property with the pioneer styled dwelling on it. He donated the dwelling to the museum board.

In March, 1969 the log house was dismantled and moved to a site on the museum grounds where the repairs and reconstruction followed.

Educators' Seminar

All principals of Hastings county schools will spend the next three days at Lake Counterbishing, taking part in an intensive study of their roles in the changing educational scene.

The conference, organized by Hastings county administrators for its staff only, will be attended by senior administrators, assistant superintendents and the principals.

"We regard the principal as the key man in our system — the agent of change," said superintendent L. F. Reid, in announcing the conference.

The principals will take part in discussions and seminars on leadership, perception, communication and "where do we go from here?"

The sessions will end Saturday.

Pollution Program

Students of Sir Winston Churchill School will present a six-hour program Thursday night, June 18, dealing with all aspects of pollution in the Belleville area.

Displays will deal with surveys on industrial waste, sewage treatment, water purification, phosphates and sanitary land fill.

Bata Engineering Contract Signed

A contract agreement between Bata Engineering, division of Bata Industries Ltd., and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, local Trent Valley lodge 1789, was officially signed Monday.

Ratified last March, the contract remained unsigned due to the absence of various committee members.

Bata representatives on the negotiating committee were Frank Rabel, Jack Adams, Frank Horcica and Donald Rowlandson. Representatives for the union were Cal Freese, William Davis, Colin Williams, Ray Irwin, Selborne Sharp and Paul Tackaberry.

The two-year agreement, which assistant general manager Frank Rabel announced "was well received by the committee . . . everyone seemed to be happy about it," provides for improved hourly pay, increased holiday pay, improved medical insurance and other fringe benefits.

Police Recover Man's Body

Provincial police divers Tuesday recovered the body of Brian James Gilliland, 21, who drowned Sunday in a small lake 30 miles north of Bancroft.

Mr. Gilliland was out in a boat with two other young men when the craft overturned. Two of the occupants clung to the overturned craft, while Gilliland attempted to swim for help but failed to make shore.

Police recovered the body about 100 feet from shore in 25 feet of water.

Bigger and Better Exhibition Promised

Opened! — 1970 will be remembered as the year Quinte Exhibition reached one of the highest points in its role of producing more and better interest for the whole family.

Dates set for the five-day annual agricultural show this year are Tuesday, Aug. 18 through to Saturday, Aug. 22.

Specifically — the former Belleville Fair will score a real boost on the Ontario exhibition circuit with eight sophisticated Cooklin Shows midway rides in operation for the first time anywhere in the province.

Jimmy Conklin, son of the Shows' founder Paddy Conklin, has given his word the exciting rides being brought in from the United States will remain on location at the exhibition here until the end of the scheduled run.

The exhibition will extend the midway to be the longest in exhibition history.

The challenge for Quinte Ex management this year includes an innovation for exhibitions as the communications link between the producer and consumer, who outnumbers the former nine to one.

Management believes the stimulation generated in the process will account for the normal five per cent increase in gate admissions and probably result in an even greater trend total if the weatherman co-operates.

Total admissions to the exhibition in 1969 numbered 72,-186.

While the exhibition is still more than two months off, the committees have set most of their consultorate already, Ex manager E. C. Vowell reported to the June general meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society. Entered for showing, he noted, are 350 horses and nearly 400 cattle — well above the figure for the same period last year.

Save to be a feature of the beef cattle division this year will be the entry of an imported French breed named Charolais. The foreign animals, adaptable for cross-breeding, develop faster and produce a better quality meat than most domestic cattle. The Charolais entries will be shown and demonstrated in front of the grandstand by veterinarian Dr. Keith Harrison of Roslin.

The industrial and commercial fair growing within the Exhibition has generated widespread attention. One active participant is the Town of Trenton through the Chamber of Commerce in the town.

Trenton three years ago occupied three booths (30 feet of display frontage) in the curling rink building situated just west of the grandstand in exhibition park. The Trenton area was enlarged last year to cover the entire north side of the building.

And still expansion-minded, early this year the Trenton Chamber of Commerce negotiated for the entire space available in the curling rink. This amounts to 900 feet of display frontage and is marked off to accommodate 36 individual booths.

Former Trenton mayor James D. MacDonald negotiates between the Exhibition board of directors and the Town of Trenton by special appointment of town council.

The return of popularity for the fairest in the Quinte area becomes more noticeable with each new presentation of the big Class-A exhibition. On opening day for instance, close to 100 horses with their costumed riders take part in the colorful cross-city parade.

Consequently it is not surprising to find horses holding the attention of grandstand audiences throughout exhibition week. In Gymkhana western games and numerous other saddle and harness competitions, their demonstrations are superb. As a spectator sport, the horse drawing contests; for the heavies especially, continue to increase entertainment appeal. And the judges will watch with critical eye the horse jumping events being introduced in the show ring for the first time.

Always a favorite with the veteran harness are country music stars, the baby show, the women's building, car wrecking thrill shows, the poultry show and the many groups and individual performers too numerous to list. All have features to provide the curiosity of visitors.

However, the busiest exhibition department nowdays collects information for the promotion of the most diversified program yet attempted. The thousands of exhibits and adults expected to attend and be entertained can also look forward to sharing the extra hospitality provided by area businessmen and exhibition directors.

Entry forms good for lucky draws for free grandstand seats on the grandstand and scores of other prizes will be distributed with the 40,000 copies of the special Exhibition edition being published and circulated early in August.

And so the curtain is finally rung down on the big annual show in spectacular fashion as harness racing fans join the stands to watch the most exciting Saturday night card of the year.

The feature race, advertising a purse of $1,000 was operated until this year as the Black Diamond stake race. It is being run for the first time as the Belleville Memorial, co-sponsored by the Joss family and the Quinte Exhibition.

'Nonsuch' to Anchor in Picton Harbor

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — The Nonsuch, a replica of the Hudson's Bay Company's first ship, will anchor in Picton harbor next month during a summer tour of ports in Quebec and Ontario.

Built in Appledore, Devon, England in 1967 by Mr. Hill and sons, the 53-foot ketch was constructed primarily of solid English oak. Her keel and hull are of English oak and a small quantity of red and yellow pine was also used.

It was her namesake whose historic voyage in 1668 opened western Canada to commerce and led to the incorporation of the Hudson's Bay Company in 1670.

Commemorating the 300th anniversary of this trading company, the Nonsuch will visit 15 Ontario ports this summer following a four-week stay at Ile aux Coudres World in Montreal. Included among her ports of call are Cornwall, Upper Canada Village, Kingston, Picton, Belleville and Toronto where she will remain during the Canadian National Exhibition.

Captain of the Nonsuch, 41 - year - old Adrian Small, commands a crew of five seamen all with extensive sailing experience. Capt. Small "ran away to sea" as a boy of 17, serving as an apprentice aboard the Finnish barque Passat. He later sailed at second mate on the Pequod, a small full - rigged wooden ship. When the Mayflower crossed the Atlantic in 1957-8 he served as her second mate. For the following six years he was mate and master of two full - rigged replicas of 18th - century frigates hired by the movie industry.

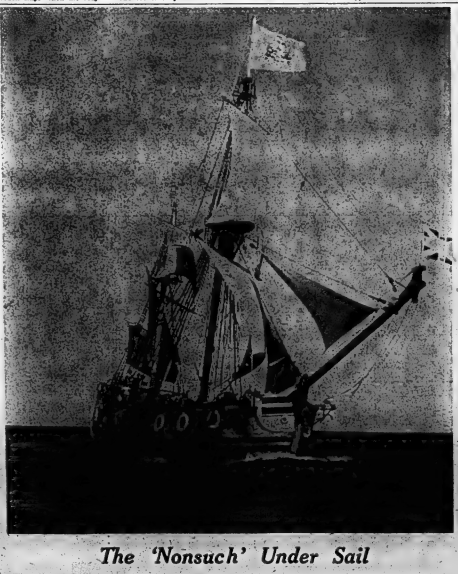
His career in pictures ended, Capt. Small sailed aboard the brigantine Grethe on passage from Denmark to Hawii. In Hawaii he became master of the Wandia, a whaling barque sailing in Hawaiian waters.

For a time Capt. Small also worked on the restoration of the rigging of HMS Victory.

Captain Small's crew aboard the Nonsuch includes Mark Myers, 24 - year - old native Californian who holds a degree in maritime history; Robert Pearce, 29, who apprenticed in boat building with J. Hinks and Son, Appledore, Devon; Phillip Rose-Taylor, 28, a sailor with three years experience in deep water fishing in the Arctic Ocean and Bereuts Sea; Hugh Small, 21, a third year student in environmental studies and Sam Richards, 29, a first year science student.

Swan and Richards, the first Canadians to sign aboard the Nonsuch, were chosen from 80 applicants seeking to represent Manitoba on this ship.

The original Nonsuch carried a very different crew into the new world in 1668. Leaving the Thames, the ketch was commanded by Zachariah Gillam and she was bearing a distinguished passenger, Medard Chouart, Sieur des Groseilliers. Sailing with the Nonsuch was the Eaglet captained by William Sannard and carrying Pierre Radisson.



Damaged in a storm at sea, the Eaglet was forced to sail back to England but the 43-ton ketch, Nonsuch, went on.

After many months at sea she reached a river emptying into James Bay. Gillam and his fellow sailors named it Rupert River. The men went ashore and erected a house of upright logs named Charles Fort.

Trading with the peaceful Crees of James Bay, the explorers spent the winter of 1668-9 at the fort named in honor of their king. When the winter finally gave way to spring, the crew of the Nonsuch had acquired a quantity of beaver pelts. Their successful voyage won them a charter from Charles II on May 2, 1670. It was granted to the Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson Bay.

The arrival of the second Nonsuch in Picton harbor this summer will mark part of a cross - Canada salute to the Hudson's Bay Company on its 300th anniversary.

Eventually the Nonsuch will be taken to Winnipeg where she will become the nucleus of a transportation section in the Manitoba Museum of Man and Nature. She will remain on permanent exhibition there, coming to rest after her summer voyage.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: What are the fees for an annual permit for our Ontario provincial parks, also the daily fee?

ANSWER: Annual vehicle entry permit — $10, allows the entry of the vehicle or boat for which it is issued into any provincial park or park operated by the St. Lawrence Parks Commission any number of times during that year.

Daily vehicle entry permit — $2, allows the entry of the vehicle or boat for which it is issued into any provincial park or park operated by the St. Lawrence Parks Commission any number of times during the day the permit is valid.

Daily vehicle and campsite permit — $2.50, allows the entry of the vehicle or boat for which it is issued into a specified provincial park and allows the permittee to occupy a campsite in that park for one night. An extra fee of 50 cents will be charged for those campsites where electrical power is available.

Overnight camping permit — $5 for a 2-week period or $1 per night allows the permittee and either occupants of his boat or canoe to use canoe routes and camp in unorganized campsites in the interior of provincial parks.

QUESTION: We are planning to Vancouver in July and would like the best route out and the outstanding attractions on the way, especially through the Rockies, and in and around Vancouver?

ANSWER: The Canadian Rockies are overpowered by sheer size. There are few more beautiful spots on earth than Lake Louise and the area around it. You'll find it difficult to leave Moraine Lake, spectacular Athabasca Falls, the Columbia Icefield highway, Bow River valley, and picturesque turquoise-blue Lake Louise.

If this is to be your first trip to Vancouver, be sure to take the gondola lift up Grouse Mountain. The city spreads below, with all its bays and inlets and mountain background. It is a five-minute ride in the glass-sided cable car to the 3,700 foot level. There is a restaurant at the top where you can dine in comfort.

Don't miss the Capilano Bridge, a wooden suspension affair across Capilano Canyon. The canyon is 210 feet below the bridge, which actually swings as you walk across it. It's an experience you won't want to miss.

Stanley Park is a vast garden where peacocks walk at large, and swans and ducks glide on numerous pools. There are totem poles, an aquarium, soaring red cedars and nature walks within a few blocks of downtown Vancouver.

[illegible] ferry boats to various points in Vancouver [illegible] meals are first class on the White ships and prices are reasonable. You can take your car aboard. There are daily bus tours throughout the region to Victoria, Seattle and other places of interest. The scenery is something different for Easterners, for you are hardly ever out of sight of mountains and salt water.

The new Simon Fraser University is 1,200 feet up on Brubsby Mountain, with a magnificent view of the surrounding area. Here are some really beautiful and unusual buildings in a wonderful setting.

The campus of the University of British Columbia not only has many modern buildings, but teems with totem poles. It is not far from downtown.

No trip to Vancouver is complete without a trip to Chinatown, the second largset on the continent. Here are shops for the purchase of Asian merchandise and jewelry, good restaurants and a mixed population.

The best route westward is by the Trans-Canada Highway. Take 401 to Whitby, numbers 13, 103 and 69 to Sudbury, number 17 to Kenora and the Trans-Canada to Vancouver, B.C. It is 3,975 miles from Belleville.

Senators Ask Aid of Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate poverty committee wants to develop a commitment by the public to tackle poverty, Senator Chesley Carter (L—Newfoundland) told the Provincial Council of Women of Ontario.

He suggested the organization — a federation of associations and local councils in 17 Ontario cities—might be able to help mobilize public opinion.

Senator Croll (L—Ontario), committee chairman, echoed this concern in advising the women that such organizations should reach out actively to isolate the poor,

Painting Missing

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — A valuable painting by French artist George Braque and owned by the Detroit Institute of Arts is missing, police reported Tuesday.

Officials said the 1926 painting is valued at $30,000 but insured for only $17,000.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Life Used to Be Balanced Between Country and City

By the time these lines appear in print, God willing, I shall be leaving for the country, to spend the summer shaking down the cherry trees, sweeping off the tennis court, and tossing rocks out of the lagoon in front of my house.

What we forget, in modern society, is that it has been less than a century since the majority of men were able to lead a life that was fairly balanced between urban and rustic settings. We are now condemned to a single setting — except for a few weeks vacation a year.

If you look at pictures of London or New York in the 1900s or 1800s, you can see that the city - dweller was just a few miles from the country. Even in my own boyhood, in Chicago, during the 1930s, you could venture out a dozen miles from the city and be in farmland.

As candidates for First-Class Scouts, we took our 14-mile hike from the inner city — and were camping overnight on the deserted shores of the Des Plaines river. That deserted shore is now one of the fastest-growing suburban areas in the nation.

The urban complex has mushroomed through the body of the U.S. with astounding and unprecedented speed, using the new highways, as blood vessels carrying this infection as wildly as cancer cells.

To find the kind of seclusion that was so closely available even a generation or two ago, we now must travel hundreds of miles, at considerable expense — and without any guarantee that the blight will not follow us, for the small town seems doomed as well. Inhabitants with the most vestigial memories of the old rural life are now fleeing from the cities, and the process is accelerating.

As a result, we have created a new kind of human being, who is neither urban nor rural, but a mixture of the worst of both worlds. He is a commuter, who lives in the country and works in the city, and who is thus deprived of the benefits of both.

He is cut off from the cultural and social life of the city, and he is cut off from the natural life of the country. He is a kind of displaced person, who has no roots anywhere.

Yet I am convinced that the human organism needs both the bracing environment of the city and the soothing atmosphere of the country. It maintains its optimum functioning, mentally, physically and morally. The country man is only part of a man; he misses much of what is important in his own time. The city man is only part of a man; he misses much of what is permanent and continuous in human experience.

If we had a genuine civilization, based on our deepest personal needs as a species, our society would not be schizophrenic in this way: there would be a delicate balance between the urban and the rustic, so that the hideous hybrid known as the suburb would not have grown around us. Its inhabitants with the most vestigial problems of both the city and the country.

Rustically, as a year-round way of life, makes people soggy; and urbanity makes them brittle. We need each as a counter-veiling force to the other; but our "progress" has merely polarized our life - styles and driven us further apart while it brings us closer together.

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — The Guyana government will seek 51 per cent control of key companies affecting the country's economic development, Prime Minister Forbes Burnham announced. He said industries involved include bauxite and sugar, Guyana's biggest foreign exchange earners, now largely owned by British and Canadian firms.

EMO Expenditures Called Ridiculous

TORONTO (CP) — The $300,000 Ontario contributes to the $1,230,000 annual cost of emergency measures "is nothing to save one single life," Hyman Soger (L—Downsview), told an Ontario legislature committee Tuesday.

The money spent on the Emergency Measures Organization is absolutely uncalled for and a ridiculous waste of the taxpayers' money," Mr. Soger told a committee discussing the spending estimates of the attorney-general's department.

He said emergency measures —a shared-cost program in which the federal government puts up 75 per cent of the funds —has resulted in "great waste over the years."

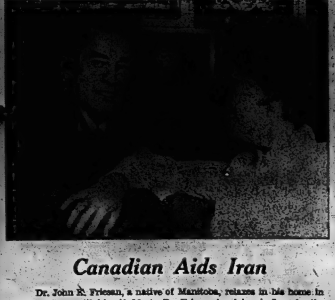
Mr. Soger said programs for air-raid shelters, directional signs and mass evacuation of Toronto's population to the Bruce Peninsula have ended in nothing but the squandering of public money.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart indicated Ontario has little reason to be in the program except that "it is federal and we try to co-operate."

But he warned that the value of emergency measures should be judged on what might occur in an emergency.

The committee approved the expenditure for 1970-71 although Mr. Soger suggested that "even if Ottawa is wrong we don't have to perpetuate the error."

In other business:



—The legislature gave first reading to a bill that provides for grants to those using pollution-abatement equipment. The grants will be equivalent to the retail sales tax paid on the equipment.

—Amendments in the Game and Fish Act were introduced in the legislature, which would make illegal to use a vehicle or vessel for chasing, worrying, injuring or killing any animal or bird. The amendments do not apply to a farmer defending his property.

—Revenue Minister John White said Ontario and Quebec officials have agreed to tighten co-ordinated controls on tax evasion and fraud involving diesel fuel taxes.

—Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said the federal and provincial governments have made no agreement on setting ceilings on expenditures for shared-cost programs such as health, education and welfare.

Cheating Tenants Living Rent-free

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Tuesday he will consider amendments to Ontario's new landlord-tenant legislation to give landlords a better break against tenants who have found a legal way to beat the system.

Liberal and New Democratic Party members of a legislative committee complained that some tenants have found they can use the law to get a year's free rent by being evicted from four apartments in 11 months.

Postmen Are Backed By CLC

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress made a formal offer of support Tuesday to postal workers in their fight for a "fair deal" with the federal government.

The CLC will ask its affiliates, representing 1,800,000 workers, to raise money for the postal workers, and at the same time provide technical staff and continuing consultation through a four-man subcommittee.

What it means, said William Houle, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, is that the rotating postal strike will continue indefinitely—or until the government is prepared to break with a policy limiting wage increases in the public service to six per cent.

CLC President Donald MacDonald announced the planned assistance at a news conference following an hour-long meeting with Mr. Houle and Roger Decarie, president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada.

"The postal workers did not ask to be put in the front line of a dispute concerning guidelines," Mr. MacDonald said. "They have been negotiating for nine months and yet there is now an effort to saddle them with the government's six-per-cent ceiling. This is highly unfair."

The CLC president was careful, however, not to force the postal unions any further than they already are in the role of guideline-killers. "They are not engaged primarily in an attack on the guidelines," he said.

"They are struggling for a fair deal and they would have our support regardless of any guidelines."

While Mr. MacDonald claimed that the government will be to blame for any additional postal strike, Mr. Houle made clear in an interview later that no such action is being planned. "The employer wants that too much," he said.

And so the rotating strike, with its relatively limited costs, is to go on. As negotiating teams met once again and achieved "nothing worth mentioning," the strike moved to communities in northwestern Ontario and Manitoba. Post office officials estimated 170 men took part in the 24-hour walkout.

Another 350 workers were off the job in Windsor, Ont., but it was apparently the last of their 22-day walkout. Submitting to advice from the Council of Postal Unions, the local voted to return to work and await further orders from Ottawa.

Airline Sabotage Studied

MONTREAL (CP)—General agreement that airline sabotage should be prosecuted, but differences of opinion on how to do it, marked the opening day of the special assembly of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

The Canadian delegation said it prefers stiff sanctions against countries that fail to prosecute aircraft hijackers and saboteurs.

A working paper on the proposal, released Tuesday, favored putting bilateral air agreements between countries under the jurisdiction of ICAO, an agency of the United Nations.

Code of Ethics Rewritten

Medical Association Revises Hippocrates

WINNIPEG (CP) — Organized medicine in Canada gave Hippocrates his first full rewrite job in about 2,500 years Wednesday, adopting an entirely new code of ethics.

The ancient Greek whose Hippocratic oath bound doctors for centuries would never recognize some of his ethical principles in the Canadian Medical Association's new code.

For example, the guiding principles for the first time make no mention of abortion, frowned on in varying degrees in all medical codes of ethics since Hippocrates himself warned doctors against the practice.

"Now it is recognized as the treatment of choice," said Dr. Robert J. M. Galloway, the Toronto surgeon who bossed the three-year rewrite which his colleagues endorsed in as many hours.

The aim, he told a news conference, was to make ethics relevant to medicine today.

In effect, dropping mention of abortion gives doctors an ethical guide that conforms to the law.

Since last year, the Criminal Code has allowed therapeutic abortion when life or health of the women was in danger. The old ethical code sanctioned it only where her life was in danger.

Also out of the new ethical code was any reference to sterilization, which since an amendment in 1963 was limited to medical reasons. The association endorsed sterilization Monday for men or women virtually on demand.

It sanctions action by doctors to sustain bodily life after brain death has occurred if parts of the body might be used to prolong or improve the health of another person.

At the same time, the new code's section on responsibilities to patients says the ethical doctor will "allow" death to occur with dignity and comfort when death of the body appears inevitable.

Belleville Group in Opposition

Bushnell Bid Outlined to Radio-TV Body

OTTAWA (CP) — Stuart Griffiths, president of Bushnell Communications Ltd. of Ottawa, said Tuesday his firm's proposed multi-million-dollar expansion would look in retrospect "like a marvellous bargain."

Mr. Griffiths made the comment after a full day spent unravelling the Bushnell plan at the opening of a public hearing of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

He told the CRTC—federal regulatory agency—that the firm has completed purchase agreements for TV and radio stations as well as cable TV systems in many parts of Canada with a total purchase price between $80,000,000 and $85,000,000.

Some of the most detailed opposition to the Bushnell plan came from a citizens' committee called the "Belleville Group."

The group opposed Bushnell's application to buy CKWS AM and FM radio and TV in Kingston; CHEX AM and FM radio and TV in Peterborough and Cobalt; CJOH TV in Ottawa and CJSS in Cornwall—are now and will continue to be a member of the CTV network."

Broadcasters still had a distinct responsibility to produce local programming but cable operators could complement this role in a number of ways.

If the Bushnell application is approved it would make the company the largest private broadcasting firm in the country.

Mr. O'Connor said part of the funds which Bushnell hopes to raise through the share issue and loans would be used to complete a future purchase of National Cablevision Ltd. in Montreal in partnership with the Toronto Star and a Montreal broadcasting firm, Civitas. Under this proposed arrangement, to come before the CRTC later, The Star, Bushnell and Civitas would buy all the assets of National, now owned by the Columbia Broadcasting System, a U.S. firm, under government orders to sell all but 26 per cent of its Canadian holdings.

If the proposal was not approved, Mr. Hylton said, Bushnell would have about $13,000,000 surplus in its needed funds for the present application.

Mr. Griffiths repeated a number of times that he had no intention of setting up a third network in addition to the publicly-owned CBC and the private CTV network.

He said the Bushnell stations

Mr. Hylton said the "goodwill" sum in the proposed transaction is about $50,000,000. Mr. Williams said this was so. But Bushnell had forged the best deals it could get against stiff competition in some cases.

Goodwill, in an accounting sense, is defined in a variety of ways by economists. Generally, it is the amount above book value that a buyer has to pay for an acquisition.

David Bullock, a director of A. E. Ames and Co. Ltd., told the commission his firm has given Bushnell a "fairly firm letter of intent" indicating its willingness to underwrite a $50,000,000 public share offering.

Only a market disaster in the fall would force Ames to back away from this offer if Bushnell's proposal is approved, Mr. Bullock said.

Tom Williams, Bushnell treasurer, said projected cash flows give the company confidence there will be enough revenue generated to meet debt charges, provide a dividend on stocks and cover capital expenditures.

The Bushnell board of directors holds about 19 per cent of the shares, and the remainder are held by 458 Canadians.

Mr. Cruickshank, former assistant to Justice Minister John Turner, said the Bushnell presentation seemed to indicate that cable operators should take over responsibility for local programming from conventional broadcasters.

Mr. Griffiths repeated a number of times that he had no intention of setting up a third network in addition to the publicly-owned CBC and the private CTV network.

Youth Theatre Moves to Orono

The Repertory Youth Theatre Company has moved from Newcastle to Orono, it was announced this morning.

The company, now moving into its third season, has been held the last two years in Newcastle under the auspices of the Great Pine Ridge Festival of the Arts.

This year, however, the company has moved to "Orono" 50 miles east of Toronto at the junction of highways 401 and 115.

A new stage will soon be under construction with seating arranged to accommodate audiences of 400 or more.

Roy Higgins, former resident artistic director with the Belleville Theatre Guild and now artistic director for the summer company, has announced the plays to be performed by the 100 young people involved.

The company will perform Dark of the Moon, Antigone and will introduce Canada Indians.

The company is made up of 100 secondary and university students ranging in age from 16 to 25, all from this part of Ontario and with theatrical experience.

The young people will be coached, taught and rehearsed by a staff of professionals.

Tweed

TWEED—John Inwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Inwood of Denbigh, Ontario, was one of the students who received the degree of Bachelor of Science with honors at the ceremony held recently at Queen's University, Kingston. John was educated at Denbigh Public School and Continuation School, and the North Addington High School, at Cloyne.

Included in the displays will be daily fashion shows and free rides on All-Terrain Vehicles.

The show also offers picnic areas, children's rides and food and refreshments.

Show hours are noon until dark this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Some Terms Used In Heart Attacks

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm confused about the meaning of "heart attack." My husband is in bed without a real label. We've had three doctors attending him: our family doctor, a heart specialist and an internist, visiting from out of town.

One says he has had a coronary occlusion. Another calls it coronary thrombosis. And the third says, "He has had an infarction." Are the doctors disagreeing or just saying it in different ways? — Mrs. D.

• • •

Comment: The descriptive term "heart attack" is sufficient unto itself. However, as long as scientific tags have been attached to your husband's illness, I believe that a little explaining is in order. It's bad enough to suffer from a heart attack without the additional frustration of not knowing what it is all about.

As it happens, you have answered your own question by suggesting that perhaps the three doctors are saying the same thing in different ways.

Coronary occlusion simply means that a coronary artery, or one of its large branches has been shut off (occluded). Coronary thrombosis means that a large thrombus (or clot) has formed inside a coronary artery, shutting off the circulation.

Cardiac infarction is also correct in that it results from the loss of circulation due to occlusion or thrombosis in a coronary artery. A part of the heart muscle dies (becomes infarcted).

Naturally, the remainder of the heart muscle must carry the burden of pumping blood out into the arteries, and labors under this added strain producing such symptoms of a heart attack as chest pain, drop in blood pressure, irregular pulse, etc.

It's evident that the severity of a heart attack often depends upon how suddenly a coronary artery was blocked; on how large is the artery put out of commission; on how great the damage to the heart muscle caused by infarction.

I do not go along with the description: "He suffered a mild coronary attack." Apparently mild or severe, all such attacks should be respected. What we must guard against also, is the sudden appearance of serious heart irregularities such as ventricular fibrillation, which are a threat to the patient.

It is for these reasons that treatment in coronary care units is so important; and why convalescence must not be hurried.

Whatever the scientific name, we call a heart attack is not so important as the care we give the patient.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a licorice lover. I eat at least three to four packs of licorice a day. At least I did until I heard that eating so much of it may be bad. Is this true? — Mrs. Q.

Comment: There have been reports that some people get a raised blood pressure from eating licorice. Whether or not you fall into this category only your own doctor can tell you.

Meanwhile, I suggest that you cut down your intake to at least 25 per cent of your daily amount. Some can drink a dozen cups of coffee a day without apparent harm; others can't. So it is with licorice, or with anything else, for that matter.

• • •

For Mrs. A.: Have you told your dentist that you are with your new dentures? It's possible that they extend too far back; and that you have a pharynx (back of the throat) that "tickles easy." If so, a simple adjustment should take care of your problem.

Teacher Dies

Two Unconscious In Sailboat Cabin

SUDBURY (CP) — A Sudbury high school teacher found unconscious on a sailboat Monday died a short time later of asphyxiation, an autopsy revealed Tuesday.

Joyce Logan, 34, and Tom Sheppard, 45, principal of Sudbury's Carl Neabitt public school, were found unconscious in the small closed cabin of the sailboat.

Mr. Sheppard is reported in poor condition at Lisle Custeau Hospital.

Dr. Bernard Oliver, pathologist at Sudbury General Hospital, said both had been vomiting, possibly from food poisoning. He said Miss Logan might have died from choking or from lack of oxygen.

Provincial police who found the boat near Little Current, about 65 miles west of Sudbury, said a small cooking heater might have used up the oxygen in the cabin.

A search was started when the two did not report to work Monday morning. They left Sudbury Friday night.

Dr. Oliver said he will not complete his autopsy report until he gets the results of tests by the Ontario Forensic Sciences Laboratory in Toronto on food found on the boat and on body tissues.

A Little Current hospital spokesman said Mr. Sheppard's ailment had not been fully diagnosed.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 18

Your birthday today: The outlook for the coming year is for fairly steady work, but varying results; sometimes better than you deserve, sometimes less. Aside from this your career effort will produce interesting adventures, a great sense of achievement beyond the purely material. Today's natives are usually fond of traditions and its trappings, antiques and the like. Many are artists.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Do all you can to achieve personal security and profit as it helps others keep their balance. This will advance your own interests. Haste or force are definitely out.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Let others be impatient without wasting your own nervous energy. It is really a fairly easy day if you can deal with this one irritation.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Pick up the unfinished chores first. Your tact with mate and associates will be appreciated. Some...lively questioning...from you keeps everything moving.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): This is no time to squabble with associates over what to do and how to do it. Routine activity is strongly favored, although with some urgency.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Now you are restless, eager for excitement, and tempted to take chances. Your tensions provoke others into comment; avoid being aggressive. It will all work out later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your more detailed schedules now are upset. You can nonetheless salvage some of your plans. Mask your annoyance and go along with last minute changes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): For the moment you act without due thought. Daily routines will be changed or interrupted. But net results are actually better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): In the course of action has been well started, get on with finishing it. Otherwise, leave it for a later time. Money matters are subject to confusion, possible error.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Contradictory signals, pressures are the order of the day. Decide which way to turn, then really get busy and work rapidly. The evening is a time for pleasant recovery.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Take nobody into your confidence now. Obscure details will become visible to you, but not to others. Search for the truth of the story wisely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your theories may be right but your efforts run into resistance. Learn again the live-and-let-live approach. Do not invite others into your affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You can still complete your passing misunderstandings. Just refuse to be drawn into squabbles.

CN Line Patrolled After Signals Cut

System Blacked Out By 'Deliberate Acts'

By HARRY MULRALL
Staff Reporter

Security patrols were mounted on the Belleville link of Canadian National Railways' main line today after a tense night when vandalism blacked out the railroad's signal system, slowing traffic for hours.

No culprits have been named, but a CN official charges "deliberate acts" caused these incidents:

- A signal cable was selected and severed near the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road west of Belleville.
- At Shannonville, a cable box was broken open and its mechanism tampered with.
- Air was released from the braking system of two freights stalled in the Belleville yards by the blackout.

Today, guards were watching signal installations in the city area. CN police were patrolling the tracks, while provincial police also have been alerted.

The tampering occurred after midnight and caused a signal blackout lasting two to three hours, said George Van de Water, acting manager of CN's Rideau area.

Operations had to be switched to predetermined rules. Traffic had to move at restricted speeds and halt for instructions. This meant train movements were "considerably slowed," said the official.

In all about 10 trains were involved — including an ever-night Toronto - Montreal passenger train.

Mr. Van de Water said the cable cut at Wallbridge - Loyalist Road was part of the railroad's central traffic control system and had to be selected from a series of lines and cables.

The manager said while the identities of the culprits were unknown it "obviously was somebody who had to know something about signals."

Tampering with the Shannonville signal device also affected operation of a nearby level-crossing installation, he added.

Edward Brandon, a spokesman for the Belleville yardmen, this morning said the yardmen had nothing to do with the reported sabotage.

Yard Men Book Sick

"Legalize marijuana... hic! Are you... hic... kidding?"

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

An informal union dispute spearheaded by yardmen of local 403 of the United Transportation Union here over lost seniority has spread to at least six other centres and could possibly go across Canada, according to a spokesman for local yardmen.

None of the 54 Belleville yardmen are working today at Canadian National Railways' terminal here, following a walkout yesterday at 4 p.m.

Yardmen at six other centres were reported this morning to have booked off sick, in the wake of the Belleville group's action. They reported off work at Brockville, Capreol, Hull, Ottawa, Sarnia and Fort Erie. Other centres where yardmen are expected to make a decision today on booking off are Montreal, Toronto, Richmond, Que.; Windsor, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Oshawa, London, Sudbury and Bowmanville.

Edward Brandon, chairman of local 402, said the yardmen "will fight to the bitter end" to regain their lost seniority, even to the extent of halting most rail movements in Canada.

Big Turnout Seen As Britons Vote

LONDON (CP) — Britons, shrugging off a sluggish election fight, voted for a new government today in sunny weather that brought a large voter turnout.

A total of 30,000,000 persons out of an electorate of 39,300,000 are expected to vote today as Britons decide whether they will have another five years of Labor government or switch to the Conservatives. The signs point to Labor victory....

If the polls prove to be correct, Prime Minister Wilson, who rarely mentioned socialism in the three-week campaign, may chalk up a record by winning three consecutive elections. For Conservative Leader Edward Heath, a second defeat may put his political career in jeopardy.

The Angry Men

Angry over union-railroad contract they feel threatens their job seniority, Belleville CN yardmen last night booked off sick from work. But foreman Ernest Belanger (centre) said railroad officials refused to formally accept booking. Albert Lentini (right) chief spokesman for dissenting railroaders, believed Belleville action might initiate similar moves among 2,200 yardmen in Ontario and Quebec.

Unemployment Insurance

Payments and Coverage Increase Is Advocated

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey appears to have won a round from his more restraint-minded cabinet colleagues with the tabling in the Commons Wednesday of proposals for a sweeping reform of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

His white paper proposals would not only increase maximum benefits to $100 a week from $93, but also would mean the government liable for increased costs whenever the national, seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate goes above four per cent of the work force.

The rate was 3.9 per cent in April.

Mr. Mackasey has had few triumphs in recent months as government planners hesitated to make control of inflation their first priority despite resulting unemployment.

After tabling the white paper, he said in an interview that the proposed increased spending "at least will give them something to think about."

Mr. Mackasey also appeared ready for criticism from 1,150,000 perposed new contributors of unemployment insurance premiums.

"I haven't got much sympathy for anyone earning between $10,000 and $15,000 a year who objects to paying 80 cents a week to give protection to someone in a less secure position," he said.

For Other Stories On Unemployment Insurance Proposals See Page 20

Anyway, he added, the pace of technological change means that more and more people could suddenly find themselves out of a job and in temporary need of assistance.

The white paper proposes to extend coverage to all but self-employed members of the work force—a total of 8,500,000 contributors.

Included for the first time would be teachers, hospital workers, domestic servants and even 2,000 professional athletes.

Drawing from 96 per cent of the work force, the revised scheme would charge lower premiums to employees and the employer contributions to the record of layoffs in their operation—an incentive to "create more stable employment patterns."

The new plan is to be turned into legislation in the fall and will be phased into operation over a 6½-year period. The extended coverage and the increased benefits should come into effect July 1, 1971.

The white paper proposes to reduce welfare measures that have crept into the operation of the insurance scheme, enacted in 1940, and replace them with liberalized eligibility requirements.

Seasonal benefits are to be eliminated but the minimum work requirement for benefits has been reduced to eight em

General Approval Is Given Proposals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Federal government proposals for unemployment insurance changes have won early general approval, a survey by The Canadian Press indicates.

In British Columbia, B.C. Forest Products Ltd. issued a statement saying:

"We are concerned where the financing will come from to pay for the new coverage. . . . Of course in a time of increasing social benefits, no one can argue with the proposal to cover as many as possible."

Medical System Criticized

WINNIPEG (CP) — Greater participation by the consumer of health services in shaping the health care system will mark the next few years, Dr. Maurice LeClair said Wednesday.

In his first major address since becoming federal deputy health minister, Dr. LeClair told the Canadian Medical Association that the present "rather anarchic" system inherited from the past, is marked by poor accessibility, prohibitive costs and widespread dissatisfaction.

The criticism, he said, is not aimed at the deeds of doctors individually but at the inability of doctors as a group in the past to provide an integrated and efficient system.

Roy Jamba, president of the Alberta Federation of Labor, said in an interview he is "pleased that the federal government has ceded to some of labor's demands to cover more workers." However, he was disappointed that it would take until 1975 to implement the proposals fully.

Ivan Sinzebecker, president of the Alberta Teachers' Association, said his group is against including teachers in the scheme because they sign a yearly contract.

"We cannot see teachers having much need for unemployment insurance on that basis."

Manitoba Labor Minister A. R. Pauley said a proposal to extend benefits to ill workers is "a progressive step."

"This may well mean a lessening of the financial burden of social welfare," he said.

In Ontario, spokesmen for labor, welfare and business gen

Reaction Lukewarm To Nixon's Appeal

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's appeal Wednesday for restraint by business and labor to help keep down rising prices and wages in the overheated United States economy had a lukewarm initial reception.

In a 27-minute televised speech, the president called for a curb on wages and prices but rejected government controls, which he said would bring retarding, black domestic unrest and ruin to the economy.

Half U. S. Force Still Hunts Foe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Nixon has said "the great majority" of United States forces would be out of Cambodia by now, authoritative sources say half the American force sent into that country is still there.

The president also has promised to have all American troops out by June 30. He repeated the pledge Wednesday in his televised report to the U.S. on economic conditions.

As of Wednesday, sources said, about 15,000 American troops remain in Cambodia "still searching, still sweeping and still removing enemy supplies" from the jungle sanctuaries along the South Vietnamese border.

The defence department has said the U.S. troop level in Cambodia reached 30,000 men soon after the incursion started April 29.

The speech was made while Wall Street was still open but the stock market casually shrugged off new measures to cure the twin ills of inflation and recession with the Dow Jones industrial average gaining 3 points under profit-taking pressure.

The general consensus of political and financial opinion on Nixon's efforts to win more voluntary wage-price restraint was that they were bold, although they might ease anxieties of people who felt the administration was doing nothing to counter a dangerous economic drift.

But observers doubt the electorate will be distracted for long from the realization that money values in the U.S. are shrinking at an annual rate of seven per cent while five per cent of the labor force is out of work.

The president said "I will not take this nation down the road of wage and price controls," while at the same time he lectured business and labor on the need to refrain from excessive increases in prices and wages.

He announced three new policy moves:

—An inflation alert system under which his Council of Economic Advisers will periodically call public attention to those who raise prices or reach inflationary wage settlements.

—A regulation and purchasing review board, to review federal government purchasing procedures to ensure that they do not drive up costs and prices; and to see whether lower-cost imports can be increased without risking loss of U.S. jobs.

Garbage Collection Bill Upsets School Boards

They were presented with a bill for $2,780 for their improvements, which included garbage collection, when they had budgeted for a bill of $200.

"The tax is based on assessment of the school buildings," business manager Edgar Paquet told the board.

"In most places the garbage collection tax" is based on frontage."

"At this rate the schools are subsidizing garbage collection," commented trustee Robert Lacy. "And it's going to get worse, with the city planning to dump its garbage in Sidney in a month's time."

This morning, business administrator of the Hastings county board of education, Kenneth Wormald, said his board now is studying the garbage collection situation.

In addition to paying the local improvement tax for garbage collection, the public system disposes of some of its garbage itself.

"Regardless call for all garbage to be placed at the curb for collection, and that's not feasible in some cases," said Mr. Wormald. "We have to dispose of some of our garbage ourselves, and the whole matter is now the subject of a study for decision on the best way of handling the situation."

Mr. Wormald said he could not give figures at this time for the amount garbage collection in Belleville is costing the Hastings board.

Yesterday police were called to the warehouse to escort a truck, loaded by management personnel, across the picket line.

Picketers said they had met with management Sunday night and agreed to allow bananas through the lines.

The teamsters said they were concerned that the agreement on bananas was being extended by management to all commodities in the warehouse.

A company spokesman said the teamsters had agree to movement of all perishable goods.

Field Day Indoors

PICTON (Staff) — Students of Happy Hours School yesterday completed the humorous side of the phrase "keep your sunny side up" when a spring shower rained out their official field day.

This program of events had been organized to acquaint the public with the physical achievements the children had tarded can attain with training.

Determined to salvage the day, pupils, guided by principal Mrs. Clarence Gibson staged their field day in the school's playroom, taking part in running races, three-legged races, jumping competitions, sack races and a 11 tossing.

Twenty-one pupils of Happy Hours showed enthusiasm and capability in their athletic program. Many parents attended the athletic meet, cheering the youngsters on.

Physical education has formed part of the curriculum at Happy Hours School for the past three years. Following the program, refreshments were served. Special presentations were made to Mrs. Gibson and junior teacher, Mrs. Paul Durand, on whom are leaving Happy Hours at the close of this term.

Tweed School Situation 'Ridiculous': Trustee

The Tweed school situation has reached the ridiculous stage, a separate school trustee said last night, with no official approval yet for the proposed purchase of the high school.

Deadline for the sale of the school is June 30, when the separate school board must present a cheque for $235,500 to the Hastings county board for the school.

However, word is expected late today from Toronto on the situation.

Lack of official word on the sale has caused concern on the part of both boards.

"The department of education and the Ontario Municipal Board won't sign anything — we've been getting the run-around," commented James Lesage, Tweed trustee on the separate school board.

Both boards have confirmed on more than one occasion, their intention of going through with the agreement of sale, and the separate school board decided last night to pay the purchase price itself if provincial government grants were denied.

Steinberg's Plaza Tenant

The Steinberg food chain will be the second major tenant in the soon-to-be-built northend shopping plaza.

Steinberg's will operate a Miracle Mart supermarket in the new multi-million-dollar project near North Front Street, project developer Cam bridge Lossehoids announced today.

The other major retailer announced to date for the centre is Simpsons-Sears.

Both Steinbergs and Simpsons-Sears will be officially represented at a conference in Belleville next Tuesday when details of the plaza will be discussed.

Heads of 20 municipalities in the Quinte region have been invited to the session at which Cambridge says it intends to announce the name and general design features of the centre.

CN Yard Men Book Sick In Dispute Over Seniority

This morning Albert Lentini, secretary and spokesman for yardmen of local 403 said he was "very optimistic" about the results of the vote. 2,200 yardmen in the CN's Central Region and predicted that most yardmen will join the Belleville-led protest before the day is over.

Mr. Brandon said at 12.30, p.m. today that 50 yardmen have booked sick in Montreal and a group of Belleville yardmen have left for Montreal to meet with the Montreal group.

Trains are operating on time, CN officials say, with trainmen "responding well" to calls to take over the yardmen's jobs in the terminals.

"The trainmen are manning full shifts in the yards," said George Van de Water, acting general manager of the Rideau Region this morning.

"Some of the yardmen who wanted to continue to work received telephone calls — they were somewhat intimidated, and none is working today."

The yardmen's action in booking off came "after we had exhausted conventional means" to settle the internal union dispute in their favor, said Mr. Lentini.

Most of the yardmen have been refusing to pay dues in the close-shop union for the last three months.

CN management here stepped into the dispute last week, ordered payment of the dues by 4 p.m. Wednesday and said that if the dues were not paid it would place all yardmen on the spare board — having senior men on call instead of giving them -advance notice of assignments. Management's action was in accord, with its 1969 agreement with the union.

The yardmen have refused to pay their dues in protest against a clause in the September 1969 agreement between company and union which allows yardmen, despite their seniority, to be bumped from higher - paying running crew jobs by trainmen with less seniority.

Under a union ruling made in 1961, yardmen and trainmen, formerly separate crafts on the railroad, could interchange crafts and gain equal seniority in both sections at the same time. When implemented, "interchangeable rights were to be retroactive to 1961.

But the trainmen, whose seniority was threatened, formed the Trainmens' Existance Unit and petitioned the UTU head office in Cleveland to change the effective date for interchangeable rights to 1969. Head office complied, and trainmen hired before 1961 lost the seniority they would have had under the original Agreement.

The yardmen met early yesterday afternoon at Engineer's Hall on Front Street and voted to report sick.

At 5 p.m. two yard engines parked across from the office — one of them carrying yard foreman Ernest Belanger, a veteran of 19 years' railroad service.

Mr. Belanger strode into the office followed by the rest of the yardmen.

Inside, he said later, they reported sick but were told they could not be booked.

His claimed transportation manager J. A. Lomas "told us to do what we were told and get out."

C A. Van de Water, acting general manager o the CN's Rideau area, said the railroad could use trainmen to replace the yard workers.

Such crews were qualified and experienced, he said.

Asked if the yardmen's move could nonetheless cause delays, he replied: "It could. But the operation will continue. That's the important thing."

At the Engineer's Hall meeting, foreman Ernest Belanger claimed L. A. Kellett local 403 secretary would come before a disciplinary committee of the union because of the feud.

His claimed union charges had been brought against Mr. Kellett because of the formation of the Trainmen's Existence Unit — the group formed to petition union leaders for the controversial contract change.

Garbage Bag Clues Help Solve Mystery of Missing Truck

A runaway Jeep truck owned by Riverside Service Station on the outskirts of Frankford ended up in the Trent River and resulted in a 90 minute retrieval effort before it was hauled out of the water. The truck, loaded with garbage bags, was noticed missing shortly after 1 p.m. Hydro employee Bill Menzies saw garbage bags floating in the river near No. 5 dam across Highway 33 from the service station. Service station owner David Hastie recognized the bags and deduced that the truck had slipped its brakes, rolled across the highway and into the river. Rescue efforts recorded on film by Intelligencer cameraman Malcolm Johnston show Francis Chard and George King getting ready to hook chains to submerged Jeep. In the second picture the Jeep comes slowly out of the water and in third shot water drains from Jeep cab as workmen tighten safety chains.

Bert Messacar Resigns As Head of Family Y

Bert Messacar, General Secretary of the Belleville Family YMCA, asked the directors of the organization to accept his resignation last night.

Mr. Messacar told The Intelligencer this morning that he had decided to make a change and have another experience. Essentially, he said, "it's for health reasons; I want to do something with less stress."

In accepting Mr. Messacar's resignation, John Hayman, president of the Belleville Y, expressed both shock and surprise and in a statement this morning explained that "the Y is trying to put its financial house in order and to continue its programs; in view of his health, Mr. Messacar decided to resign and it is a resignation that we accepted with considerable regret."

At the finance committee meeting on June 15, the request was made that the General Secretary supply the Board with his recommendations on how staff expenses could be cut by $3,000 to $4,000 during the balance of 1970.

"It is my opinion", Mr. Messacar told the directors, "that it would not only be unwise but also potentially dangerous to attempt to make a major saving in part-time staff expense."

"The only other way in which a major saving can be made in staff expense this year is to part with the services of one program director." Mr. Messacar continued, stating that this would be inadvisable.

Mr. Messacar submitted his letter of resignation to YMCA President, John Hayman on June 15.

An executive committee meeting preceded the board of directors meeting last night in which Mr. Messacar formally resigned.

Bert Messacar will stay with the Belleville Y until September 1, having been in the city for five years.

He arrived from Brantford in October of 1965 and since he has been here the capital debt of the Y has been reduced from $200,000 to less than $70,000.

Commenting on the present Y board of directors, Mr. Messacar stated that "it is an excellent board, a strong board, which can do a good job for the City of Belleville. In fact, it's the strongest board I've ever dealt with."

Mr. Messacar requested that the YMCA not cut back on its programs and the board last night concurred largely with his request.

In other business, directors decided to hold a membership campaign during the month of September and the membership committee, under the direction of Doug Burr, and the finance committee, chaired by Eric Runacres, were charged with the responsibility of preparing the campaign.

Décision was also made to hold a swimathon in November; this will be co-ordinated by program directors Dave Hahn and Maureen Bailey.

In the fall, the Y will offer a range of package programs; these will be for a specific number of weeks and will be available to non - Y members at a small fee.

It was also disclosed last night that Grant Maidment, president of the Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants, has offered to do an office administration survey for the Y by the end of this month.

A Y press release states that "it is hoped in reviewing office procedure that recommendations will come forward that will improve methods and organize work loads."

Arrangements were also announced for a Toronto firm to inspect the Y facility and equipment and make recommendations for a five - year maintenance plan. These arrangements have been made through "a generous Y benefactor."

Stumbling Blocks

A phenomenon of politics which never ceases to amaze is the opposition and hot air generally which many a sound project generates before it ever gets to the drawing board, let alone becomes a reality. Granted there must be careful evaluation of costs, feasibility and so on, but it is a melancholy thing to observe many an imaginative concept, which plainly would benefit a community or region, foundering on the rocks of opposition or being hamstrung by red tape.

We have seen this kind of trend in Belleville, although happily there are a number of enterprises here, either just completed or on the way to completion, which have successfully triumphed over such difficulties.

Something of the sort is now apparent over efforts to get a bridge for Howe Island. In the hot seat over Frontenac County initiatives in this regard is the Ontario department of highways which has criticized a proposed causeway and lowering type bridge.

Loughboro Reeve William Halligan has been quoted as saying he is "fed up" with so much talk and no action on what he termed "the vital crossing." He was supported by Kingston township Reeve J. E. McElwen who is chairman of the county highways committee. "We have done our homework, which shows a permanent crossing with a drop span bridge, to be both feasible and the most economical, much more so than an expanded ferry service," he said.

Some day Howe Island will get its bridge, but meanwhile, as is evident here, the full measure of red tape and buck passing must be exacted between the various parties. There is also that other concept of a bridge link between Canada and the U.S. via Amherst and Wolfe Islands, but that no doubt is something even further in the future.

The Little Things

It is the little things that bug people. On the other hand give a fellow some sort of challenge, problem, or even thread of danger and he will innately react with vigor, determination and courage.

But few of us lead lives of high adventure. Few would have to face the kind of situation Daphne Smith of Calgary encountered in Kootenay Whitetail Park recently. Out for a hike, Miss Smith bumped into a cougar she talked to it soothingly for nearly 30 minutes before it finally lunged and clawed her left arm.

The Calgary woman was not badly hurt and the animal was chased away by other hikers who arrived moments later. For Miss Smith, that half - hour was one she is not likely to forget. Its affords other situations of this nature, even every day ones, flare of one's being are required to deal with it. But mostly we are all just jogging along and coping with the everyday things and the inevitable frustrations as best we may.

Take a look at our own city scene. Nobody is worrying about cougars but council on Monday did hear a complaint about yapping dogs — one of them — in a backyard. If, as it appears, there is no noise by-law covering such a situation, then the animals' owners have a personal responsibility to deal with it. Car wrecking operations in the Centre Street area of Hillcrest and children playing among the old autos and suffering cuts also came before council.

We are not suggesting these are insignificant matters. Like anything else they affect people and require a response by those concerned and by the authorities. Another problem in the category of noise and nuisance for instance is noisy air conditioners. Council heard about them too and one councillor offered to give the name of a dealer who sold quiet models.

And of course there is that other issue of what to do about a meeting place for the young people other than Front Street. There is talk of developing a small, privately-owned area on the river bank and council has voted up to $350 to this end. But will the kids go for it? As Mayor Russell Scott points out, it is not where the action is. The ultimate solution we suggest, lies with the young people themselves. They must work out their own salvation — if they will use their own initiative. It is largely a question of mind over matter.

Some people do have real problems of course — like the family that came from Trenton seeking accommodation, which was unavailable, and now they are living in a tent in a back yard on Dundas Street East.

Troubles anyone?

George Hees Typical of Opposition 'Prodders'

MP's Persistence Gained Higher Minimum Wage

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Let us contrive considerately to put the proposition that an MP does not have to be on the Government side in the Commons to get things done.

In fact, in a way it does not — especially when the Government of the day has a solid majority on the MP when one digs far below if he is on the Opposition side of the House.

That is, of course, if he has a comprehension to work and the drive to sustain it.

And this is why now, as it was when Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent were majority governments, Prime Ministers — so many of the MPs on the Administration's side of the Commons are scorned openly and ridiculed publicly by the Opposition as "rubber stamps."

They sit there in obedient silence — as well-behaved Government MPs, being seen but seldom heard — voting for the Administration's measures almost automatically and just as mechanically against Opposition proposals.

How different, these Government MPs, bound and gagged as they are, than the free-heeling members of the Opposition, and just this Opposition, but any Opposition.

Example?

Well, there is Prince Edward-Hastings Conservative MP, former Top Trade and Transport Minister, George Hees.

For months he had been chewing away at the restricted-hound government to do something about the federal minimum wage.

He wanted the Government to give it something approaching reality.

It was $1.25 an hour, and George Hees kept complaining that "guys on welfare can do better than that."

The unreality of it was not benefiting anyone, he protested, not, certainly, "the working stiff" determined to make his own buck, nor the able-bodied employables on welfare getting hang-up on handouts, and not the taxpayer.

Rains that $1.25 minimum rate, "made it real," contended George Hees, and all the other governments would have to follow Ottawa's lead.

Do that and everyone would be a little better off, he argued. The working stiff getting a better wage, the guy on welfare wondering whether he would not be further ahead to get out and hustle his own buck, and the taxpayer.

So after listening to George Hees work away at it over the months, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, able to stand the nagging no longer, came into the Commons with legislation to raise the minimum to $1.65.

Oddly, he did not have the grace to give George Hees a single word of credit.

For his initiative that saved the jobs of 275 workers in Ambarst's aircraft plant, Enamel and Heating Transport Minister Don Jamieson gave him a full credit.

Here is what happened:

As all contracts must be, it was completed and there was the plant with its workers to take its place, nothing to carry the payroll.

With no work, and no money coming in, the management and could not pay — and there seemed no escape from the economic travesty of a staff layoff.

Bob Coates knew there had to be other federal aircraft contracts going that would keep the plant open, and staff on the job.

Trick was to find them, and the man who had to know what was in the work was Don Jamieson whose department operates a fleet of Tracontra, Voyageurs, Jet-Stars, Yukons, to name only a few.

But Don Jamieson was not in Ottawa at the time, so Bob Coats tracked him down by distance to a 30-minute stop he was making at a tiny outpost in his sprawling Barbs-Burgess constituency.

"We are in trouble," said Coates. "Yes, I know," said Jamieson. "Can you help?" asked Coates. "I do not know, but I will look around," promised Jamieson.

Bob Coates kept reminding him, keeping the pressure on, and it was not many months — three or four weeks when Jamieson said, "I am flying in to look at your plant. If it is open up, I could have something for your people."

He showed up, alright, and standing right there on the concrete floor of the factory, Don Jamieson dealt off $2,000,000 in new contracts for production of components for the Yukon, again with a tip of his Newrie Sou'wester to a hard-driving Opposition MP, this time, Robert Coates.

It all happened about a year ago.

And while it still gives Bob Coates a sense of satisfaction, he suspects that the Government's acquisition of four new Boeing 707 jets, for $55,000,000 could spell "phase-out" for the Yukons, and so he is reminding Don Jamieson to keep the Amherst plant in mind, front and centre, when other contracts are up for tender.

Sword of Damocles

The Gardening Scene

Stay Clear of Pesticides

Kingston Whig-Standard

One of the main reasons why the amount of chemical poison in the environment has reached dangerous proportions is that far too many people look upon gardening as a war against weeds and "harmful pests." But good gardening isn't a war; rather it is the art of giving plants every chance to grow, flower and go to seed.

As Millicent Taylor, garden writer for The Christian Science Monitor observed recently, "You don't need to lay in a supply of poisonous sprays to keep your garden free of harmful insects and diseases this summer. The kind of soil plants need, the right location for sun and shade, adequate food and moisture is what they get. Clean gardening practices such as cultivation and a prompt removal of spent blooms will give them freedom."

A fact which many people tend to ignore is that strong, healthy plants will do their part in resisting attacks of all kinds. It is the fading flower that attracts the unwelcome insect. It is the yellow rose leaf that starts trouble on other leaves. It should be noted also that certain plants repel insects on other plants.

Among the insects useful to the gardener because they feed on harmful insects are lady beetles, the praying mantis and the earwig. Poisonous sprays kill these and other helpful insects. Other garden allies include toads, frogs, garden snakes, shrews and birds.

Miss Taylor believes that what is needed is a greater emphasis on "compassionate planting" and less indiscriminate spraying for garden areas with pesticides and herbicides. We agree. The fact is that the widespread use of chemicals represents a sorry excuse for ignorance of husbandry.

Keeping the Kids Occupied

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

The only place to learn anything is where that thing is at, where it's actually being done, e.g. the production of a newspaper, the repairing of a car, the running of a bank or, come to think of it, the instruction of the children at camp. Opened last week, and as I come increasingly to see, we must get back to the idea of apprenticing kids — most kids, anyway — at the age of 14 or 15 or 16.

Quite apart from the factory and office, can we really say that there's nothing for big, strong kids to do upon entering their middle teens? Look around! There's air pollution, soil pollution, water pollution; there's human pollution in the garbage and junk which litter the outskirts of our cities, and not just the outskirts either. All over Canada, there are little kids who need to be looked after, around, and so on. All over Canada, there are kids who need to be taken on trips and outings. (I do what I can, but there's only one of me.) All over Canada, there are working mothers and non - working mothers are screaming for domestic help.

There are patients in mental hospitals who need help, amusement, friendship. There are the old, the handicapped, of whom I'm one after my three eye operations. A whole parade of kids large and small march into my office and read fine print or blithy written letters to me, help me file, toss paper around.

The Battle of Waterloo was fought 155 years ago today — in 1815 — and Napoleon's attempt to regain power was decisively "defeated. After escape from Elba, Napoleon marched north through France for 100 days, gathering men and arms. The Duke of Wellington, with a mixed allied army, met him on the Brussels road, knowing the Prussian army was approaching. The fighting lasted all day until the whole allied line advanced at dusk and the French army disintegrated. French casualties were 30,000 of 72,000 men.

The Mechanics of Subversion

How The Communists Operate in The Free World

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We were told by communist nations that war will not be necessary for them to achieve their aim of world conquest. Why should they fight when all things go their way? They are confident that their superior propaganda techniques will eventually overcome all nations. The money they are spending on exporting propaganda is fabulous. Our "home front" is also weakened by subversive-minded people.

In the paper Naked Communist we find the following objectives were placed before the U.S. Congressional Record by Cleon R. Skousen the Field Director of the American Security Council:

"Gain control of key positions in radio, TV and motion pictures. Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage promiscuity and easy divorce.

Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents. Attribute prejudice, mental block and retarding of children to the suppressive influence of parents.

Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio and TV.

Use the mass media to make all normal marriages appear dull and conventional and all forms of perversion to appear interesting and exciting.

Encourage subservives who advocate the violent overthrow of the government to sponsor disorderly conduct, incite riots and damage public and private property with impunity.

Eliminate prayer or any phase of religious expression from the schools.

Infiltrate the churches and replace revealed religion with "social religion." Discredit the Bible and emphasize the need for intellectual maturity which does not need a "religious crutch."

Indoctrinate the public into believing that Jesus Christ is a myth, Christianity a byword for an ancient superstition and the church an institution that mankind has outgrown."

We have known it for some time that communist plans have included the infiltration of the churches. Should they succeed in this, the Christian faith would be replaced by a "political-social" gospel — unfortunately some of our modern ministers (mainly in larger cities) are working already in that direction. The church is frequently used for discussing economical or political problems or just for talk on ethical behavior, while the main issue is neglected. I would suggest that personal concern for the less fortunate ones be lessened, now that Christians should refuse to participate in any worthwhile civic affairs, but that the emphasis should be put where Jesus did.

Christ and His followers aimed at converting individuals. They were concerned mainly with the salvation of souls, the spreading of the gospel and grace resulting in changed people through the supernatural new birth as described in John 3, 14.

The method of changing the world through changed individuals may be a slow one but it is God's way of helping sinful humanity and it is His way for us to overcome all types of anti-Christian forces and to create everlasting values.

Jobless To Get More

ployment weeks in the past year, from 20 weeks.

At the same time, weekly benefits are to be increased to two-thirds of income over the last 20 weeks of employment with a maximum of $105. Benefits will be increased to three-fourths of the average for workers with dependents if they remain unemployed for more than 10 weeks. The maximum benefit period, for workers with more than 20 employment weeks to their credit, will be 51 weeks.

Eligible for benefits for the first time will be women on maternity leave from their employment and any worker off the job for more than two weeks as a result of sickness. A lump sum equal to three-weeks benefits will also be paid on a voluntarily retired workers awaiting payments from the Canada and Quebec Pension Plans.

Backed by the present balance of just less than $500,000,000 in the insurance fund, and with the increased number of contributors, the revised scheme is designed to be self-supporting when unemployment is less than four per cent nationally.

Although the government would still be responsible to support the fund in any of 25 designated areas where unemployment is above the national average—a cost of about $50,000,000 under present conditions—it would no longer be responsible for administrative costs of $50,000,000 or an annual contribution of 20 per cent of the total.

Should unemployment rise above four per cent, however, the government would have to pick up the entire extra cost. Officials of the Unemployment Insurance Commission estimate the change will be $12,000,000 for each increase of .1 per cent in the seasonally-adjusted rate.

Were the reforms in effect, the 5.6 per cent unemployment rate in April would mean on an annual basis a total cost to the government of more than $250,000,000 compared to the $175,000,000 now being paid.

"This policy is perhaps one of the most interesting in the entire proposal," the white paper states.

"It clearly establishes the government's responsibility for the financial support of a national unemployment insurance program over and above the self-financing aspect."

It adds, however, that the four-per-cent benchmark "is in no way intended as a definition of full employment for the economy."

The time period for benefits is also linked to the unemployment figures.

After an initial period of 15 weeks, a fully-qualified worker will be entitled to a further 10 weeks if the national average is below the four-per-cent mark, 14 weeks if between four and five per cent and 15 weeks if it exceeds that limit.

The benefit period will also be extended if regional unemployment is more than one per cent above the national rate.

Another important aspect of the new plan is a proposal to interview claimants up to three times as they progress through the five phases of the program.

Approval

erally favored the major changes.

David Archer, president of the 700,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, said labor generally supports the principle of universal unemployment insurance.

But Nora Hodgins, secretary-treasurer of the 100,000-member Ontario Teachers' Federation, said the federation has been opposed "to being used as a group with a very low incidence of unemployment to subsidize the fund."

In Ottawa, Canadian Labor Congress President Donald MacDonald said his organization is "pleased to see suggestions for universal coverage, easing of qualifications, increase in benefits and provision for payments for sickness or pregnancy."

He said the CLC has some reservations about the proposals, the main one being the "experience rating" which would link the amount an employer had to pay into the unemployment insurance fund to the frequency of past layoffs in his factory or plant.

Into the Beer

Marching Mice Are Real Aussies

WAGGA WAGGA (Reuters) — The marching mice of the Australian outback now are slaking their thirst with beer.

Armies of hungry rodents, previously seen gnawing away at concrete, electric cables, sheep fleece and even pop-up toasters, tapped the most accessible source of beer at a golf club near here, the plastic pipes leading from the cellar to the bar.

Rising consumption and dwindling returns led to an official investigation.

"The mice had eaten through a beer line in three places," a club official said. "We must have lost about 22 gallons."

Quinte Theatre A Hit

Once upon a time . . .

How many children's stories begin like that?

Some people say that all good fairy tales and stories for children begin with that old-time introduction.

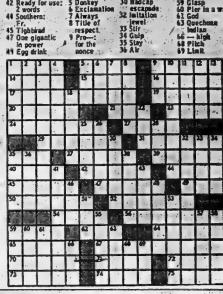
Well, once upon a time there was this magic trumpet, a story about four villagers in a little town called Orderstone.

But that would be giving away the story — and to see a better story, the Quinte Island Theatre players are the guests this week of the Belleville Theatre Guild on Pinnacle Street, and that is where children can see this story firsthand.

When the Recreation and Parks committee approached the theatre guild as they did last year, and requested a summer children's play, the guild approached the Quinte Island players. The players were preparing to present The Magic Trumpet at the Picton Community Centre on June 28, July 12 and 26; August 2, 9 and 30 for two performances at 2 and 8 p.m.

Their pre - schedule performances at the Pinnacle Playhouse are being performed before school audiences. Yesterday, more than 100 pupils of the Parkdale school attended the 1.30 performance. Today, pupils of Queen Alexandria school and Winston Churchill will attend, and tomorrow, Our Lady of Fatima school pupils will be the audience.

So that any children in the area do not miss this wonderful children's story, two performances on Saturday will be given. All the seats are sold out for the shows today and tomorrow but for the 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday performances, seats are available for 75 cents.



The young people involved in the program volunteer and work in any capacity, providing their own prop masters, set decorators, costume makers, makeup artists, technicians and of course, the players.

As evidenced by the complete enthrallment of the youngsters in yesterday's audience, the performances should be a must, for every child to see.

Greene Defines His Aims

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene further defined his concept of Canadian nationalism Wednesday, rejecting socialism and anti-Americanism as components.

Mr. Greene called for a united Canada "doing its own thing—striving not for a great society in terms of growth" but measuring its achievement by "the excellence of our accomplishment, the fulfillment of the individual."

The minister, who told a conference of American oilmen in Denver last month that Canadians were rejecting the American experiment in favor of their own identity, addressed the Canadian Club here.

Mr. Greene rejected anti-Americanism as a nationalistic force.

"Any attempt to build on a real or imagined antagonism of one people or country against another is a process that is not only unworthy, but can be unproductive."

Black Folk Harassed Is Claim

TORONTO (CP) — A member of the Black Youth Organization told the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare Wednesday that blacks in Toronto are the targets of police harassment and discrimination.

Ainsley Vaughan, 20, said police would come upon groups of blacks in parks and either take them to jail as vagrants if they had no money, or take them far away and make them walk back.

The youth said the blacks need a community centre where they can meet to escape this kind of harassment. The centre could also serve as an information centre where blacks could be helped to get jobs and given guidance on social problems, he said.

He charged that discrimination against blacks exists in a city restaurant, but although it had been reported to the Ontario Human Rights Commission, no investigation has been made.

"When you object to the food they call the police. I was there one night when they (the police) came in. A black asked a cop, 'Can't I say what happened?' The policeman said 'No' and they dragged him away.

'Leaks' of Information Will Be Probed in Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons procedure committee is not going to be able to get around to the problem of pre-publication leaks of official documents until the fall, Information says.

By then, the leak, or "false report" in Prime Minister Trudeau's words, of the LeDain report on drug abuse may be long forgotten.

The influential 13-member committee, headed by Gordon Blair, Liberal MP for Grenville-Carleton, has been instructed by the Commons to look into three major problems:

—Whether parliamentary proceedings should be televised;

—Security measures for Parliament Hill;

The committee plans to make an interim report to the Commons before the June 26 adjournment, to say it needs more time for research on all three problems.

The specific issue of the LeDain report leak to Time magazine was not referred to the committee, but only the general situation about what to do about such leaks.

The cabinet committee studying the non-medical use of drugs had only a summary of the LeDain report when it began its discussions. It received the report itself later, informants say the summary formed the basis of the leak.

Informed sources here claim the leak was more likely to have originated from within the LeDain commission, which has a staff of at least 30, rather than from any cabinet minister or government official.

It is understood that Mr. Trudeau is not greatly upset about the leak on the grounds that the full report itself was apparently not involved.

Former Belleville Girl Makes Ninety-nine Club

A former Belleville girl (Audrey Stewart) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Stewart, Charles Street, now Mrs. Bill Baker of Oshawa, was honored recently by being accepted into the Ninety-Nine Club, an organization for women pilots started by Amelia Earhart in 1929.

MRS. AUDREY BAKER

This club was the first organization for women pilots and now has members throughout the world. The name "ninety-nine" refers to the number of charter members.

"You need a valid pilot's licence to belong" said Mrs. Baker, "and you've generally asked to join by another member. Prospective members must attend three meetings before being allowed to join and Mrs. Baker found this somewhat difficult as most meetings are held in Toronto or west of Toronto, since that is where most of the members are.

The purpose of the club is to promote the interests of women pilots. One of the most important events is the annual angel derby sponsored by the club. Mrs. Baker has yet to participate in the event, however, as she is a full-time teacher at the General Vanier Secondary School in Oshawa.

Mrs. Baker said that in regards to learning to fly, she did not find it difficult to learn, except for the landings which took a lot of time. Since her husband had been flying for about 16 years, she had been a passenger many times which made learning a little easier. "I already felt comfortable in a small plane and in the air," she said.

The Bakers own a Cessna 180 which they keep on Lake Scugog and use for travelling to the cottage on an island in the French River.

Mrs. Baker can only fly their plane when it's airborne, however, since it's a seaplane and she has not yet completed the final endorsement on her licence.

Mrs. Baker's husband is not excluded from her flying activities. "Husbands are called '99'ers," she said, "and they are invited to many meetings and rallied on to do things. Most members have husbands who also fly".

One of the nicest things about flying is being referred to simply as a "pilot" and not a "woman pilot," and "pilots don't criticize women pilots the way drivers criticize women drivers. It's rather nice".

Medical Secretaries Entertain Other Groups

Medical Secretaries from Trenton and Brighton were among guests of the Quinte Medical Secretaries at a potluck supper held recently at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Lena Anderson and Mrs. Hazel Rockman.

Entertainment was provided by members of the Sears and Belles Club who were introduced by Mrs. Mac Cathcart. A short commentary of each dance was given by Dick Brettingham. The dancers, Harry and Madeline Brodie, Jerry and Phillis Cherry, Gail Lundberg and George MacDonald, under direction of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Brettingham proceeded through a program of square and round dancing with utmost grace and ease.

Mr. Brettingham was thanked by Mrs. Eileen Conley.

Coffee and dessert were served.

Teacher Honored at School

Wednesday's afternoon the teachers and students of Queen Mary Public School gathered together to honor Mrs. Grace Anderson who has been a teacher at the school since 1951. Mrs. Anderson is now retiring.

Mrs. Anderson, an outstanding teacher, graduated from Ottawa Teachers' College and spent her first teaching years teaching in rural schools. When her husband, a former Unified Church minister, died she was asked by the congregation to continue on as minister at the church near Brandon, Manitoba.

Later she returned east to Belleville and taught in Plainfield, Bayview and then came to the primary department of Queen Mary School. She has a primary specialist degree in teaching with special interests in special education and music.

Mrs. Anderson has been president of the Belleville Teachers' Association and the Belleville Women Teachers' Association. She is also a member of the Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority for Educationists.

Two-crust Rhubarb Pie

By MARY MOORE

If I perform my duties properly — and I want to — a recipe for a pie containing the Canadian fruits as they come into season should appear here every year.

I am late this year in giving you the recipe for a two-crust rhubarb pie but there is still lots of it around in June so I made one and it was a beauty. Try to buy (or fetch from your own garden patch) the slender pink stalks which make a more colorful and delicate filling.

TWO-CRUST RHUBARB PIE
(deep 9")

Pastry:
2 cups unsifted but stirred, all - purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
2-3 cup shortening
3 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. cold water

FILLING:
6 cups washed and cut up (¼") pink slender rhubarb
1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. minute tapioca

GLAZE:
1 tbsp. milk
1 tbsp. sugar

To make pastry, cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in cold water tossing with a fork until you can press pastry into a ball between your palms. Divide in half and roll ⅛ out to fit deep 9" pie plate.

To make Filling mix well the prepared rhubarb with sugar and minute tapioca and let stand while you roll out top crust and grab it to make steam vents.

Turn rhubarb into pastry-lined pie plate evenly, cover with top crust, trim off rough edges and crimp and seal rim. Mix together the 1 tbsp. each sugar and milk and brush all over top. I bound the edges with a 4" wide strip of foil to prevent them browning too much. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 30 min., then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes longer. The pie baked 1 hr. in all and juice should bubble through gashes a little to be sure rhubarb is cooked.

I think a rhubarb pie is at its best when it is served after it has barely cooled to room temperature — not cold — not hot.

'How to Prepare for Interview' Outlined in Booklet

By DORIS CLARK

James, the two - headed god of Roman mythology, had the useful facility of being able to look both ways at once.

Not a bad idea. In a handy booklet "How to Prepare for an Interview" the older worker is advised to do just this—look at--both his past achievements and his future promise when making a bid for work.

Not only does he put down what he earned money at, but gives a build-up to his hobbies and special interests. He also uses samples of resume writing, showing how this should be put down, tailoring it to the job in question.

There is a real skill to sizing yourself up properly and getting it on paper. A job can stand or fall on how well this is done.

Dear Doris: I am an elderly lady living alone and although I should be doing a lot of needlework, having saved materials and designs for many years, I just can't get started. I worry about it as I soon will reach the age of 77.

The housework, cooking, shopping, writing to my numerous family members: and the gardening and canning in summer, keep me quite busy. I like out and work slower, and need rest. Needle - point and petit - point are my favorite subjects and I have made a few pieces of tapestry in the past, while coverscreens from an Indian.

I have canvas and tapestry wools, I could exchange materials with other ladies who may want to help me use up what I have on hand.

Can you help me get started? — Worried.

Dear Worried: What do you need? Instructions, or a place to buy materials? If I were ever to have a brain wave that I wanted to do needlepoint I think I'd start with the library — that is, if you have one handy. There you will find magazines; and the names of places where materials can be bought.

If any of our readers write in with help for you or materials to swap, I'll let you know. Get going and as an incentive, how about reporting progress?

* * *

Dear Doris: How would I tell my husband that my parents would like to be invited out to his parents' place as they haven't seen the house yet? My husband and I are living there now. — Country Wife.

Dear Wife: You have the reticence about this that goes with being a new bride in an unfamiliar home. Right now is the time for you to begin sharing your desires with your husband.

It is the most natural thing in the world for you to want your parents to visit you. If you were in your own home they would doubtless call regularly; but it is different when you are with parents - in - law. Perhaps he will suggest that you ask his parents' permission yourself. If you do it with confidence that they care about you, this will get across.

If you are hesitating to express yourself, don't. Begin building a lifetime of understanding right now, by taking things over with the man you married.

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you in the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

Ann Landers

Worker for Arthritic Incensed by Reply

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have just written to the publisher of the paper asking him to fire you. I am sure he will receive many other such letters. I work for the National Arthritis

ANN LANDERS

Foundation and I am incensed by your statement that arthritis is caused by gonorrhea. You have insulted every arthritic in the country. I don't see how you have held your job so long making such crazy statements as that. Do you ever write your column with a bottle of gin by the typewriter? Don't you have an editor who reads your stuff before it gets into the paper? I hope before they fire you that you will at least apologize. — BOILING OVER.

DEAR BOIL: Please read the column again. I said, "The vast majority of people who have arthritis have rheumatoid or osteoarthritis not the gonorrheal type." Then I went on to say, in response to a direct question, "Yes, gonorrhea can cause arthritis." That statement is correct. It does not mean, however, that everyone who has arthritis got it from V.D. Here is another example: Excessive drinking can cause cirrhosis of the liver, but not everyone with cirrhosis of the liver got it as a result of drinking. There — do you feel better?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a woman in my mid 50's and have reared three children. I worked before the children were born and I made good money. I quit when our last child entered high school.

It's a pleasure not to set an alarm clock. I love staying at home and doing as I please. But my husband will not let me alone. He says I am lazy and stupid for piddling away my time. He has made me feel like a leech because I am not bringing in money. He is forever reading ads to me — "Help wanted. Female." Twice I have received calls from agencies which he undoubtedly "arranged."

My husband is an executive and we are not hard up for money. I have never been a big spender and am more conservative than most women in our crowd. I do my own hair. We have no maid in the house. I don't mind an occasional part-time job, but I don't want steady work. Is this wrong? — FISCAL FRACAS WITHOUT END.

DEAR FIS: A woman in her mid-50's who has raised three children should not go back to a full-time job unless (1) additional income is needed or (2) she wants to.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teen-ager who would like to respond to your suggestion that teens should respect their parents and accept responsibility. I couldn't agree more, but how can teens respect their parents when they don't respect us and they don't give us any responsibility?

How is a kid supposed to know what respect is when his parents yell at him all the time, never give him a chance to explain anything, criticize him from morning till night — never a compliment or a word of encouragement. How are we supposed to know what responsibility is if everything is done for us and we aren't even allowed to make decisions vital to our lives? If a kid's parents won't give him respect and responsibility, who can he turn to? — ILLINOIS GRIPE.

DEAR I.G.: You've raised some excellent points. I hope it jars loose a few parental brains. Thanks for a good letter.

Backward Step?

Mayor Nick Kaneb of Cornwall claims the St. Lawrence Seaway forced the city to close the old Cornwall canal two years ago when industry in the area was denied power at reduced rates.

Probationary Period Planned For New Drivers in Manitoba

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A new driver's licence system, designed to give learning drivers more experience and to emphasize that driving "is a privilege, not a right," is included in proposals of a bill now before the Manitoba legislature.

Under the system, described Wednesday by Transportation Minister Joe Borowski in an interview, the present learner's permit would be replaced with a probationary licence, valid for use without a fully-qualified driver in the car for a 12-month period instead of the present six.

Mr. Borowski said a person who has held a licence for less than five years would be classified as a new driver and would require a probationary licence.

Conviction for any traffic offence under the Highway Traffic Act, Criminal Code or Juvenile Delinquency Act while driving with a probationary licence would result in a year's suspension of driving privileges, the minister said.

In other legislatures Wednesday:

St. John's — Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood said his government may soon take "a second look" at the whole tax structure as it applies to mining companies.

Commenting on an Ottawa report that the province's mining taxes are the lowest in Canada, the premier said the tax rate was deliberately low to attract prospectors and mining companies. It had resulted in Newfoundland's producing $90,000,000 a year in minerals.

Yellowknife — Northwest Territories Commissioner Stuart M. Hodgson told the 62nd session of the Territorial Council that the federal government has ordered an undisclosed amount of canned whale meat destroyed because it contained a high percentage of mercury. The whale meat, a delicacy in southern markets, is canned at Rankin Inlet on the western coast of Hudson Bay.

Man Prefers Jail to Haiti

OTTAWA (CP) — Ludovic Bazar, 31, came to Canada from Haiti two years ago with a jazz quartet and a six-month night-club contract.

Now, he has told an immigration review board, he would rather go to jail in Canada than return to Haiti.

"If I go back there, my life is finished," Mr. Bazar told the board Tuesday, with supporting evidence from other witnesses of harsh treatment meted out in Haiti to such returnees.

The board reserved its decision. Mr. Bazar, a resident of neighboring Hull, Que., is appealing a deportation order from the immigration department, made on grounds his musical profession does not qualify him to become a landed immigrant. He says he is also a sailor.

He told the review board that "all who leave there (Haiti) are automatically considered traitors."

"Since coming to Canada I've learned that Haitians who return from a trip to North America are arrested at the airport."

Need Seen in Canada for Air-cushion Vehicles

OTTAWA (CP) — An industry to build and market air-cushion vehicles can succeed in Canada, where demand exists, says a government-industry consortium.

After a 2½-year study, the consortium concluded that new types of ACVs can meet special transport problems in Canada, and probably gain an export market. Canadian industry is judged capable of undertaking such development.

Five industrial groups and seven government agencies participated in the consortium. The report was made public today by the National Research Council.

The report stresses that Canada has special needs and that ACVs for Canadian tasks should be tailored to these tasks, rather than trying to modify existing models.

The study identifies these roles for ACVs in Canada:

—Non-amphibious marine ferries for passengers and cars in ice-free waters for commuter, tourist and commercial routes. (Summertime service on the Northumberland Strait was one use mentioned.)

—Amphibious ferries for passengers and cars for year-round service where ice or floating debris is a problem.

—Amphibious lighters servicing Arctic communities and installations.

—Amphibious off-road vehicles for soft-terrain and water to service development sites and remote settlements.

—Utility craft for search and rescue, survey and patrol operations.

—Amphibious sports craft as a sort of combined motor boat and snowmobile.

The report says Canada is well suited to make and operate ACVs though initially it might require government incentives, tax concessions or subsidies to create the risk capital.

The best results would probably be obtained from operating a mixed fleet of ACVs and conventional vehicles to link passengers and freight.

Indians May Be Festival Hosts

SUTTON, Ont. (CP) — The chief of the Georgina Island Indian band says negotiations are under way to hold the on-again, off-again Ontario peace festival on the nearby Lake Simcoe island.

Chief Lorenzo Big Canoe said in an interview Wednesday that his band has been approached by John Brower, 33, head of Karma Productions Ltd., about holding the festival on the Indian-owned island 45 miles north of Toronto.

The chief said the 150 Indians on the island plan a meeting to decide whether to allow the festival—which has been turned down by numerous other Ontario communities—when initial negotiations between the Indians and lawyers and Mr. Brower have been completed.

"We are going to have to let the people decide," Chief Big Canoe said. "Some are in favor of holding the festival and some are not."

He said cottagers on the island would not be consulted in the decision-making.

Hotelmen Finally Climb From Cellar

A four-run outburst in the first inning last night allowed City Hotel to finally vacate the Commercial Softball League cellar as they hammered Rollin's Construction 8-3.

In the nightcap Corby's and Point Anne battled through eight innings only to see their efforts wiped out by the 10:30 curfew. The score was all even at four apiece when the game was called.

City hopped on Rollin's starter Carl Boomhower for three runs on three walks and a single by Bob Ebbler before benching reliever Wayne McConnell for the final run of the inning.

In all Boomhower and McConnell gave up six hits, while walking two and fanning eight City batters.

Hotelmen hurler Bob Ebbler allowed five hits but struck out 12 batters without walking a man in his seventh-inning stint.

A two-run homer in the third-inning by Brian Harder and a solo shot by Jerry Hill in the fifth accounted for Rollin's runs.

Cliff Hberman with a perfect three for three led City at bat with other hits going to Pug Kellar, Don Gardiner, and Bob Ebbler.

Pat Scollard fired a three-hitter on the Corby's mound and struck out 18 Dennetiere but 11 costly walks prevented him from picking up the victory.

Don Holloway was touched for one hits and gave up four walks while blasting third strikes past 14 Corby batters.

Again the Cementmen took the lead in the sixth on a single by Rick Rosebush and a throwing error by Corby catcher Larry Mawby, but Chuck Rowbotham's r.b.i. single sent the game into extra innings.

Larry Fraser stroked a single and a double to lead Point Anne with Eric Maher the only other Cementmen to reach first on a hit.

Scollard helped his own cause with a triple and a single with Bob Wennemaker, Steve Rexe, Gary Geyer, George Daniels, Ken Brooks and Chuck Rowbotham all hitting safely.

The game will be replayed in its entirety at a later date.

Carbide Explodes Into Tie for Second

Union Carbide literally exploded into a share of second place in the Industrial League last night by bombing co-holder of second Mead Johnson 14-4.

Larry Marshall went the route for Mead's giving up 15 hits, walking eight and striking out ten Carbide men.

Wayne Brown Jr. with a homer and a single, C. Lupis with a triple and a single and J. Lucas and Zalkowitz with three singles apiece led the Carbide assault.

Point Anne shortstop Rick Rosebush takes a healthy cut at one of the deliveries of Corby's hurler Pat Scollard. The two teams played to a 4-4 draw in a game that was halted because of the 10:30 p.m. curfew. In the other Commercial League game played last night City Hotel upset Rollins Construction 8-3.

Flyers Pick Bordeleau First

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers, doormats of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season, picked highly-touted Paulin Bordeleau Wednesday as the first choice in the draft for over-age midget-class players.

Bordeleau, 17-year-old brother of Christian and Jean-Pierre Bordeleau, who are both professional players, scored 18 goals for Montreal Junior Canadiens last season.

Flyer coach Hap Emms said jokingly that he would trade Bordeleau back to Montreal "for five players and $10,000."

Other first-round picks were Bob Neeley of Sarnia by Hamilton Red Wings; Doug Ferguson of Toronto by Oshawa Generals; Red Thomas of London by Kitchener Rangers; Jim Mozer of Toronto by London Knights; Tony Herlick of St. Marys by Ottawa 67s; Pat Tims of Toronto by Toronto Marlboros; Morris Titanic of Aurora by Niagara Falls, who used St. Catharines Black Hawks' first-round choice because of a previous arrangement; Stewart Powers of Toronto by Peterborough Petes, and Pierre Ocsane of Nowanda, Que., by Montreal.

Only five of the 144 players picked were goaltenders. Besides Titus they included Rollie Kimble of Chatham by the Flyers and Dave Riggin of Owen Sound by St. Catharines.

Pete Titanic, a right winger from Aurora and son of former Toronto Argonaut football player Pete Titanic, was picked by Kitchener, Don Selling, brother of New York Ranger defenceman Rod, was an Oshawa choice from Elmire. Peterborough, which lost Rod Pfumb in the National Hockey League draft last week, picked Rod's brother Rick from Kingston.

Hamilton also got Patty Digby, a defenceman from Copper Cliff, Ont., and Ottawa picked up John Lynch of Owen Sound.

TERRY MEAGHER

Meagher Made Point

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Last September Niagara Falls Flyers told Terry Meagher to go home from their Junior A training camp and pick up some hockey experience.

They must think he did.

Wednesday, the Flyers, cellar - dwellers in last year's 10 - team OHA Junior A loop, picked the 17 - year - old Belleville winger second from the pool of junior-experienced players at the annual league meeting in Niagara Falls.

Meagher scored 27 goals and 30 assists in 29 games for the fourth - place Belleville Ellis Juniors last winter. That left him five points shy of the Eastern Ontario Junior B league scoring championship.

The five - foot, eleven - inch 175-pound Quinte Secondary School student went on to pile up 13 goals and 11 assists as the Ellis Printers bowed out to Oshawa in a five-game first - round playoff series.

Meagher was invited to Niagara Falls' camp last fall but two other right - wingers were given the nod over him because they had previous junior hockey experience.

His selection by the Flyers Wednesday does not obligate Meagher to anything. The club has exclusive junior A rights to negotiate for his services until Sept. 1 and must obtain a release from the Belleville Junior B's.

Junior Skates Sport Colors

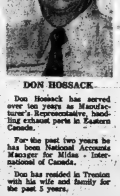
Officials of the OHA Junior A League have injected some added "color" to their loop next season, with the innovation of colored skates by at least six of the ten league teams.

The beautified blades and a longer schedule were unveiled at the two - day annual league meeting, which started Tuesday.



Ottawa 67s will sport red skates. London will wear green, Hamilton red, Oshawa blue and St. Catherines red with white trim.

Montreal and Toronto are as yet undecided.

One certain holdout was Niagara Falls owner Hap Emms, who when asked about the prospects of having the new coloured skates, grinned and said, "no way."

It was decided that each team will play an additional eight contests for the 1970-71 season making for an unbalanced total of 62 games per team.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Four groups, including two from Brantford, have made official entries in the Ontario Hockey Association's Western Ontario Junior Hockey League.

St. Thomas and Chatham are the other cities already entered. The four groups have paid $50 entry fees and posted $1,500 performance bonds.

The OHA met Tuesday night to hear applications from interested cities. Also represented were groups from Detroit, Windsor, Guelph and Stratford.

Italy, Brazil Battle for Soccer Crown

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Brazil and Italy, exhausted by two nerve-jangling semi-finals in World Cup competition, rested today before going into a battle Sunday which will determine the best soccer team in the world.

Italy, relying its guard in the dying minutes of the game as it was leading 1-0, had to fight back to top West Germany 4-3 in a scoring duel during extra time. Even the backs of both teams scored in the dramatic finale.

West Germany, which already has played two extra times in this World Cup, will meet Uruguay in a consolation match Saturday in Mexico City. The game will determine third and fourth place.

Brazil and Italy had been among the top favorites before the three week-long World Cup began.

But Italy's week start, by scoring only one goal in three matches, and its shock falling.

In the quarter-finals, however, its top scorer Luigi Riva, broke a leg and the team ousted Mexico 4-1.

Against West Germany, Riva scored again. He was helped once more by Gianni Rivera, the elegant midfielder whom Italian coach Ferruccio Valcareggi likes to send in after halftime to inject new blood into the forward line.

Rivera scored too and so did Robert Boninsegna, a crafty striker who was added to the team at the last minute because of an ill player.

Burgnich came racing in to kick a slow pass from Rivera in the goalmouth to put the Italians back into the game at 3-2.

Italy's defence is probably the toughest in the world. Its goalie Enrico Albertosi has only conceded four goals in the tournament so far. Its backs, Burnich and Facchetti, are among the classiest shot-stoppers in Europe.

But the best defence will be facing the best offence.

The Brazilians have scored 15 goals in five games so far. Only West Germany, with 14, has done better.

Brazil does not care too much about a tight defence. It prefers to entertain its fiends.

The Uruguayans opened the score with Cubilla counting, and then folded back into a defensive pattern.

However in the last minutes of the first half, Pele dribbled past three opponents on the right wing, and fooled the goalie in being the score even.

Later, midfielders Rivellino and Clodoaldo added their contribution.

Uruguayan players were warned repeatedly for tackling soccer king Pele and his teammates inside and outside the goal area. In many cases, the referee overlooked borderline penalty calls and warned the players on.

Trying Bent Blueline

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP) — The curved blueline will make its debut on a trial basis during 1970-71 exhibition games in the International Hockey League, president Bill Beagan announced Wednesday.

Beagan said the lines will be curved back so that the wingers would be a stride ahead of the centre going into the opposing area.

"We're going to give it a try in the exhibition games," Beagan said.

"I've worked the lines in the National Hockey League and I've seen thousands of offsides by a foot or less. This should speed up play by cutting down on the offsides."

Quarry Changes Foster Tune

Put an unknown fighter in against a seasoned professional. Listen to the bookmakers tell you how a young man named Mac Foster will beat seasoned Jerry Quarry, and then listen to the real inside experts in the boxing world.

And if you listened intently, you'll be Quarry and end up laughing all the way to the bank.

That's the way it was in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

Mac Foster, 24 knockouts in his 24 professional fights, was heralded as the man to beat heavyweight champion Joe Frazier—all he had to do was punch out an over-the-hill heavyweight contender named Jerry Quarry and the world was his.

The Fresno, Calif., knockout artist promised in pre-fight talk he would put the pressure on Quarry and find the opening for a knockout punch.

In the fourth, the 25-year-old Quarry found the range with a few devastating left hooks to the midsection and Foster's fortunes fade noticeably.

The fifth was worse for Foster as he took a fearful pounding for the whole three minutes.

In the sixth, Quarry came out throwing bombs and referee Johnny LoBianco ended it without even bothering to count after Foster was hooked on to the ring apron by a series of Quarry punches.

Quarry said he was not satisfied with his decisive victory over the No. 1-ranked heavyweight contender.

"I need Chuvalo," the Bellflower, Calif., slugger said. "I have to beat George Chuvalo, then they can't keep Frazier away from me."

Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, knocked out Quarry in the seventh round of their controversial battle last December in the same ring. That had a lot to do with the bookies picking Foster to make Wednesday night.

As for Foster, he just gave the impression he was pleased to get a good payday.

"I fought my fight and Quarry did nothing that surprised me in the early rounds," Foster said. "But after those first few rounds I made a fatal mistake and it's just one of those things.

"I would like to thank Mr. Quarry, though, for the opportunity."

Gibson Misses No-Hitter by Four Outs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals was firing bullets at San Diego Padres Wednesday night, pitching hitless ball for 7 2-3 innings before Ivan Murrell drilled a single to save the Padres the embarrassment of being no-hit victims for the second time within a week.

Murrell's hit, the only one for the Padres, came in the eighth inning off the powerful right-hander who faced only 29 batters in pitching the Cardinals to an 8-0 rout the Padres.

In other National League action, Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0, Atlanta Braves slipped Montreal Expos 6-5, Cincinnati Reds stopped New York Mets 7-4, Chicago Cubs belted San Francisco Giants 6-1 and Philadelphia Phillies whipped Houston Astros 4-3.

Only five nights earlier, Dock Ellis of the Pirates loaned the season's first no-hitter, blanking the Padres 2-0.

Only one ball was hit hard—a liner in the fifth by Ron Slocum right at first baseman Bill Allen—until Murrell drilled his sharp grounder over second base in the eighth. Gibson finished with 12 strikeouts.

Jose Cardenal backed Gibson's performance, a stroking three doubles, scoring twice and driving in a pair of runs. Gibson also delivered two run-scoring singles.

Claude Osteen staggered for five innings, allowing the Pirates six of their seven hits before handing Pittsburgh its second straight shutout loss.

BOB GIBSON

against the Padres. Ellis retired the first 10 Dodger hitters before Manny Mota singled. Wes Parker then drove in Mota and Los Angeles added a pair of runs in the sixth on run-scoring hits by Jody Rocco and Bill Grabarkewitz.

Gil Garrido drilled an eighth-inning triple and came home on Rico Carty's single as the Braves came from behind to stop the Expos.

Montreal led 4-0 before Braves starter Jim Nash ripped a two-run homer. Mike Lum's two-run double in the seventh tied it for Atlanta at 5-5 before Carty's game winner. Jim Gosger homered for the Expos.

Pitch-hitter Hal McRae lined a run-scoring single to cap a three-run ninth as the Reds rallied for their victory, snapping the Mets' winning streak at four games.

Elsie Banks slammed a three-run blast and Paul Popovich a solo homer while Jim Hickman contributed a two-run double in the Cubs' triumph. Willie Mays cracked a single and hit a homer, pulling him within 39 hits of the exclusive 3,000-hit club.

Devon Johnson rapped a pair

Yesterday's Stars

Batting — Duane Josephson, White Sox, ignited four consecutive hits, including a double and scored three times in Chicago's 6-3 triumph over New York Yankees.

Expos Deploy Militia

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of baseball's National League Wednesday called up southpaw pitcher Rich Nye from Winnipeg Whips, the Montreal club's Class AAA farm team in the International League.

Nye, 25, started four games with Buffalo Bisons and Winnipeg this season and pitched a total of 26 innings. He allowed nine runs—five of them earned—for a 1.73 earned-run average.

Earlier, the Expos sent outfielder-infielder Joe Herrera to Milwaukee Brewers of the American League to complete a Sunday deal which brought left-hand reliever John O'Donoghue here.

Herrera was an option from Montreal to Winnipeg at the time of the move.

Brabender Back to Roost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gene Brabender, a former Baltimore Oriole pitching prospect now with Milwaukee Brewers, shackled his former teammates for 6 1-3 innings Wednesday night as the lowly Brewers downed the sagging Orioles 5-1.

It was only the second victory for Brabender since April 26 and both have been at Baltimore's expense.

Despite their fourth loss in five games, the Orioles retained a two-game lead in the American League's East Division as Chicago White Sox cooled off the second-place New York Yankees 6-3.

Detroit Tigers beat Oakland Athletics 9-7; Boston Red Sox took Kansas City Royals 3-1 and Washington Senators topped Minnesota Twins 3-1 in other AL games. California and Cleveland were rained out.

He left the game with a 3-1 lead, built on Rod's homer off Dave McNally in the fifth and a sixth-inning sacrifice fly by Dave May, who was making his first start for the Brewers after being dealt to them by the Orioles Tuesday. Humphreys checked Baltimore the rest of the way.

Pitcher Jerry Janeski drove in three runs with a single and squeeze bunt as the White Sox ended the Yankees' winning streak at six games. Catcher Duane Josephson drilled three singles and a double and scored three Chicago runs.

Detroit's Ken Szotkiewicz poled a decisive three-run homer, enabling the Tigers to overcome six errors and outscore the Athletics. All but one of the Oakland runs were unearned, the result of four errors by Tiger pitchers and two more by third baseman Ike Brown.

Ken Brett, making his first start of the season, hurled a three-hitter and struck out eight in Boston's victory over the skidding Royals. The Red Sox broke a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth after Dave Morehead walked the bases full. It was the 13th loss for the Royals in their last 14 games.

Two Violins Scratched!

TORONTO (CP) — The 111th running of the Queen's Plate, Saturday's feature at a whole new race today when owner George Gardiner of Toronto announced today he is withdrawing Two Violins, the undefeated favorite.

Gardiner made the announcement at Woodbine race track's 'Turf Club' but before entries closed this morning for the Plate, the premier event for Canadian - foaled three - year - old thoroughbreds.

"It's swelling in the left foreleg," said Gardiner. "He isn't 100 per cent and we can't enter him.

"Whether it's a fracture or not we don't know. It will have to be x-rayed."

Two Violins, trained by Lou Cavalaris, stumbled during a workout Tuesday morning but Gardiner was not sure whether that mishap accounted for the swelling.

Two Violins who has won five straight races this year, galloped Wednesday morning and Cavalaris said then that he saw nothing wrong with the big bay gelding.

Cavalaris had scheduled another workout for the horse this morning but discovery of the swelling kept him in the barn.

Belleville Adopts Expos

June 28 will be the day Belleville adopts the Montreal Expos as their home team.

CJBQ Radio has received overwhelming response to the idea of five hundred - for their bus trip package to the Sunday afternoon Expos - New York Mets game.

The occasion will be recognized at Jarry Park — and over the 50-station Expo radio network — as Salute to Belleville Day.

A number of city officials will be making the trip to watch the Mets play the Montreal team Canadians hope will take the same rags - to - World Champion route.

Seats are reserved in the Belleville cheering section for ten Intelligencer paper carriers who will win the day's trip in a circulation contest.

Bata Braves Had Good Reason

Minor Soccer officials are attempting to find the key to an interlocking schedule between the Belleville Minor Soccer Junior teams and the Bata Braves squad.

The Bata team, which failed to show up for a Monday night contest with the Oddfellows Juniors, had an excellent reason. They hadn't been invited.

Belleville minor soccer secretary-treasurer, Fred Jones says there is "a lack of communications between the minor soccer system and the Bay of Quinte senior league."

Latta's 'Midge' Hard Luck Hurler

Terry "Midge" McTaggert, who has been the South Hastings League's "hard luck" pitcher this year, came through with a two - hitter against Plaza's Concrete last night — and lost.

An unearned run in the third inning gave Plaza's hurler Ted Abrams all the support he needed as he blanked McTaggert's Latta teammates on five hits.

The Latta pitcher has now lost two 3-2 games in the final inning after leading throughout both games, and last night's 1-0 pitching duel. He has yet to record a win.

An infield error, a stolen base and John Tweedy's RBI single accounted for the only run of the contest.

Abrams overpowered the Latta hitters for most of the game, striking out 12 batters in six innings. He didn't walk a man.

McTaggert was good for three while walking two batters. He allowed Tweedy's single and a double by third baseman Larry Adams.

Bob Smith and Murray Whitmore each had a pair of singles for the losers with Keith Dickey picking up the other safety.

The Belleville Kinsmen Reserve contest was postponed due to wet grounds.

Invasion From West Succeeds

Belleville West Hill baminas invaded the YMCA diamond to take a 5-4 decision from the East Hill crew in minor baseball action last night.

Ron and Don McTaggert hurled the win allowing four walks and fanning 10 batters. Tom Coughlin and Pat McKenny pitched for the losers walking six and striking out 11.

In a tyke division contest the Orphans found home plate seven times to stop Abambra 109 in a 7-4 game.

Peter Hall and Dennis Grier hurled the win, with Garry Stapely and Bill Sills were tagged with the loss.

John Murphy led the Orphan hitters with a pair of doubles while Glen Andrews had a double and single and Gordon Green a pair of singles.

Kitchen Cooking

Golden Mile mosquitoes swatted their Circle TV counterparts to the tune of 7-6-3 at Belleville Minor Soccer Association practice last night.

In a preview contest, Uptown Billiards and Bapst's Pizzeria battled to a 3-3 tie.

Economic Council Head Defends Growth Targets

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the Economic Council of Canada said Wednesday Canada must maintain high employment rates and carry on with its commitment to continuing high growth rates.

Arthur J. R. Smith, in a summary of possible developments by the year 2000, said the value of economic growth should not be discounted in planning for an improved quality of life.

Mr. Smith spoke at the opening of the three-day annual meeting of the Society of Industrial Accountants of Canada. Scheduled speakers at today's session include Canadian-born economist John Kenneth Galbraith and Jean-Luc Pepin, federal minister of industry, trade and commerce.

Mr. Smith said people have recently questioned "the value of economic growth as a continuing goal of our society."

While conceding "bigger does not necessarily mean better," he said "it is critically important to recognize that society's ability to tackle the problems of the environment, of housing, of education, of poverty and of health care will be significantly affected by the actual growth performance of the economy."

Mr. Smith predicted by the year 2000:

—A growth in the labor force to almost 16,000,000 from less than 8,500,000 now;

—A need for 6,000,000 new housing units, compared with 3,500,000 now in Canada, for both replacement units and additional families.

—Possibly 80 per cent of the population "will live in urban areas and more than a third of the total population could be centred around Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver."

—of course Apollo 14 Astronauts will also come back to earth on

Railway Unions May Aid Postmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Postmen returned to work in Northwestern Ontario and parts of southern Manitoba Wednesday as rotating strikes occurred in the western provinces.

And the Montreal situation was unsettled as negotiations continued in Ontario between the Council of Postal Unions and the treasury board in Ottawa.

Charles Smith, chairman of the Canadian Railway Labor Association, urged at a CRLA meeting in Montreal that its 16 affiliated railway unions support the postal workers' "fight against the Trudeau government's unrealistic and economically unsound wage guidelines."

Windsor postal workers returned to work today after a 22-day halt in mail delivery. The main post office staff was doubled, under a special agreement with the union, to clear a backlog estimated at 2,000,000 pieces of mail.

Late Wednesday pickets appeared outside the post office in Downsview north of Toronto, protesting overtime by casual workers. The pickets did not hold up delivery.

Earlier in the day postmen in various parts of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and northern Manitoba walked off the job on rotating strikes.

The British Columbia walkouts, at staggered intervals, upset point-to-point delivery and a large amount of mail had to be returned to points of origin.

Vancouver Island and the entire lower mainland of B.C., except downtown Vancouver, were affected. Also hit were the southern Fraser Valley, Quesnel, Smithers and Prince George in B.C., and Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Only Calgary escaped the strikes at major centres in Alberta. Post offices in Edmonton, Lethbridge, Grande Prairie, Red Deer and Medicine Hat were hit.

Shulman Says Mafia Men in City

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, who has been under police protection because of a threat on his life, said in the Ontario legislature Wednesday that two members of the Mafia are registered in the downtown Royal York Hotel under assumed names.

Dr. Shulman identified one of them as Jack Poisemans whom he described, as a Cosa Nostra courier from Switzerland. He promised to turn over the name of the second man to Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

Dr. Shulman, NDP member for Toronto High Park who announced Tuesday to the house that the Mafia has a contract out for his death, asked Mr. Wishart whether he knew of the two Mafia hotel guests and whether they were under police surveillance.

Mr. Wishart replied that he was unaware of the situation, but was certain police knew of the men if they did exist.

Dr. Shulman asked whether it was in the public interest to have visiting Mafia members travel freely in the province.

Mr. Wishart replied that it was not in the public interest to alert such persons that their presence is known and that they are under surveillance, thus hampering police work.

However, the minister said police cannot act in such a situation where an individual from outside the country is not guilty of any crime committed in the country being visited.

"That's why you don't necessarily lock up every criminal that comes into the country," Mr. Wishart said.

In the Commons at Ottawa Wednesday, Justice Minister John Turner said the co-operation of the RCMP in the Shulman case would be forthcoming if required.

But he said he thought the matter is primarily the concern of the Ontario attorney-general.

He was answering Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) who asked what measures the federal police were taking in response to Dr. Shulman's allegations about the Mafia.

Voting Rights of British Subjects Debated

OTTAWA (CP) — The voting rights of non-Canadian British subjects in Canada's federal elections ran into both sunshine and storms in the Commons Wednesday.

Proposing an amendment during debate on a government bill making major changes in the Canada Elections Act, Pierre De Bane (L—Matane) suggested taking away voting rights of all British subjects not Canadian citizens.

Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) proposed allowing British subjects eligible to vote in the 1968 election to retain that right for five years after the new legislation goes into force.

Wilbert Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) recommended that all British subjects be permitted to keep their voting rights. He suggested this privilege should be expanded to include citizens of France—"the second mother country."

The Commons was discussing the 258-page election—bill in committee of the whole—the step between second and third reading.

The legislation would lower the minimum voting age in federal elections to 18 from 21, extend voting rights to include all federal public servants abroad and provide proxy voting for electors away from home.

The bill would allow all British subjects eligible to vote in the 1968 election to vote in future Canadian elections. But it would not permit British subjects entering Canada since then to vote.

Ralph Stewart (L—Cochrane) said in support of Mr. De Bane's amendment that if a British immigrant wasn't interested enough in Canada to take out citizenship, he shouldn't get the vote. "Citizenship should be something special."

He also said that any Canadian who voted in today's British election downgraded his Canadian citizenship.

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) said there is no discrimination in giving British subjects the vote after one year of residence.

It was a reciprocal arrangement permitting many Canadians to vote in British elections.

Mr. Deachman said a certain type of non-Canadian citizen would be entrenched in the new legislation.

It would create three classes of citizens—British subjects with the right to vote, British subjects who do not have the right to vote and Canadians who, under the Citizenship Act, are British subjects.

Mr. Dinsdale said the legislation was "moving in a negative direction" by taking away voting rights of British subjects.

He urged that full voting rights be given to British subjects, and citizens of the Commonwealth and France who have landed immigrant status or who have lived in Canada for one year.

Ovide LaFrance (L—Montmorency), chairman of the Commons elections committee, said Mr. Deachman's proposal is fair and would ensure an orderly change.

Leo Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre) said that a landed immigrant resident for one year in Canada should be allowed to vote. He could have his franchise removed later if he failed to become a citizen within five years.

Andre Ouellet (L—Montreal Papineau) said there are 1,500,000 British subjects in Canada who don't become Canadians because they get special privileges.

Len Marchand (L—Kamloops-Cariboo) said Canada should have the right to restrict the vote to its own citizens. As an Indian, he had only won the right to vote in 1960.

Kingston Ownership Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Wednesday his department is investigating ownership of some former industrial lakefront land at Kingston.

He added in a Commons reply to David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, that the public interest would be protected if the land proved to be federal property.

Mr. Lewis said the land should not be handed over to some private developer. Ottawa should not abandon any claim to the land as, he said, the Ontario government has done.

Addicts Made, Not Born Says Research Team

WINNIPEG (CP) — A psychiatrist-psychologist team cast doubt today on the theory that there is an addiction-prone personality.

What seems more probable, they suggested, is that addiction to narcotics occurs when a strong link is made mentally between the absence of a drug and withdrawal stress.

The ideas were advanced by Dr. L. P. Gendreau, retired director of medical services for the federal solicitor-general's department, and his son Dr. Paul Gendreau of Trent University's psychology department.

They compared a group of criminals who were narcotic addicts with a similar group of non-addicts. They found no distinguishing personality differences between the two groups.

Individuals may start taking narcotics for many reasons, they suggest, but the evidence does not support a conclusion that there is a relationship between the addict's personality and the reason he is taking drugs.

New Unemployment Insurance Scheme Highlights Listed

OTTAWA (CP) — Following are highlights from the federal labor department's white paper on unemployment insurance in the 1970s, tabled in the Commons Wednesday:

Top limit on claims would be $150 weekly, compared with the present $53 weekly.

Coverage would be universal, adding about 1,180,000 workers to the rolls of contributors.

Women, now ineligible for benefits six weeks before and after pregnancy, would be able to draw up to 15 weeks of benefits because of pregnancy.

A worker whose earnings were interrupted by illness would be able to draw up to 15 weeks' insurance.

Employers with an annual insured payroll of $78,000 or less, and their employees, would pay lower contributions under the new plan.

A worker could claim benefits after as little as eight weeks' work in the previous year. Current requirement is 30 weeks' work over two years.

Those with at least 20 weeks' employment in the previous year would be eligible for full benefits.

Maximum period of benefits, now 18 weeks, would rise to 27 when the national annual average unemployment rate is four per cent or less, and 51 weeks when it is above four per cent.

Additional benefits would go to regions where the regional unemployment rate is above four per cent and exceeds the national rate by one per cent or more.

Self-employed people would no longer be eligible for benefits, although coverage for fishermen would continue until alternate protection plans are available.

Workers excluded from unemployment insurance under the present act would enter at a preferred contribution rate, rising to the full rate, Jan. 1, 1975.

A three-week bonus in benefits would go to workers between 65 and 70 who retire.

Workers seeking benefits could undergo at least two personal interviews, "primarily to help the individual," but also to reduce abuse of the plan.

A five-phase program would combine financial payments with efforts to get the beneficiary a job.

Current benefits for seasonal workers would be abolished because of the shorter eligibility period for benefits.

Breach of Privilege Charged In Early Report on Proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey told the Commons Wednesday that newspaper reports of the details of his white paper on unemployment insurance in advance of official tabling resulted from a breach of privilege by some members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Mr. Mackasey said two reporters "for the electronic media" were permitted to see summaries of the document Tuesday to enable them to decide whether to schedule special coverage.

He said one of the reporters later showed the summaries to a reporter of the Toronto Star which printed the story in its first edition Wednesday, four hours before the white paper was to be tabled in the Commons.

Mr. Mackasey said the action violated the long-established understanding that such material released in advance to the press gallery is not made public until presented to the Commons.

The issue was raised on a question of privileges by Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River) who said the advance report about the white paper was one more abuse of Parliament.

Employers Benefit If Layoffs Few

OTTAWA (CP)—The new formula of unemployment insurance contributions will contain incentives to employers to avoid layoffs, says a federal policy statement.

"An employer with a better-than-average layoff pattern will pay an amount equal to his employee," says the statement tabled in the Commons Wednesday.

"For employers with a high lay-off rate, the contribution for the same employee will be double—between $1.40 and $1.76."

The "experience rating" would apply only to employers with an annual insured payroll of more than $78,000.

Layoffs of students, those getting pensions, maternity cases and anyone leaving the job "without just cause" would not be counted.

If the payroll is under $78,000, the average employer contribution rate would be paid.

All flowers found growing high in the Alps have one thing in common. They all have dark-colored leaves to absorb heat.

Unemployment Decline Slow

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment declined last month, but at a slower rate than usual, leaving 513,000 people or 6.1 per cent of the labor force out of work.

A joint report by the Manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said that, taking usual seasonal factors into account, May unemployment was at the rate of 6.2 per cent of the labor force. This was the highest since February, 1962.

The unemployment rate in April was 6.6 per cent of the labor force on an actual basis, or 5.8 per cent on a seasonally-adjusted basis. In May last year it was 4.7 per cent and 4.8 per cent, respectively.

The report said there was a greater-than-usual increase in the number of people employed last month, with above-average gains in manufacturing, the service industries, and government jobs.

The 513,000 unemployed was a reduction of 31,000 from April unemployment figures. In 1968 and 1969, the May decline amounted to 48,000 and 70,000.

| | May April May 1975 1975 1974 |
|---|---|
| Labor force | 8,465 8,186 8,048 |
| Employed | 7,952 7,650 7,662 |
| Unemployed | 513 544 386 |

Unemployment rates by regions showed declines everywhere but in British Columbia. The rate in the Atlantic region declined to 8.6 per cent from 10.4 in April and 7.8 last year. In Quebec, it was down to 8.6 per cent from 8.9 in April, but up from 7.3 in May last year.

Ontario's unemployment rate declined to 4.2 per cent from 4.7 in April, but was up from 3.3 in May last year. The Prairies region was down last month to 4.5 per cent, compared with 5.4 in April and 2.6 in May last year.

British Columbia had 8.1 per cent of its labor force unemployed last month, compared with 8.6 in April and 4.5 in May last year. The report said the increase was due to indirect effects of labor disputes.

These are actual rates of unemployment for the month. Seasonally-adjusted rates are not made public by region.

The figures are based on a sample survey of some 35,000 homes, conducted during the week ended May 23. Not included in unemployment figures are students or housewives who have not sought outside work, people who are unable to work, and those who are retired or voluntarily idle.

The number of married men among the unemployed declined moderately—to 180,000 in May from 225,000 in April. The number of teen-agers without work eased only slightly, to 100,000 from 111,000, while there was a significant decline in the number of unemployed workers aged 20 to 64, to 395,000 from 424,000.

Of the 513,000 unemployed in May, 25,000 were on temporary layoff when the survey was taken, and another 125,000 were unemployed less than a month.

Women Will Get Maternity Leave

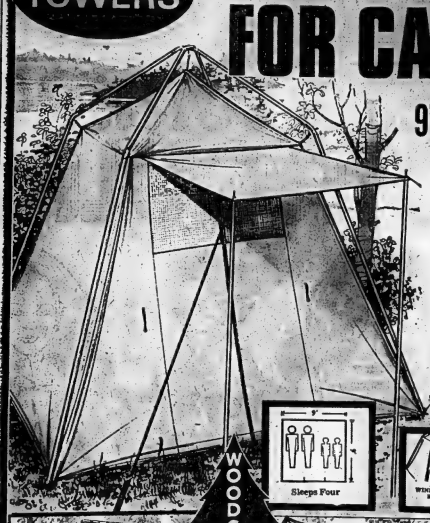
OTTAWA (CP) — Women workers will be entitled to draw maternity-leave payments for 15 weeks in a reform of the Unemployment Insurance Act proposed Wednesday by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

The reform is the result of a study of maternity leave policies in Canada that established last year and showing fewer than 10 per cent of women workers eligible under private plans for such benefits.

Under the new plan, women would be able to draw benefits of two-thirds of their average income for nine weeks before and six weeks after confinement, following a two-week waiting period.

Special unemployment benefits would also be paid, after the two-week period, to people off the job because of sickness. The maximum benefit period would be 15 weeks.

Under the same heading, the plan also proposes payment of a lump sum equal to benefits for three weeks to retiring workers between 65 and 70 who opt to receive Canada or Quebec Pension Plan benefits and who may be considered to have withdrawn from the labor force voluntarily. The three-week benefit is designed to tide them over the period between retirement and the beginning of pension payments.



To qualify for any of the special benefits, a worker will have to show he or she has been employed for at least 30 weeks in the previous year.

Shulman Letter Prompts Cass Investigation

TORONTO (CP) — Legislature Speaker Fred Cass will investigate the question of whether letters members send to cabinet ministers are privileged, he said Wednesday.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon had asked him to comment on a ruling Tuesday by deputy speaker Allan Hecker who said privileges had not been breached when Attorney-General Arthur Wishart showed a letter from Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) to another person.

Dr. Shulman said a libel suit against him had been started as a result.

Mr. Nixon said Mr. Reuter's ruling had shaken members' confidence in the privacy of communications with ministers.

Mr. Cass said he would discuss the matter with Premier Roberts. Had Mr. Cass been in the chair, he would have made the same ruling, he said, because privileges of the members extend only to what happens in the legislature.

Dr. Shulman had also been ruled out of order Tuesday when he said a threat had been made on his life because of statements he made in the legislature about the Mafia and senior police officers.

George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, said he is slightly worried about high air pollution readings in Hamilton and had been in touch with some major polluters.

He said they agreed last Tuesday to cut back operations and as a result index readings dropped two points.

Another Blast in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A small dynamite explosion caused minor damage early today at the rear entrance of post office sub station in suburban Longueuil.

Police said the explosion was caused by one stick of dynamite and shattered windows in the postal station and a nearby building. There were no injuries.

He told John Smith (PC—Hamilton Mountain) there is no danger workers would be laid off during an enforced production cutback.

Mr. Kerr also said he will seek compensation from Detroit in controlling air pollution over the city of Windsor. The province is to establish an air pollution index system in Windsor.

During the day, the legislature worked on bills in committee of the whole house. The Business Corporations Act was sent to third reading. Five years of government planning went into the bill.

The government had set public service department estimates for a time to give priority to R. — Bert Lawrenson, minister of financial and commercial affairs, announced that a committee will investigate the franchise business in the province and report by the end of this year. The study will include door-to-door sales of franchised goods such as cosmetics. Automobile dealerships and fried-chicken outlets will come under scrutiny.

Top NDP Post Battle Looms

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic party will probably be challenged for his job this fall by both MPP Stephen Lewis and Waffle-group candidate James Laxer, a 28-year-old Queen's University history lecturer.

Neither Mr. Lewis, 32, son of David Lewis, deputy leader of the federal NDP, nor Mr. Laxer, have yet declared publicly that they will challenge Mr. MacDonald at the provincial party's October convention in Toronto. But sources close to both say their candidacies now are certain.

Mr. Lewis, who is MPP for Scarborough West, is expected to announce his decision shortly after the Ontario legislature adjourns for the summer on June 26.

The Waffle group, a left-leaning ginger group in the NDP which is led nationally by Melville Watkins, a University of Toronto economist, is scheduled to hold a conference of Ontario members July 4 and 5 when it will make a final decision on whether to run a candidate.

Mr. Watkins himself is expected to be chosen as the Waffle group's candidate for federal NDP leadership contest at a national Waffle conference held during early August.

In Ontario, the Waffle group says its decision on whether or not to run Mr. Laxer is dependent on Mr. Lewis' decision. The group declared at a March conference which attracted 120 supporters that it would prefer the October convention to devote itself entirely to policy decisions.

However, the group added that if Mr. MacDonald, 46, were challenged by another candidate, then it would ask both the challenger and Mr. MacDonald to endorse the group's Ontario policy resolutions.

If neither endorsed the manifesto, then the Waffle group, would field a candidate.

That makes a lot of "ifs" but at least one is a forgone conclusion. Neither Mr. MacDonald nor Mr. Lewis could abandon stated party policy to endorse a manifesto put forward by a minority group.

Mr. Lewis is opposed, in particular, to the Waffle group's call for nationalization of American-owned industries operating in Canada and insists that nationalization is not the only way to fight U.S. domination of Canadian industry.

His criticisms of the national Waffle group's manifesto, which was defeated at the last federal NDP convention in Winnipeg, has been the sharpest of any well-known NDP leader.

Supporters of Mr. Lewis say that, if he runs, he will have the active backing of at least 13 of the other 19 NDP MPPs who sit with him and Mr. MacDonald in the 117-seat legislature.

His weakest spot is lack of support from trade unionist members of the Ontario party. During last month's convention of the Canadian Labor Congress in Edmonton, a group of 28 of Ontario's most prominent labor leaders decided they do not want to see Mr. MacDonald challenged for his job in October. They told Mr. Lewis they could not support his candidacy this year.

However, Lewis supporters say organized labor is not unanimous in its opposition to Mr. Lewis and that he has decided to run despite the Edmonton decision.

Mr. Laxer, who was prominent in drafting the Waffles manifesto defeated in Winnipeg, is a former editor of the Canadian University Press and a PhD candidate in Canadian history.

The challenges will be the second Mr. MacDonald has faced since he became leader of the Ontario NDP 17 years ago.

In 1958 deputy leader James Renwick was defeated in a bid to win Mr. MacDonald's leadership job—a defeat he attributes mainly to the solid opposition of trade union delegates.

Life Sentence For Kidnapper With Bad Record

SIMCOE (CP) — A 25-year-old man who held a 15-year-old girl prisoner in his car for 15 minutes was sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday for kidnapping.

The girl told an all-male jury Henderson held a knife on her and hit her in the face, but she wrestled the knife from his hand as he drove.

She finally escaped from the car and ran to a farmhouse as he drove away.

Judge J. A. P. Brickenden noted that Henderson, released from a sanitary in December, 1968, had a record of convictions for sex crimes dating back to 1956.

He said sentences received in the past were the maximum and said "I don't see why I should not pass the maximum sentence also."

Henderson was identified more than two weeks after the kidnapping when he was arrested on an unrelated charge of assault.

To Return Licences

CORNWALL (CP) — Administrator Frances Flanigan of the city's social welfare department said Wednesday the department is returning car licence plates and ownership registrations to unemployed workers on welfare.

Miss Flanigan said in an interview that about 30 sets of plates and registrations will be returned and no more collected.

The practice of asking for the plates and registrations before giving welfare to the unemployed came into dispute Monday when chairman Lawrence Shaw of the Cornwall and District Building and Construction Trades Council wrote a letter of protest to city council.

His said it was vital for an unemployed construction worker to have access to a car if a job opportunity suddenly arose.

But at city council meeting Monday night, a motion to continue the policy of asking for the plates and registrations was defeated seven to four, thereby rescinding the practice.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Many a youngster suffers from headaches in solitude, and somehow they are misunderstood. Not only does he have the headache to contend with, but a parent who is punitive; who spanks him and thinks of him as a neurotic.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What can a mother do with a 5-year-old boy who becomes obstreperous and keeps complaining of headaches? I've tried everything from trying to be nice all the way to giving him a good spanking. Otherwise he seems healthy. He has had his tonsils out and no trouble was found with his sinuses. I think I've got a young neurotic on my hands. I'll appreciate any suggestions. Mrs. A.

Comment: I can't even guess what's wrong, but I can imagine your frustration. And your child's. Therefore, the first suggestion I make is that you discontinue the spankings. (If you have ever had a headache yourself, I doubt you would welcome that kind of therapy.)

Now, from way back here I'll make just one guess, even though I said earlier that I shouldn't. Have you considered the possibility that your little boy is allergic to tomatoes? If so, I believe that this is a commonly overlooked cause of headaches in youngsters — and in adults, too.

I recall one "obstreperous" little boy like your own who became a sweet, easily manageable child, when the doctor discovered he was allergic to tomatoes. No more tomatoes, no more headaches and irritability.

Then there was the little girl who became depressed, couldn't go out to play, because "I've got a headache, Mother." She, too, was thought of as a budding neurotic until the doctor detected chocolate from her diet.

Headaches, nervousness, depression can come on within hours after taking the offending food — and these symptoms may last for a day or two. Common offenders in the diet are corn, tomatoes, citrus fruits, chocolate, eggs, wheat, milk, fish, nuts. Sometimes vitamins or other medications will set off headaches like a time-bomb.

Therefore, Mrs. A., I suggest that you take your son to a pediatrician or to an allergist for study. Remember that most normal children with headaches are not neurotics. As the saying goes, something real is "bugging them." Your job is to be patient rather than keep punishing him for being a bad boy.

* * * * *

For Mr. B.: Unless you can find good reason for it, I suggest that you take a train, plane or bus on your proposed transcontinental trip to California. Two months after having had a severe coronary artery heart attack is too soon, I think, to do the driving yourself.

"Leave the driving to us" makes better sense. Let the pilot, engineer or bus driver take on the responsibility.

For example, after studies on the effect of driving on coronary patients, Samuel Bellet, MD, cardiologist of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, concluded that persons with coronary artery disease should generally refrain from driving in hazardous situations and for long periods of time. In many such patients there were significant changes in the electrocardiograms during driving.

Children Frequently Suffer Headaches

For Mrs. T.: In many cases, hiatal hernia does not cause symptoms. Therefore, if you continue to have abdominal complaints, you may need further study: of gall bladder, ulcer possibility, pancreas, large bowel, etc. Sometimes an innocent hiatal hernia gets all the blame.

Airport Taxi War Possible at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto taxicab official warned Wednesday of "violence, drive-ins and tie-ups" at Toronto International Airport if an "underhanded verdict" is given today in Ottawa on whether city cab drivers can pick up passengers at the airport.

Al Sadoff of the Metropolitan Toronto Taxicab Conference said in an interview he was told by Philip Givens, Liberal member of Parliament for York West, that the exclusive contract of Air Terminal Transport Ltd. to serve the airport had been extended for one year.

Mr. Givens said in an interview he had learned this from H. Pit Lessard, chairman of the standing committee on transportation, and Transport Minister Don Jamieson, in Parliament earlier in the day.

Mr. Lessard later denied that he had spoken to Mr. Givens in Parliament about the licence, and said the report was still being prepared and would not be released until today.

Mr. Jamieson could not be reached for comment, but Robert Turner, press officer of the transport department, denied the licence had been renewed or extended.

"Air Terminal Transport will continue to operate under a pleasure licence, on a day-to-day basis, that can be terminated at any time, if the committee's report recommends it."

Mr. Sadoff said that Toronto taximen were being treated in the most underhanded and contemptible manner.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 15

Your birthday today: Organization and preparation done by you up to now is put to real use this year, and the results come in strong. Romance is not simple or easy, but finds a definite expression. Most of today's natives have the faculty for finding a different way of doing the ordinary things — and making them pay.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Something has to give way now so have a care about casually blundering into serious confrontations. Repercussions of past events tend to pile up.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): home to roost, and if you've been doing the right thing, you can crow about it. Even so, unsettled conditions test your serenity.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Today your chickens come home. Wind up the week's affairs without getting into any hassle over money. Take no responsibility for the funds or belongings of others.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Don't let yourself be rushed into anything. Nobody is going to be very pleased anyway, so hold your place until it's time to move on.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Completing the week's enterprises turns out to be complex. There is no short cut now. Just settle down to work out the details.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Both home and career demand too much of you today. Conflicts are better resolved philosophically than projected onto others. Speculative disposition of funds is not favored.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your creative drive scatters somewhat so that it is not so productive. Words and figures are misleading. Moderation is indicated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Impulsive action brings out far more response than you want today. Strong promotions of coming changes and events should be taken in stride.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Opposition from an associate creates a temporary stoppage. All your tact comes into use, a trifle late. Persistence is the answer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The basic soundness of your ideas is tested. Where it does not depend on the co-operation of people in authority, success is within reach.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today all and sundry balk. Don't make an issue of a momentary lack of assistance or practical approach.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Today your friends are not the least bit helpful to your most important projects. Staying out of any financial involvement is imperative.

A most ambitious attempt to utilize St. Lawrence Seaway facilities has come from Morton Terminal Ltd., in Windsor. Morton's have reactivated a deep-water terminal and have spent $5,000,000 developing it. It is the only terminal in the port where the biggest seaway ships can dock. (CP Photo)

Public and Separate Schools To Be Able to Share Courses

TORONTO (CP) — Amendments to Ontario's education legislation, introduced in the legislature Wednesday, will permit public and separate school boards to exchange and share courses offered within their schools.

An amendment to the Public Schools Act permits the boards to agree to allow public school pupils to receive education in separate schools where the same course is not available or easily accessible in a public school.

Amendments to the Separate Schools Act include a similar provision.

The bill, however, is amended in several ways to bring it in line with the new organization of county boards and regional governments.

The definition of a separate school supporter is changed to include a specific description for unorganized territories in Northern Ontario. A separate school supporter in a legal municipality is a person whose name is entered on the voters' list as a separate school supporter. But because there is no municipal organization in sections of the north, the bill described as a separate school supporter as a person of 21, British subject and Roman Catholic, whose name is on the assessment roll of the territory.

Sections of the act dealing with arbitration of teacher contracts are amended to permit the arbitrators to change their decision if the school board has new evidence to present.

The bill provides for payment of the money a municipality is asked to raise for a separate school board.

The amendments provide a procedure for deciding the number of members to be elected to a separate school board when city boundaries have been changed or a new city created.

Sukarno Reported Near Death

JAKARTA (AP) — Former Indonesian president Sukarno was reported near death today, and doctors said, Now 69, Sukarno has suffered from kidney stones, high blood pressure and a circulatory ailment for several years.

"We are doing our best, but the old man is very weak," the doctors said. Now 69, Sukarno has suffered from kidney stones, high blood pressure and a circulatory ailment for several years.

He entered hospital Tuesday night in a coma.

He has been under house arrest since he was deposed in 1966.

Once the playboy of the Eastern world, Sukarno reluctantly granted a divorce to one of his five official wives in 1967, to two others last year—among them his first wife Fatmawati—and to his fifth, Ratna Sari Dewi, a 29-year-old former Tokyo nightclub hostess, last January.

His only remaining wife is Hartini, who was prevented from seeing him for two years until his 49th birthday party at his residence on June 6.

Stunning Upset Scored By Heath's Conservatives

Exuberant Stock Market Has Billion-pound Celebration

LONDON (Reuters) — Exuberant London stock market dealers staged a £1,850,000,000 celebration today with the news that an election victory for the Conservative party seemed imminent.

An instant boom from the time the exchange opened gave share prices their largest one-day lift in recent memory pushing The Financial Times index up 22.8 points to 358.4.

As overnight results showed the Conservatives likely to oust Prime Minister Wilson's Labor party from power, speculators who went into the stock exchange Thursday with buying orders made fortunes.

Britain's biggest industrial company, Imperial Chemical Industries, saw its shares jump more than four shillings, adding £100,000,000 to the company's over-all market value.

By noon British time, the pound crept up to just over its official $2.40 U.S. parity rate to stand up $2.4003.

Edward Heath

Heath Has Pick Of Much Talent For His Cabinet

He is surrounded by an experienced group of Commoners, several of whom have served in previous Conservative administrations and others who have served in Britain's traditional opposition "shadow cabinet."

A sure bet for the job of foreign and Commonwealth secretary is 66-year-old Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 1963-64 prime minister, 1960-63 foreign secretary and in recent years chief Tory spokesman on foreign affairs.

Ian Macleod, 56, the party's spokesman on finance, appears ticketed for the post of chancellor of the exchequer. He is a former health minister and labor minister.

Reginald Maudling, deputy leader of the party, was chancellor of the exchequer in the last Conservative government but there was speculation that he would get something like the over-all co-ordinating role he has in the shadow cabinet with the title of first secretary and deputy prime minister.

Another leading Tory figure, Quinton Hogg, is reported possibly headed for the House of Lords as lord chancellor, a high-ranking cabinet post which involves seniority of the judiciary as well as presiding over the Lords.

Sir Keith Joseph, who held a couple of ministries in the previous Conservative government, could become president of the board of trade.

Another former minister, Geoffrey Rippon was expected to be defence secretary after holding that shadow assignment for years.

Government Turns Down $100 Top Fine for Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — The LeDain commission recommendation that possession of marijuana, whether marijuana, LSD, methedrine or heroin, be punished by no more than a $100 fine was immediately rejected by the government today.

Health Minister John Munro, tabling the report in the Commons, said the government doesn't believe "all-encompassing changes" are justified now. The final report of the LeDain commission would be awaited with interest, he said.

Mr. Munro said the government, on the commission recommends, will recommend to Parliament that marijuana be transferred from the Narcotics Control Act to the Food and Drugs Act.

Marijuana possession would become an offence subject to a graduated system of fines rather than a jail term.

Health Care Centre

Ontario Buys Camp Picton

PICTON — Prospects that this town could become the site of an important health care centre for the young appeared confirmed today with the close of federal-provincial negotiations for purchase of Camp Picton.

The Ontario government plans to convert camp facilities—with an accommodation for more than 1,200 — into a centre for the care of mentally retarded children, authorities believe.

Full details on the health department plans for the camp were not immediately signified. Purchase details were unknown about the transaction that saw the camp abandoned by the military two years ago — transferred to a new, active role.

Neither was it clear when work might begin converting the orderly quartet of buildings to health department purposes.

A spokesman for the Ontario Health Department — which concluded the deal with the federal Defence Assets Corp. — said not even a possession date had yet been arranged.

Legal documentation of the transaction still has to be completed, he said.

The official said the campsite is "predominantly" to be used by the health department — apparently to ease pressure on the Smiths Falls hospital for the mentally retarded.

One authority in the field — Leonard Vellieman, director of Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants at Plainfield — said he believed the Smith Falls waiting list was about 400.

Sky Spy Launched

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The United States Air Force today rocketed a spy satellite into space to gather a vast amount of intelligence data about Russia, China, North Vietnam and other potential trouble spots.

The air force clamped a secrecy label on the launching and made no advance announcement.

Sources reported the satellite is the first of an operational series whose main job is to provide early warning of missile attack either from land or submarine.

Soyuz 9 Ends Flight

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union's Soyuz 9 spacecraft returned to earth today after a marathon 5½ weeks in space, Moscow radio announced.

The two-man craft, piloted by veteran cosmonaut Col. Andrian Nikolayev, 40, was launched into orbit June 1.

Nikolayev's companion on the space marathon, which broke the world record for space endurance, was a civilian flight engineer, Vitali Sevastyanov, 34.

Forty Seat Margin Likely

LONDON (CP) — Edward Heath's Conservatives attained on outright majority in the Commons today, completing one of the most stunning political upsets in modern British history.

The underdog at long odds before Thursday's general election, Heath ousted Prime Minister Wilson and his Labor government, ending 5½ years of Labor rule.

Heath, who stuck to bread-and-butter issues in his campaign and promised to lower taxes, led the Tories back to power for the first time since 1964. And he ended Wilson's dreams of leading the first prime minister to win three elections in a row.

It was the most startling overthrow since Labor's Clement Attlee forced out Winston Churchill in 1945. It made Heath, 53, the first bachelor prime minister to occupy 10 Downing Street since Lord Balfour was elected in 1902.

A statement from Downing Street said Wilson had asked to see the Queen to tender the resignation of his government.

The Queen then will summon Heath to Buckingham Palace and ask him to form a new government.

The Tories won their 316th seat—and a majority in the 630-seat Commons—shortly after noon. Labor at that point had 278 seats.

The final majority of the Tories was expected to be around 30 seats.

Before going to bed, Heath, grinning broadly, said: "I am sure I, a lot of Conservatives, and the non-voting Speaker, Dr. Horace King, who retained his seat.

The sharp swing to the Conservatives confounded the public opinion polls—all but one had showed Heath and his forces trailing badly.

The lone poll to pick the Conservatives was Opinion Research by a margin of one per cent.

"Not since Mr. Truman's surprise victory over Gov. Dewey (in 1948) for the American presidency has there been such a turn-up for the electoral book," said The Daily Tele-graph.

"Never have so many polls been so wrong about an election result."

Heath fought his campaign largely on domestic issues, promising to curb rising prices, cut taxes and combat inflation by reducing government spending.

Labor voters by the thousands were lulled by the polls and the prohibitive 10-to-1 odds favoring the 54-year-old Heath as a shoo-in. They neglected the polls to bask in the country's hot June sun. The voter turnout was in the neighborhood of 60 per cent when 75 or 80 per cent was expected.

In the 1966 election, which Labor won by a landslide majority of nearly 100 seats, 75.8 per cent of the electorate voted. The post-war record is 83.5 per cent in 1950.

One major foreign policy change appears in prospect. The

Montreal Support Key to Yardmen's Dispute

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"Montreal is sticking a knife in Belleville's back". A Montreal CN yard foreman said today.

Montreal yardmen have rallied to support the Belleville yardmen in hooking sick to protest the plan to have Belleville under integration with Trenton, in a 1969 contract.

Barry Hall, a Montreal yard foreman said a few Montreal yardmen booked sick early this morning after a team of Belleville men went to Montreal to plead their case before the rain of local 414 there. They have since returned to work.

Mr. Hall said part of the reason for the Montreal yardmen's failure to support Belleville lay with lack of time for organization on the area; the men work extends for 40 miles and there are more than 700 men to be contacted.

He said that in his opinion, the next move for yardmen of the United Transportation Union is to "get together and take out an injunction against the union."

"This action (booking sick in protest) is jeopardizing the company, which is not responsible for the internal union affairs," he said.

"Belleville won't give up the fight as long as we know we are fighting for something that is right," said Albert Leyland, spokesman for Belleville yardmen, when he heard of the situation in Montreal at noon today.

Yardmen in Capreol and Ottawa who booked sick yesterday, returned to work early this morning pending a decision by Montreal yardmen whether or not to follow the Belleville group out of the yards.

At noon a meeting was in progress at yardmen's headquarters at Engineers' Hall between the Belleville yardmen and Alleyne McAllister, assistant general chairman of Belleville local 403 of the United Transportation Union.

He was reported to be urging the resolution of the local union feud between the trainmen and the yardmen.

Last night, George Van de Water acting general manager of the Kildare area rented a room in a Belleville motel and invited yardmen to meet him individually to discuss returning to work. At 11 p.m. he visited Engineers' Hall and told the members: The CN could not change its policy of putting men delinquent in their union dues on the spare board for call when needed.

The yardmen's walkout was sparked by the CN's move in accord with its contract with the union, to remove preference of service from yardmen who have refused to pay dues as a form of protest against their union.

He asked that both those paid up, and those delinquent in their dues, retain their seniority rights and preference of service on return to work.

Yardmen's spokesmen said this morning a good attitude continued to exist between company and men, and stressed that the dispute was an internal union matter.

Mr. Van de Water said he hoped to "get together with the men later today" and he added he was "hopeful they will get back to work."

Switching and assembling of trains in the Belleville yard continues to be handled by trainmen.

Park Dale Question Tackled by Board

A resolution to forward a memorandum about the relocation of the Park Dale community park to the Joint Parks and Recreation Areas Committees to help in reaching a decision on the park question, was passed by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night.

The memorandum sets down all steps that would have to be taken to develop the 6.05 acres of parkland bulldozing hills, filling in and partially. The partial development would leave the present community ball standing.

Complete development would necessitate the installation of sanitary sewers, storm sewers and water, which can be linked up with existing lines with the exception of shallow sanitary sewers on Sherwood Street. These are considered too shallow and would cause grading problems.

The sanitary sewers on Parkdale Drive would reduce the grade of problem of storm sewer outlets on either Parkdale Drive or Crescent Blvd. would create grading problems.

The memorandum recommends that "because of the depth of two of the three sanitary sewer outlets; and both storm sewer outlets, a considerable depth of fill will be required ... "

Restrictions on housing types and the clearing of existing buildings form the remaining problems to be faced when development of the park is undertaken.

The memorandum concludes, "It is apparent from the comparisons that from the standpoint of development potential for a residential subdivision, the land to the east of the Park Dale school site would be more economical to develop; less restrictive with respect to housing type and more efficient in land utilization than the existing park at Hill Crescent."

The report also outlines what is considered to be further considerations, which are primarily financial. These are:

-Because of development potential, the purchase price of the school site would likely be higher than the sale price of the existing park.

-Six different parcels of land owned by six different persons compose the proposed site, which would be more expensive than purchasing from a single owner.

-The expenses and difficulty of developing the site would probably make it less marketable than if the site were undeveloped, possibly resulting in a further price reduction if an early sale is desired.

-A loss of money-payable equipment (for example, $2,400 was given as the price of the wading pool) and facilities and the loss of either the existing building under full development or the loss if the building suites if the centre remanded standing under partial development.

R. Nix, a representative of the Park Dale Community denounced the report.

"You'll never sell this report to the Park Dale people ... it doesn't really show the role of the park ... we've had 10,000 wading receptions, public meetings and the like to meet our expenses."

Planning Director R. J. Kenny explained that the board was attempting to follow the Mid-Ontario Commission-by-school facilities.

"It's going to cost a lot of money to move the park to a position beside the school, and although it's not this board's decision, I personally don't think it's feasible to move the park ... we'll have to leave it up to the Recreation and Parks Committees."

Alderman E. Orr asked "ideally, it isn't wise to have to raise money by weddings, public meetings or other means, but the community hall will have to do this for a while."

Missing Boy Seen Today

TRENTON (Staff) — Town police are continuing their search for a youngster who failed to return home from school Thursday afternoon.

Donald Forsyth, 11, of 1 Weeks Avenue, was reported missing at 4 p.m. Thursday when he didn't return home from College Street School.

Police say that classmates saw the boy in the schoolyard this morning before classes began, but that the boy again disappeared.

Hees Urges Restraints

OTTAWA — George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, says pensities should be imposed on those who do not live within government price guidelines.

Mr. Hees told the Commons last night that lack of government action to keep down pay and production costs was "particularly alarming".

Mr. Hees urged the government to provide tax incentives to industry to encourage productivity and to help prices within government guidelines.

Prime Minister Trudeau should meet with labor leaders to "persuade them" of the need to keep Canadian products competitive and provide more jobs.

Mr. Hees also urged assistance to exporters handicapped by the effects of the floating dollar.

During May, he said, unemployment had decreased from 8.6 per cent to 6.2 per cent, of the work force — an increase of 128,000 over last year.

Good Luck

Downtown Belleville received a small facelift yesterday as Maurice Belanger applied a coat of white paint to the upper storey of White's Dominion Hardware store on Front Street while Bill Donovan held the long extension ladder. Passersby walked unconcerned beneath the ladder as if bad luck didn't exist any more.

Kellet Denies Charges

L. A. Kellett, secretary of local 403 of the United Transportation Union here, this morning denied that he faces union disciplinary action as result of his activities with the Trainmen's Existence Unit.

At the meeting of Engineers' Hall Wednesday, yard foreman Ernest Belanger and members of the yardmen's group now locked in an internal union feud with trainmen, claimed such charges had been brought against Kellett.

This morning, Kellett said he is secretary of the Trainmen's Existence Unit in local 403, and the formation of the group originated in Toronto.

The TEU successfully led a protest to the Cleveland headquarters of UTU, which resulted in trainmen retaining their seniority over yardmen. The Belleville yardmen's refusal to pay union dues and current walkout stem from the decision obtained by the trainmen.

Boom crane makes short work of gutted building, the scene of the recent fire on Murphy Street in Trenton. Destroyed in the blaze was the Karleton Dog Salon on King Street, the Trenton Guitar Studio, other businesses and apartments, while smoke and water damage resulted to adjoining buildings.

Picton

The area under transfer covers about 620 acres, 250 buildings — mostly houses, but including two big mess buildings.

The mess areas also are laid out on the same principle as a hospital floor — rooms with single, double, triple bed spaces and bathrooms on each corridor. They also have large sunrooms.

The mayor, well - informed on all aspects of the long - drawn negotiations, said the camp "as far as I can tell is to be used for retarded children."

Such a facility also would have a fair - sized impact on the local economy, the mayor said.

The ratio of employment was one new per patient, Mayor McFarland said.

City Tenants To Be Quizzed

Approximately twenty per cent of the more than 4,000 residents of Belleville who reside in rented accommodation, will be asked to answer a series of questions to be distributed by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board at the end of June.

The questionnaire is being compiled by R. Danziger, current development planner on such subjects as family characteristics, and income.

The compiled information taken from a cross-section of the rental residents, will be coded for possible use on computer punch-cards.

The board proposes to approach Loyalist College on this matter, but as yet, no decisions have been reached as to where or when the coded information will be used.

History Revisited By Senior Citizens

Close to 275 senior citizens from the Quinte district had a date with history yesterday as they visited the old O'Hara Mill site northwest of Madoc, residents of Hastings Manor and members of senior citizens' organizations from Belleville, Madoc and Tweed, were guests of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the pioneer mill site northwest of Madoc.

The senior citizens travelled by bus, enjoyed a noon picnic - style luncheon courtesy of the Moira Authority, and later inspected the 130-year-old sawmill, the O'Hara homestead with its period furniture, saw a shingle mill in operation and viewed old time farm machinery now superseded by modern mechanization.

It was a day to remember for the senior citizens and they did a lot of reminiscing. The noon picnic lunch was provided by members of the Madoc St. John The Baptist Anglican Church Women.

Graham Bell, chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority, and Belleville Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, chairman of the Authority education and information advisory committee officially welcomed the guests.

The O'Hara Mill visit by the senior citizens was organized by Mrs. Jeffrey as part of the local observation of Conservation Week being held across Ontario June 13-20.

For the majority of the visitors it was the first trip to the O'Hara Mill which was built about 1867. The mill did custom sawing for pioneer settlers and provided much of the lumber for early farm construction.

The two oldest people on the grounds were George Ketchem and Miss Laurie Towner — both 92.

Normally the restored mill is operated weekends for the benefit of visitors, but yesterday, due to deterioration of some of the water - powered operating equipment, the mill was silent and senior citizens had to be content with a static display.

But they did see a demonstration of an old shingle mill with equipment operated by Fred Winterrowd turning out cedar shingles, which a century ago covered most of the area farm buildings.

They also sat in old time school desks in a century old log school moved to the site from Elzevir township and were able to inspect at close hand spinning wheels, old time kitchen equipment and other period household furnishings.

"They had a wonderful time!" said Authority chairman Bell. "They really appreciated the visit."

The comment was echoed by Kenneth Yorke, Hastings Manor superintendent.

"They did a lot of reminiscing," agreed Mr. Yorke as the senior citizens boarded buses for the return trip.

Chamber Investigates Revenue Possibilities

Bingo games and a lottery were two of the possibilities suggested last night by directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce as potential revenue making projects.

Directors decided last night at their regular meeting to approach city council to investigate these possibilities.

"In other business, assent was given that the Chamber should sponsor another winter carnival this year and it was felt desirable that the proposed lottery be on a snowmobile, as this would be particularly attractive at carnival time.

Jack Trembley will head the winter carnival committee and the committee will prepare proposals for the regular directors meeting on Sept. 5.

Mr. Trembley reported on the progress of the Belleville Shooter Committee which is about to commence publication shortly of a newsletter of local events entitled "What's Happening".

The publication will be distributed to hotel and motels in the area so that they can be placed in rooms and suites to give visitors information on special occurrences in the community.

Jack Mosley reported during the meeting that a new exterior sign was being prepared for the chamber office and that signs were also being prepared to direct tourists to the chamber bureau.

He also mentioned that the tourist brochures, commissionaires for the chamber, are being prepared as well. The brochures will feature reproductions of local points of interest by Quinte artist Frank Johnston and there will be an anticipated press run of 50,000 copies.

Directors also decided last night to ask the chamber's committee of ex-presidents to investigate the possibility of starting a convention bureau; the desirability of such a service was raised at the city council meeting on June 12.

Mafia Threat

True or false, the reported threat to the life of Dr. Morton Shulman comes as no surprise following his recent statement in the Ontario legislature regarding alleged links between the Mafia and business personalities in Canada as well as with the Ontario provincial police.

Dr. Shulman even made a flying visit to Sicily, where the Mafia has its origins, to carry on his investigations there. Now back in Toronto, the NDP member for High Park has said his family is terrified by the threat and consequently he will take no further part in the investigations.

We can understand his concern. The Mafia's sinister tentacles are a blight on the North American scene. In Canada at least they impinge on what is largely a law-abiding society and it should be the duty of both government and law enforcement authorities to ensure that the threat posed b this organization is kept in check.

Windfall

There are times when what amounts to a virtual eviction notice can bring a householder a tidy windfall. Consider for instance the people living in the area north of Montreal now being developed to accommodate traffic in the jumbo jet age.

First phase of the new airport is underway and about 600 residents of the century - old village of Ste. Monique have until June 30 to move out. The other half of the population must leave by October.

Ste. Monique will be erased to make way for an air terminal with a capacity of seven million passengers per year and two runways. Some 9,500 people live in the expropriated area but most of them, according to The Globe and Mail, will be allowed to stay for ten or 20 years because their homes are not within the "noise corridors".

Meanwhile about 300 property owners have settled with Government evaluators already and another 750 have received substantial advances to resettle. Total expropriation costs total $90 million and settlements and advances thus far total nearly $20 million.

Residents of St. Monique have bought homes in the surrounding area, and some have bought farms in the L'Original area in eastern Ontario. They have expressed satisfaction with compensation and aid by the government, but complain that land values have tripled just outside the expropriated territory.

Of course a fellow does not have to stay right in the area. He could always retire, get away from the rat race, perhaps even move to another country where his dollar will be more valuable still. One way or another, the new airport is going to mean a billion dollar boost for the Quebec economy over the next 15 years — and, it pays to own a house in Ste. Monique!

Supreme Court Ruling Creates New Loopholes

Conscientious Objector Staus Under Scrutiny in U, S,

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The question, in effect, was whether the law's interpretation of the United States military draft law didn't give the advantage to the well-off, well-educated young man over, say, a "poor cotton-chopper" in the U.S. South.

"There is some justification for what you say—but it has always been so."

The thrust of the question at a Tuesday press briefing on the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling 24 hours earlier was that a bright, articulate young man could more easily convince the draft board of an ethical or moral basis for his opposition to military service than could a poor lad who held some vague but deep belief in killing.

Quite frankly, said Tarr, the "intelligent man has always had some advantage before the law."

The chittlings pointed up yet another, broader inequity in U.S. draft law that has convinced many in Congress, within the Johnson administration and most emphatically among American youth that the whole idea should be scrapped in favor of a well-paid, well-trained professional volunteer army.

But because such a force is impossible in the immediate future—certainly while the U.S. is engaged in the Asian war—the country must get through as best it can with the present draft arrangement.

In the view of many, the task is made more difficult by the far more liberal interpretation put on the conscientious objector status in Monday's court ruling.

In effect it says that one may claim conscientious objector status even though he expresses disavows a religious basis for his anti-war beliefs. Additionally, it reaffirms a 1965 unanimous decision that the draft law does not limit exemptions to those whose religious denominations are on record against all wars.

One may claim an ethical or moral source for beliefs against war other than the traditional concept of religion, God or a Supreme Being.

There are more than 4,000 draft boards around the country which sift in judgment on the moral, and ethical beliefs of young men who come before them claiming such beliefs prevent them from bearing arms.

The suggestion that came up time and time again at Tuesday's press briefing was whether the law doesn't pose an "impossible" task before the boards in trying to assess the sincerity of such claimants.

Tarr agreed that it might, but emphasized that no young man would become "the judge in his own case."

He announced guidelines to assist boards under which a draftee would have to convince the board that his belief is sincere. That belief must be opposed to all war—not just the Asian war; that he has taken into account the thoughts of other wise men; that he has consulted "some system of training."

If he has not done this—if his beliefs are not the result of "some religious kind of training"—it would be difficult, Tarr is confident, to convince a board otherwise.

Others are not convinced. As some critics have already suggested, if the government doesn't soon create a voluntary army the Supreme Court will—by creating loopholes for all who don't want to sign up.

The Friendly Meterman

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

While visiting Cobourg, I happened to be talking to the Cobourg Sentinel - Star and was surprised to read something good about our police force.

There has been much said on the program "What do you think" about Belleville and I decided to pass this along.

We have nothing but praises for our city and are certainly proud to live here.

(MRS.) DORIS BENSON,

In Belleville Saturday afternoon, we blushed as the parking meterman saw a violation. He tested the meter — the money had run out. He looked both ways up and down the street for the driver. Then he spoke to the kids in the car's backseat — did they know which store their mother or dad had gone into?

One of them climbed out, ran into a nearby paint store and brought out Mother. The jovial meterman busted through the pocket to make change for her quarter and she put a nickel in the meter. As he smilingly walked down the street, we spoke to him how nice it was to see a meterman treat the public with liking and respect.

"I couldn't live with myself any other way," he replied, "I try to be decent with everybody. I don't just try to catch them."

What a wonderful bit of good advertising for Belleville!

Some 1,800 scrolls from the City of Belleville in honor of wartime service have been received by veterans in Belleville and district, reported Alderman Everett Liddle.

Former student at Belleville Collegiate and graduate this year from Guelph Agricultural College with a BA degree in Agriculture is Donald A. Cook of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dever, Sidney St. has received his Master of Science degree from the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Vivian Cannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cannon, Victoria Ave. who is a pupil of Mr. Tate, Albert College, and also a student of St. Michael's High School, of this city, has received her degree of Associate of the Canadian College of Music, with first class honors.

30 YEARS AGO

In the results of the final year in the Faculty of Arts, University of Toronto, Lieut. John C. Harrison, son of W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, and Mrs. Morrison, secured highest honors in the Honor course in modern history. Lieut. Morrison is in the Royal Canadian Artillery training at Petawawa Military Camp.

40 YEARS AGO

June 13, 1930

At the home of the Rev. L. S. Wight and Mrs. Wight, Hillside St. a delightful surprise party was held by the members of the Holloway Street United Church choir. An address expressing regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Wight from Holloway Street Church and from the city, was read by Alec Gordon, the organist, and was signed by him and E. C. Moynes, choir leader. Following the address a handsome walnut chesterfield table was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Wight.

50 YEARS AGO

The schooner Grace Filer is in the harbor here with a cargo of coal.

A list of suitable accommodation is being compiled by the Chamber of Commerce. There is a shortage of houses and apartments in the city and the Chamber receives many inquiries from persons who desire to locate here.

H. K. Denyes, MPP for East Hastings, has been appointed one of the Methodist Layman's Association of the Bay of Quinte Conference, at a meeting of the Association in Wellby.

Top Boss

If you are a boss it is good to have a secretary who thinks you are the best. George Heffelfinger of Winnipeg recently was voted Boss of the Year by the city's chapter of the National Secretaries Association.

Secretary Claire Jones got among other qualities of Mr. Heffelfinger, his "gentlemanly manner in spite of the pressure of his job," his enthusiasm, ability to give credit where it is due and to admit he is not infallible; also his generosity, helpfulness and friendliness as well as his fund - raising activities for many public service groups.

Furthermore, Mrs. Jones rates Mr. Heffelfinger, who is president of National Grain (1968) Ltd. as an accomplished gourmet cook and a keen cross - country skier.

Mr. Heffelfinger sounds "the greatest;" in short, that is what his secretary says of him. And what makes a good secretary? Well, the word from Mr. Heffelfinger himself is that she is one who has talent for organizing and is able to anticipate his boss' needs. It goes without saying that Mrs. Jones has those qualities.

Multi-National

It was an oddly - assorted pair of teams which squared off in the Davis Cup tie between Canada and New Zealand in Winnipeg this week. Canada's mainstays were Mike Belkin, a Canadian who lives in the United States, and John Sharpe, a transplanted Australian. Then there was Danny Parun of the New Zealand team whose father hails from Yugoslavia. Quite a line - up of countries, but only two competing and only one winner, Canada.

Answer To Republicanism

Canada—A Constitutional Monarchy by Choice

The Rev. Gordon C. Smyth, dominion chaplain and minister of St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough was the speaker at the annual United Empire Loyalists' Memorial Service at St. Alban the Martyr, Adelphiatown recently. The following is the text of his address:

Memory is a precious possession. Bergson, the French philosopher, once defined consciousness as composed of memory and choice. He said that consideration prevails, there is the highest expression of life. Memory gathers experiences and choice evaluates them. The result is meaningful action. Take away the reservoirs of experience stored by memory, and actions may be determined only by instinct or the recoil of immediate sensations.

Before a person can really count in the world, he must profit from his past or find another past. The same is true of his country. That which makes a nation rich is not primarily its natural resources or the efficiency of its climate, but the talents and persistence of its traditions.

A nation that has no such traditions is merely flotsam and jetsam on the ocean of humanity, tossed hither and thither by every wave of emotion, without the guiding power of great principles that a stable history provides. Such a country should borrow traditions or else make them. However, a country that already has them, and tends to forget them, should recall them before it is too late.

Canada has been a constitutional monarchy by choice since Confederation. Let this point be clear. The London Resolutions on the monarchy reiterated those of Quebec. They were not rammed down the throats of colonial representatives, by imperialists at Westminster. The republican William Lyon Mackenzie, after a sojourn in the United States, asked to be permitted to return as a loyal subject of the Queen, stating that he had had any idea of what a republic was like, he would have been "the last man in America" to try to set one up in Canada. The American Civil War took any lingering guilt off the republican illy.

No, it is neither through accident nor external pressure that the British North America Act, 1867, Section 9, vests the Executive Government and Authority of and over Canada is hereby declared to continue and be vested in the Queen". The monarchy is part of our constitution. The constitution is part of our history. History has shaped our character as a nation. Now here is it that we bear so much talk of republicanism nowadays?

For one thing, because republics are in vogue. Many people would not want to be called old fashioned! For another thing, because republics are supposed to be more democratic. Is there more liberty in Cuba than Norway, or in the Union of South Africa than the Netherlands? People are often victimized by words. Let this particular spell be broken! For yet another thing, because of concern for national unity.

For instance, it is frequently pointed out that the post-war immigration boom has had a telling effect on ontarianism and ntinent. I have personally found it ironical to follow debates in the press, in which letters advocating the abolition of the monarchy and signed by Anglo-Saxon names are followed by letters affirming that they were happy with the constitution of the land of their choice.

What, then, of Quebec nationalism? Canada's United Empire Loyalists fled from the liberal ideas of constitutional government from Britain just as surely as they received their Civil Law from France. Separatists of the Crown in the Province of Quebec is a deeper appreciation may steal the headlines, but Quebec has more than once in realize. I have in mind more than an historical admiration for an institution that protected their liberties. Would you believe that "even" Red Quebec is monarchist? He says so and I have seen no reason to doubt it. Perhaps the Queen's Montreal visit to Expo '67 is the best answer to those who contend that the monarchy is a divisive force. Security precautions were intense. They got between the people and the Queen until she or Prince Philip decided on a breakthrough. The cheers that followed were as heartily French as English. In short, wherever Canadians, irrespective of race, get a chance to see and hear their monarch, she unites us.

There is a mystique, an emotional aspect to the monarchy, which pragmatists cannot comprehend. Wales was a miner's son but he received a liberal education at Oxford. Then he married a commoner. Charles was born a prince. He married a commoner. Many other Canadian young people did likewise. And many more teenagers will undoubtedly be covering walls with pictures, during the July visit of the royal family to the North West Territories and Manitoba.

However, if the heart has its reasons for supporting the monarchy, the head has its reasons too. Anybody who knows Dr. Eugene Forsey is aware that the constitutional expert is no mere sentimentalist. We do well to ponder his words. I quote, "Generally, Ministers remember that they are not the people's masters but the Queen's servants, answerable to the Queen's faithful Commons.

"But if a Prime Minister tries to turn parliamentary responsible government into unparliamentary irresponsible government, then only the Crown can stop him; only the Crown can keep Governors responsible to Parliament and Parliament to the people; only the Crown can prevent Parliament from degenerating into a rubber stamp for the Prime Minister, elections into plebiscites—prefunctions whose verdict the Prime Minister can manipulate at will."

Such is a heritage worth preserving and enhancing if we can. Canada's political life is beyond suspicion of sectionalism, of class or selfish ambition, who is above the rise and fall of Governments, who is stability set on a vocation of service which all might emulate, and whose character eminently qualifies her to be loved and hailed as "Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom, Canada and her other realms and territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

Heath Scores Upset

Conservatives pledged to reverse the Labor government's decision to pull back British troops from the Persian Gulf and Southeast Asia before the end of next year.

Heath gained national prominence leading Britain's first unsuccessful attempt to join the European Common Market, and as prime minister one of his first tasks will be to wrestle over the next attempt to get in, in talks opening June 30.

A sharp reversal in the opinion polls moving Labor ahead of the Conservatives and Britain's first favorable trade balances in seven years led Wilson to schedule the balloting nine months before his government's five-year term expired.

He plotted the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo for election day and waged a campaign strongly reminiscent of the Conservatives' "don't change horses—you never had it so good" in the days of Harold Macmillan.

The Labor party may blame Wilson for misjudging the mood of the country and conducting a low-key campaign. But the day is unlikely to revive his political Waterloo. Other party leaders have already pledged to unite behind him as leader of the Opposition.

Heath, who has been in politics almost from the time he left the army in 1945, saw the results swinging into a pro-Tory trend from the moment counting began.

However, a shattering blow to Labor was the loss of Rowen, deputy parliamentary leader of the party, who lost to a Conservative in the Derbyshire seat of Belper he had held for 25 years.

There was a minor consolation for Labor in getting back one seat each in Wales and Scotland which nationalists from those areas had taken from the governing parties in byelections since 1966.

At dissolution Labor held 346 seats, Conservatives 323, Liberals 13, Scottish Nationalist 1, Welsh Nationalist 1, Independents 4, the Speaker 1, and two seats were vacant.

The results in 1964 were: Labor 317, Conservatives 303, Liberals 9, and the Speaker 1.

In 36 byelections since the 1966 vote, the Labor record was disastrous. The Conservatives gained 12 seats from the governing party. Labor gained none. Liberals, Scottish and Welsh Nationalists each gained one. The Tory-supporting Ulster Unionists lost the Mid-Antrim seat to Bernadette Devlin, 22, the youngest member of the last House.

Eat Your Heart Out, Colonel

Eastminster United Church's annual open-pit barbecue is one affair that can't be upstaged by Colonel Sanders. Thursday evening more than 1,000 persons savored the special sauce on the scrumptuous chicken at the Belleville church's 10th annual barbecue which stands as a reminder of past times.

Canadians Busy in Peru

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — Canadian Forces aircraft are performing an essential function in Peruvian relief operations says Major R. W. Fassold.

The base surgeon at CFB Trenton has just returned from a fact-finding trip to assess medical requirements in the area north of Lima which was devastated recently by an earthquake and subsequent landslides.

"Our Caribou aircraft are the only ones which can reach Anta, the airstrip nearest the main disaster area, and they've taken in the bulk of the medical supplies and food as well as brought out the majority of refugees," Dr. Fassold said.

"Landing at and departure from Anta, plus mountain flying, tax the skill of our veteran pilots," he emphasized. "Both the aircraft and personnel are performing to their maximum capabilities."

Commencing work at 5 a.m. Tuesday, June 9 the Caribous flew every day until Monday, June 15 when Peruvian authorities insisted they take a day off to combat fatigue, Dr. Fassold told The Intelligencer.

They flew an average of seven or eight flights a day and as many as 14," he said, explaining that "each flight is about four hours roundtrip and for the early stages the men worked 14 and 16 hours each day."

Dr. Fassold said that an early start was essential because "darkness comes at 6 p.m. and there are no lighting facilities at Anta."

"Morale is high among the Canadian personnel — fatigue is catching up with some — but they're aware of the need and the importance of the service they are performing," he noted.

Two medical men, Captain Ben Pasicov, a doctor, and Corporal Bill Gunn, a medical assistant, are among the 70-plus Canadian forces personnel still assisting the Peruvian earthquake victims.

"One gets a sense of participation by all parties, especially in the Lima hotel which serves as operations headquarters," Dr. Fassold noted.

"The Peruvians seem to have a real facility for organization and they've modified their hospital operations so that once the victims arrive in Lima there is no problem," he said.

"All you can see of Yungay (the tourist resort in the Santa valley which was buried in a landslide) is a few things sticking up in the town square, which was the centre of the town of 20,000," Dr. Fassold said.

The destruction was also clearly evident in Huaras (population 80,000) he added, describing the aerial view. "It appears that a large bucket of mud or sand was poured through the city."

Estimates have placed the death toll near 80,000 but Dr. Fassold stressed "I don't think anybody will ever know how many perished."

Concerning the attitude of the people, Dr. Fassold remarked that "the life of Lima goes on" and also "many of these people accept these events as part of their environment, fate or heritage."

"It's always sad that we have to have a disaster of this sort to demonstrate our relief capabilities," he concluded.

Festival Coming

A Peace and Brotherhood Man Festival featuring entertainment and speakers will be held at the Belleville Fairgrounds on Sunday August 3.

Bass Bait

This "flying lobster," otherwise known as Dobson fly or Corydalis cornata if you want to get fancy, in its earlier stages was a common form of bass bait, found under rocks in streams and called a helgrammite or crawler. After three years of aquatic existence as a larva, the bug crawls on a bank and pupates under stones to emerge a few weeks later in this flying form. Mrs. Arthur Able of 23 Victoria Ave., was startled when this big male jumped on her dress at the corner of Victoria and Front yesterday. Common in the Belleville area, its only significance is its indication of good fishing next year.

Pollution Probe Meeting Sunday

A final planning meeting for Belleville Pollution Probe will be held Sunday night at seven p.m. at the Récréation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

Mr. Johnston said the meeting would be attended by people already involved in the project, representatives of service clubs and other people who were interested.

"I've been approached by a number of interested people I hope they'll come to the meeting," he said.

Mr. Johnston — with the assistance of Angus Duffy — has divided the river into six sections. The meeting will serve to organize the volunteers under team captains.

The actual cleanup will begin Sunday, June 29, at 10 a.m. with volunteers picking up garbage from Corbyville south along both banks of the Moira River to the Bay of Quinte, branching out to Belleville General Hospital.

The distance covered will be six miles on each side of the river.

Cheque for $1300. Presented to WHA at Luncheon

The June meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary took the form of a dessert luncheon, Mrs. S. E. Durrell and social committee deserve a great deal of praise for the very fine decorated for this event. The centrepiece of one table was a candelabra basket filled with strawberries, cherries, grapes and melon balls. On the other table a centrepiece of roses and petites fuchsia flowers caught the eye. At each individual tea table, the committee had placed a napkin ring made out of brightly colored paper for every guest. Many delectable desserts prepared and brought to Education Hall by the executive were enjoyed.

Mrs. B. E. Burley, the president, asked that everyone stand and observe a minute's silence for a former beloved Hospital Auxiliary member, Mrs. W. Shand, who passed away last Friday.

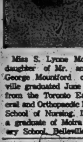
In reporting for the Opportunity Shop, Mrs. F. E. Beeby said that May had exceeded anything that they had anticipated. She was delighted to present the auxiliary with a cheque for $1,200. Anyone having clothes or household articles to give to the Shop is asked to please bring them down or telephone a member of the committee. The Shop will close at the end of June for the summer. Mrs. Beeby also paid tribute to Mrs. Shand by referring to her as "Mrs. Opp Shop."

The in-hospital volunteer chairman, Mrs. S. B. Bochner, reported that 138 patients had been visited during May. Mrs. Bochner called on Mrs. Burley to present two certificates of appreciation to members who are leaving Belleville, Mrs. W. T. Gear, one of these who regularly visited patients twice a week in the extended care unit and mental health level. The other recipient was Mrs. B. Poole who was unable to be present.

The junior volunteers are taking over many of the volunteer duties in the hospital for the summer. The Auxiliary was pleased to learn that these junior volunteers now are advised in a complete uniform consisting of pink and white smocks, white pants-hose and white sneakers. Volunteers are needed for the summer months.

Mrs. N. K. Manning stated that she and her committee had sent out 1,000 cards while Mrs. C. D. Ashley, puppet convener, reported that she and her women who saw the puppets will be at work this summer in order to keep up the supply.

At the graduation exercises of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing, Mrs. Burley brought greetings from the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.



The Auxiliary was pleased to learn there would definitely be a Coffee Shop and a Gift Shop in the new addition to the building.

A committee of Mrs. J. E. Nelles, Mrs. S. B. Bochner, Mrs. F. H. Bywater and Mrs. J. E. Reeds had been established to investigate the matter of Provincial life memberships given their report. Many Auxiliaries give these provincial life memberships and the unanimous opinion of the meeting was in favor of our Auxiliary giving one this year.

At the present time the Auxiliary has no provincial life members. This membership would be given to someone who has served this Auxiliary, possibly in the district and also at provincial level for many dedicated years.

The name of a suggested recipient has to be approved by the Provincial committee. The cost is $25 a member. This committee is to be set up on a continuing basis and will be accepting names of potential recipients for these life memberships.

Mrs. Burley closed the meeting by extending best wishes to all for a happy, healthy summer.

Miss S. Lynne Mountford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mountford of Bellville graduated June 11, 1970 from the Toronto East General and Orthopaedic Hospital, School of Nursing. Lynne is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

Patients' Needs To Come First

FREDERICTON (CP) — Nurses must assume some medical functions if they want to "keep abreast of medical advances and their effects on patient care," Rosemary Coombs, clinical nurse specialist at the Ottawa Civic Hospital said Thursday.

Mrs. Coombs, speaking during the general meeting of the Canadian Nurses Association, said nursing specialization is necessary to adapt to the changes recommended by government leaders and demanded by the public.

"Nursing care must be planned and performed according to the needs of patients and not based on ritual and tradition.

"If we want status we will find it, not only in a university degree, but if we function inter-dependently with all the health professions," she said.

She said the three "major worries" of hospital nurses are loss of contact with the patient, inadequate education and the need to fill the gap between patient and doctor.

Points for Parents

By MARY BEYBON

Jane: "Wait until I fix my face and hair. I don't know why I need all my make-up so it hasn't blow."

Mother: "Primping in public always looks unsophisticated, as if a person feels insecure about her looks. And most people find it distasteful to see someone combing her hair at the table!"

Teen: "Take your time, I have to put on some lipstick too."

It's up to mothers to point out to teen-agers the disadvantages of certain unmannerly actions, even though these actions may be accepted by their teen-age friends.

Successful Living

Either Too Much or Not Enough Discipline

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

"Love them, feed them, and keep them in line." Such is the motto of a counsellor for teen-agers.

He finds that in dealing with delinquents, the complaint runs up again and again that their mothers and fathers didn't give two hoots what they did with their time. They felt that they never received enough discipline — practically none at all. A good proportion of those young people come from well - to - do homes.

On the other hand, the flower children or hippies report that they take off on their own because of too many controls. They are ingenuine, intelligent young people who have no chance to do the things that they want to try.

Raising mentally healthy boys and girls is a challenging full - time job. Parents not only have to supply food and lodging; they have to be there in the flesh to talk to and be loved by.

Dear Doris: About two months ago I started getting a lump in the upper area of my breasts. They have enlarged a bit since first forming and the rest of the breasts also feel sort of lumpy; they are tender to pressure.

What could it be and what causes it? I have not seen a doctor because it is nothing it could be embarrassing. — Eighteen.

Dear Eighteen: The lumps are a danger signal and must not be neglected. Only a doctor can tell you what they are simple little cysts or malignant tumors.

Removing them is a simple procedure but an urgent one. You are the only one who will be embarrassed by not going a doctor; and if you neglect this his chief emotions will be frustration and sorrow that you have waited so long to come to him. The lumps could keep growing, you know.

Dear Doris: I would like very much to get in touch with "Old Mother" because I come from the same country as she does — Germany. The sounds that very close person and reminds me of our Sonntag — the one we had our village when I was a child.

She is about the same age my mother is and it really would be a rare privilege to get to know her even if she is very far from where I live. — Here's Hoping.

Dear Hoping: She is; about a thousand miles away. But we have sent your message on to her and perhaps she will write to you direct. We cannot do it the other way, as readers' identification is kept in confidence.

Columnist Makes Plea for Proper Address

By MARY MOORE

PLEA FROM MARY: We actually counted 1) the number of readers' letters that arrive without stamped self-addressed envelopes; 2) those that include stamped self-addressed envelopes and 3) those that include stamped self-addressed envelope plus 10 cents. Results: 60, 30 and 10 percent. (That does not add up to 120 percent because many of those sending 10 cents also enclose stamped self-addressed envelope.) Would you please obey the rules? Also please confine your requests to one in each letter? "I'd appreciate it", Carefully Mary Moore.

QUESTION: Our family finds the standard butter-icing sugar frosting too sweet, and your Cafe au Lait Whipped Frosting fits our taste to perfection. Unfortunately our children don't like the coffee flavor. I tried replacing the coffee with enough juice, but the juice seems to have reacted with the corn starch because the result was "sausage soup". Could you please advise a couple of alternate flavorings? — Mrs. A. H.

ANSWER: The original recipe, White Whipped Frosting which Cafe au Lait Whipped Frosting (April 8th) was based, appeared here in March 1969 but became it is so popular I will repeat.

WHITE WHIPPED FROSTING — Cook until thick, stirring constantly, 1 cup milk mixed with 3 tbsps. corn starch. Let cool. Beat in mixer 1 cup granulated sugar, ½ pound soft butter (do not substitute) and 1 tsp. vanilla or almond or mix of rum extract. Beat until snowy white — 5-10 min. Fold in cooled milk mixture and beat 2 min., or until like whipped cream.

QUESTION: Your (recent) column made me hanker for liver but I was dieting and had to broil it so I used the following method . . . The liver (not baby beef liver) and soak 24 hours in skim milk. Drain well and dry on paper towels. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and thyme. Broil until pink but disappointed if you pierce with a fork, it dries out — also if you overcook it). It is done when a tiny cut through the liver shows no pink. Do not overcook. This is moist, tasty and fast, good for working homemakers who dislike the shoe-leather that liver is so often turned into. — M.S.

ANSWER: I followed your method too and pan fried some in a minimum of butter for 3½ min. My slices of liver were less than ¼" thick and I removed heavy aluminum frypan from heat as soon as undersides were linged with gold and let it finish cooking off the heat. It was a treat with that tiny suggestion of thyme.

Ann Landers

Boy Has Insatiable Appetite for Driving

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 14-year-old son is driving me nuts. In this state, a driver can get a learner's permit at 15. Jim won't be 15 until October. He sits in the driveway by the hour — backing up and going forward. Then he drives in the garage and out of the garage. Over the weekend he used a half a tank of gas and didn't go anywhere.

Jim reads everything on car safety he can lay his hands on. He has memorized the material he needs to know in order to get his license.

ANN LANDERS

I wish he paid as much attention to his school work. The boy eats, sleeps and dreams cars. Is this normal? His older brothers were not like this. Any suggestions? — SHEBOYGAN.

DEAR SHE: A 14-year-old boy could be reading worse things than the driver's manual. Don't worry. This, too, shall pass. He sounds O.K. to me.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Father died and left Mom with eight children. I had to learn to sew because it was cheaper than buying ready-made things. I sewed better than my three sisters an, of course, I sewed for everybody. There were times when I wanted to go someplace, but I had to stay home and sew. My sisters never missed a party or a ball game. I missed a good many social events, but I didn't mind because I knew the sewing had to be done.

Now, it is 40 years later and I don't want to sew anymore. But my family has other ideas. We were invited to spend two weeks with my sister. When I arrived she had me material for draperies, a bed spread with dust ruffles, and three dresses. I was speechless. I told my husband I thought she had a lot of nerve. He yelled at me — said I should be proud of my talent — and insisted that I smile and keep my mouth shut. I spent the whole two weeks sewing.

When we left for home my husband had a beautiful tan. I was white as a fly. My sister said, "I'm so glad you spent your vacation with us!" I said, "What vacation? I haven't worked so hard in years." My husband criticized me for being ungracious and said there must be something wrong with my head to talk that way. I'd done my part — SEWED UP.

DEAR SEWED: There's something wrong with your head all right. You should have told your sister that you didn't care to spend your vacation sewing and to hire a seamstress. If you let this happen again, you deserve it. Lady.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How can I help a friend who takes too many pills and lies about it constantly. She tells everyone she's afraid to take an aspirin for a headache.

We were at a party the other night and her purse fell open. Out tumbled six or seven small bottles. I helped her put the pills back in the bottles. I suddenly understood why she slurs her words and staggers around complaining about "inner-ear trouble." When she plays bridge, her hands shake so badly she can't hold a glass of water. Yesterday she appeared to be near the breaking point. Should I keep quiet or try to help? — GARDEN GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR G.G.: By all means say something. Tell your friend she must let her doctor know precisely how much medication she is taking. Some people don't realize that mixing pills can be dangerous and pills mixed with liquor can be fatal.

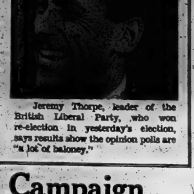
Anger Sweeps Labor Ranks As Polls Blamed for Loss

LONDON (CP) — A wave of anger swept through Labor ranks today as the British election count sharply contradicted the pollsters who had predicted a big victory for the governing party.

Denis Howell, Labor sports minister who was returned with a reduced majority, said a "cool, hard look" had to be taken at the function of the polls which were "affecting the democratic process."



"I feel that a lot of Labor supporters did not turn out because they felt the battle was won already from what they had heard and read of the polls," he said.

Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe said the opinion polls "have been shown up to be a lot of baloney."

Throughout the three-week campaign, a flood of polls predicted a big Labor victory. At one stage a major poll estimated that Prime Minister Wilson would chalk up a majority of about 150 seats in the 630-seat House of Commons.

Predictions of a Labor victory, published in the national newspapers, continued right up to polling day when one final poll expressed itself as baffled and suggested it would be a neck-and-neck race.

Many individual constituencies reported a large turnout of voters, but it appeared that in other ridings, the Labor turnout was not as large as in 1966.

Jeremy Thorpe, leader of the British Liberal Party, who won re-election in yesterday's election, says results show the opinion polls are "a lot of baloney."

Wilson's Low-key Campaign Led to Fatal Complacency

LONDON (AP) — Harold Wilson bet wages rise and put Britain's trading ledgers in the black for the first time in seven years. But many British voters were worried by Edward Heath's warnings of inflation, higher taxes and unemployment and apparently decency, and they stayed away Labor voters into complacency, from the polls in droves.

Wilson's low-key, don't-rock-the-boat campaign and a way at his theme: A Labor the opinion polls predicting victory would mean high Labor's re-election killed prices, higher taxes, more unemployment, perhaps even another devaluation of the pound.

Heath, grimly intent on proving himself from one crowd and plunged, refreshed, into the midst of another.

Heath, 53, appeared to surprise even himself.

But the taste for politics was always there. It just took a little time to burst out to the people. At Chatham House school in Informality Paid Off

Edward Richard George Heath Is Sweeping Success as Ted

LONDON (AP) — Farfetchy, he is Edward Richard George Heath, a small-town carpenter's bachelor son who rose to lead the British Conservative party on the comeback trail.

Less formally, he is Ted Heath, and he showed this week that he could be less formal.

The polls were forecasting a Labor party victory in the British general election Thursday, if not a landslide, and pessimistic members of the Tory party foresaw five more years in the Siberia of politics.

It will never be known how many Britons already had made up their minds by the start of this week, but in any case Heath's campaign suddenly caught fire.

A politician who normally shuns personal contact with voters, he rolled up his sleeves and strode out into throngs of people, smiling, clasping hands, kissing babies and urging his dispirited Tories to greater efforts.

"I enjoyed that—yes indeed," he gasped as he extricated himself from one crowd and plunged, refreshed, into the midst of another.

Heath, 53, appeared to surprise even himself.

He made no bones about it. His campaign was aimed at the housewife, the member of the family most aware of the rising cost of living.

It was the name of Oxford where, in the 1930s, he denounced the European dictators.

"What's Teddy Heath," said one student as he strode past, his baggy trousers flapping boldly. "He'll be prime minister one day."

Heath's decidedly unprivileged background might have moved him closer to the Liberals or Labor than the Conservatives. But he explained: "I saw my father working hard, showing enterprise, taking risks, and gradually developing to his capacity in spite of very difficult circumstances.

"I had the feeling then—I have it much more clearly now—that my father could not have achieved what he did . . . if he had not been left free to do so.

"By the time I went up to Oxford, if there was one political idea in the broadest sense of the term which had governed me, it was a deep feeling about and for the idea of freedom."

Typically, he joined all three major parties at Oxford "to find out what they were up to." but by then I had accepted that I was a Conservative as part of accepting, so to speak, the facts of life."

Through most of his political career, Heath has lacked what appeared to be two vital characteristics—personal magnetism and the ability to dramatize himself and his work.

An Oxford graduate in philosophy, politics and economics, Heath has served continuously in the House of Commons since he was first elected in 1950.

He served in the double role of secretary of state for industry, trade and development and president of the board of trade under the 1963-64 government of Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

When Sir Alec resigned as Conservative party leader in July, 1965, the Tories chose Heath to succeed him.

Enoch Powell Is Easy Winner

LONDON (CP) — Enoch Powell, right-wing Conservative denounced by opponents and some members of his own party alike, won overwhelming re-election in the British general election Thursday, and a new word—Powellism—was introduced into the lexicon of British politics.

Powell, whose views on non-white immigration to Britain were among the most controversial of the election campaign, was returned with a doubled majority in his working-class Midlands constituency of Wolverhampton Southwest.

The former Tory health minister, and, until fired by Conservative Leader Edward Heath, defence minister in the opposition shadow cabinet, was elected for the seventh time.

He polled 24,228 votes against 11,753 for his Labor opponent, D. F. Dass, an Indian running under the banner of Human Rights Coalition, collected 53 votes.

Powell needed police protection at times as he campaigned, emphasizing what he called the dangers of further non-white immigration into Britain. He acquired some following among right-wingers in his own party for this belief and his outright opposition to Britain joining the European Common Market.

After his victory, was announced, Powell charged that hostile elements who had disrupted his campaign rallies had been "imported" from outside his constituency.

He said he received support from Labor voters. As the election because "they liked, agreed, approved and wished to support what I have said" about immigrants.

How Long Can Heath Survive If Edge Tiny?

That question is getting serious attention in political circles today as the general election count suggests the Conservative leader is likely to form the next government with a margin of perhaps 20 to 40 seats in the 630-seat House of Commons.

Eric Lubbock, Toronto-raised Liberal who lost his seat in Orpington, Kent, in the big election upset, figures Heath will be forced into another election fight within six months.

But Anthony Barber, Tory party strategist who masterminded Heath's campaign, maintains that the party is more unified than any other group in a tight spot and that Heath can hope to govern for a full term.

A great deal will depend on how controversial his politics will be. One major Tory pledge is to reform Britain's unruly unions and to turn wage deals into legal contracts.

Another strong Heath goal is to lead Britain into the European Common Market, despite indications that the Common Market is becoming unpopular among a lot of Britons who feel the entry fee is too high.

Some Tory moderates hope that Heath will soft-pedal his union-reform ideas, fearing that a direct clash with powerful union leaders may cause great industrial unrest at a time when the country needs every ounce of production to keep vital exports moving.

As for joining the Common Market, Heath has made clear he'll watch the entry price. With negotiations likely to continue for a year or more, the membership issue may be submerged by more immediate problems.

"He will go flat out for economic growth which for years has been almost a stranger to the British scene," says the Tory-supporting Daily Telegraph.

Yet Heath is likely to face many tests and many problems. Some critics within his own party embarrassed his election campaign. Two most dramatic and controversial was Wolverhampton MP Enoch Powell. He openly and acidely attacked Heath for casting him out of the party's inner circles because of Powell's campaign against non-white immigration.

But while Powell piled up a huge majority in his Wolverhampton constituency, his immediate reaction to the prospect of a Heath victory was to moderate his criticism and to argue that he had made only one mild foray against his leader.

Heath had pledged to keep Powell out of a Tory cabinet and it is likely that Powell will have to cool his heels on Tory backbench although he maintained that his outcry against non-white immigrants tended to attract Tory votes from Labor ranks.

Conservatives Would Maintain British Role East of Suez

LONDON (AP) — As Edward Heath's Conservatives prepared to take over the British government, they share with Harold Wilson's Labor party the same international aims of extending British influence abroad, protecting the country's interests and remaining loyal to its allies.

But in style and emphasis Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Heath's likely choice for foreign secretary, will differ from Labor's Michael Stewart on at least three major issues:

—Nuclear weapons policy.

In each of these sectors the Conservatives hope to strengthen Britain's national role.

In the nuclear field, the Conservative program says Britain must retain independent control of its nuclear weapons to deter an aggressor. The Labor government assigned the country's total nuclear strike capacity to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for as long as NATO lasts.

But because of doubts that "the United States government will risk a holocaust defending Europe against nuclear blackmail," Heath has proposed a joint nuclear weapons program in Western Europe based on the pooling of British and French resources, knowhow, and weapons arrangements including targeting.

"It would require delicate negotiations both with the French and with the American.

East of Suez, the Conservatives are pledged to reverse Labor's plans to withdraw British troops from their Persian Gulf, Singapore and Malaysian bases, a withdrawal program due to be completed by the end of 1971.

There have been signs that Malaysia and Singapore would like British forces to stay on, and so would the Americans. But in the Persian Gulf, where a new union of nine Arab sheikdoms is forming, the pollsters suggest that continued British presence will not be welcome.

Heath and his aides have come out emphatically for better working relations with South Africa and for the sale of arms to come to terms with rebel Rhodesia.

They have promised to cancel the Labor government's ban on the sale of weapons to South Africa provided some weapons are needed only for external defence. This doubtless will touch off a storm of protest in Britain as well as among Asian and African members of the United Nations.

Heath Burned

"A man deliberately put a cigarette against my neck and burned it," Heath said.

The cigarette incident happened outside the building in Westminster's Smith Square, scene of near delirium as Heath arrived following news of a big proConservative swing in Thursday's election.

A man lunged at the party chief and stubbed the cigarette into his neck.

The subject is drinking and you're the teacher. What do you tell them?

You're an adult. They're teenagers.

If you start lecturing them, they'll turn you off. They already know drinking is a pleasure reserved for adults. And they're fully aware of the legal drinking age.

So, it's not so much what you tell them, it's how you tell them.

We have a suggestion: tell them by showing them. Show them that a drink taken socially is fine. As long as it's taken sensibly and moderately.

Show them that the legal drinking age is not a license for irresponsibility, but a recognition of maturity — mental as well as physical.

We wouldn't want it any other way.

Stinson's Off Skids, Bottle Corby's

Stinson's Construction, pulled out of their 8-game losing skid and the Ellis Juniors strengthened their first-place position in Commercial Softball League action last night.

Stinson's ended their losing streak in a convincing manner with an 8-0 whipping of Corby's while a five-run outburst in the opening frame carried the Juniors to a 6-4 victory over Point Anne.

Stinson hurler Howard Jeffs limited Corby's to three hits while fanning five and walking five in his route-going effort.

On the opposing mound Gerry Gerstenkorn wasn't as fortunate as he was pounded for eight runs on ten hits plus recording four walks and four strikeouts.

Centrefielder Rick Locke was the big gun at the plate for Stinson's with a double and two singles in four trips to the batter's box. Jeffs helped his own cause with two doubles, with Wayne Woods adding a single and double and Dwight Bathwell two singles.

Bob Lemmon cracked a double and Neil Campbell and Chuck Rowsham hit singles but that was all Jeffs shut the door on the rest of the Corby batters.

Stinsons 120 140 0 - 8 10 2
Corby's 000 000 0 - 4 3 1

The Juniors knocked Point Anne starter Jamie Hunter out of the game with five runs on six hits in the first inning before Don Holoway put out the fire.

In all the Commissioner pitchers allowed ten hits and threw walks with Holoway picking up five strikeouts.

Ted Waits went the distance for Ellis' pitching a four-hitter while giving up four walks and fanning six.

Dale Duval scrambled a double and two singles, John Campbell a long home run, and Craig Rump a double and single to lead the Junior attack.

Catcher Eric Maher had Waits's number last night as he crashed two home runs in his first field, leading the Point Anne attack. Triples by Dennis Maher and Rick Rowsham were the only other hits the Pointers could manage.

Members of the Belleville Sea Cadets help launch one of the 44 Albacore sail boats taking part in the North American championships on the Bay of Quinte. The races, which have drawn competitors from as far away as Washington, D.C., got under way at 10 o'clock this morning.

Albacores Off and Sailing

A total of 44 boats, including four American entries, began competition this morning for the North American Albacore sailing championship.

Boats were aided by what one member described as "medium-to-good conditions." Winds on the Bay of Quinte were expected to be about 18-12 miles - per - hour for the morning race, which began at 10 a.m.

Three races are expected to be held today, with the same number contested Saturday. Afternoon competitions begin at 2 p.m.

The American entries hail from the Potomac Yacht Club of Washington, D.C. and the Wilson Yacht Club, located in the Niagara district.

Competitors will sail a course of about seven miles, although the distance can be shortened, in case of poor sailing conditions.

The final race of the competition is slated for 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Baseball Tykes Running Ragged

The Tyke division of the Belleville Minor Baseball League provided lots of action last night as a total of 34 runs were scored in only two games.

Peter Hall and Dennis Grier combined for the Orphans win fanning eight and walking two.

Chris Ripley and Randy Hutchinson pitched the Wanneymaker victory striking out 14 batters and walking seven.

Gary Rideout and Howie Coons fanned 12 gangsmen and walked six on the Lion's mound.

Three singles apiece by Bruce Hamilton and Ripley were the driving force for Wanneykers.

Singles from Dave Thompson, Gordon Taylor, and Coons led the Lions at bat.

Kickers Go for Cup

Belleville Minor Soccer mates 8s debut into Ontario Cup play Saturday, when two city teams take on opponents from Toronto and Hamilton in Zwicke's Island.

Belleville United peewees take on the Bayview Bullets in a 2 p.m. encounter followed by the Steelworkers — Nelson Park Rangers mosquito contest at three o'clock.

Opening ceremonies will precede the first game, and officials hope to have Mayor Scott presiding.

Two other Belleville teams will be on the road for their Cup openers with the Belleville United mosquitos locking horns with Etobicoke in a 2 p.m. Saturday battle and the Ponton Park mosquitoes playing St. Andrew's of Toronto at the same time Sunday.

A peewee game against Sudbury and a mosquito contest in Georgetown were both forfeited because of transportation difficulties.

Atoms Being Smashed

The Belleville Minor Soccer Association last night decided to have their three "atom" teams play more games with one another instead of playing so often with the older "mosquitoes."

The decision came none too soon, as two of last night's scores indicate.

Jim's Pizzeria Mosquitoes romped to a 17-0 win over Modern Hair Styling atoms, with Harrison (7), Hill (5), Siddell (3), Towers, and Newman doing the scoring hop.

Bob's Auto Body atoms were more fortunate, only losing by 3-1 margin to Lamoda Hair Styling - Mosquitoes. Mark Bird had the distinction of scoring the losers' first goal of the season.

Dailey Big Choice

TRENTON — At six feet, five inches and 220 pounds, Bob Dailey isn't most people's concept of a midget hockey player.

In all, 113 over - age midgets and 32 junior or juvenile players were named by the ten OHA Junior A teams at their annual meeting in Niagara Falls. Dailey and Belleville Flames' left - winger Terry Meagher were the only two area players named in the selection.

Dailey collected eight goals and 26 assists in 21 midget games this last season, picking up 79 penalty minutes. He added three assists in nine games with Trenton's Junior B. Golden Hawks.

Dailey has indicated he will report to the Marlboros' camp. He is under no obligation under the "draft". The Marlboros have exclusive negotiating rights with him until Sept. 1, but must obtain a release for his services.

Games No Longer Gold Mine

by Maurice
Switzer
Sports Editor

The British Commonwealth Games weightlifting competition could have been a veritable mine of gold, silver and bronze medals for Canada.

Carr-Brainf had visions of as many as six Canadian weightlifting medals dancing in his head until he learned that medals will go only for the best three totals in each of the nine classes at July's Edinburgh Games.

"We had been hoping there would be medals in each class for the best three performances in each competitive lift-press, snatch and clean-and-jerk, — like they do in the Olympics and World Championships."

Now trained of 168 medals weightlifters at Edinburgh will be straining for a mere 27: gold, silver and bronze for the best three totals in each of the nine classes from fly-weight (114 pounds) to heavyweight (242-pounds - plus).

"I have to be realistic. Now we only have two opportunities," Carr-Brainf says.

The coach, who will be leading a Canadian team for the fourth time, pins most of his hopes on the brawny biceps of Russ Prior, 30, a Hamilton University student.

His chances at a gold medal in the 242-pound class hinge on whether England's Louis Martin remains in middle-heavyweight competition or steps up a class.

"Martin has the current Commonwealth 198-pound class record of 1,101 pounds," explains Carr-Brainf. "I'm hoping he'll stay down in that class to fly and win Britain a safe gold medal.

"If he does, the next best I've heard of is a 1,030 total by an Australian."

That would put Belleville's Price Morris, the other 242-pound class Canadian team member, in the running for a silver or bronze medal. Morris lifted 1,030 pounds in 1967, one of five years he was Canadian champion.

— St. Jean, 27, returned from a year's competitive layoff to win his sixth Canadian title at last month's championships trials in Belleville, but Carr-Brainf estimates his winning 880-pound total would have to be improved by 35 pounds for any prospect of a medal in Edinburgh.

Had medals been awarded for best three total lifts, Carr-Brainf picked light - heavyweights Brian Marsden of Vancouver and Earl Jack of Hamilton, Vancouver middleweight Keith Adams and bantam Chee Hin Chan of Montreal as almost certain winners.

"But there's nothing we can do about that now. And I'm sure all the other countries have had similar disappointments."

Walsh's Winning Ways Hinge on Ladies

Two "ladies", who are showing every sign of aging gracefully, hold the key to Jerry Walsh's harness racing hopes.

Says Walsh of his four-horse stable, which he also drives and trains, "If one of my horses is going to have a big season, I think it will have to be one of the mares."

Both Lady Violet Direct and Roya K Abby came through with wins in last Saturday's Quinte Riding and Driving Club card to help make the three - year racing veteran the top driver of the night, as he added a third and fifth - place finishes to his pair of victories.

Lady Violet Direct, a 12-year old black pacer, has recorded first and second place finishes in four starts this season. By Windsor Direct out of Wilton Lady, the mare totalled $513 in winnings last season.

Roya K Abby has served in a dual role for Walsh, raising foals as well as performing well enough on the track to take 1984 worth of winnings last season. The 11-year-old mare's win last week came in her first start of the 1970 racing season. She was sired by Zoomer Abbe from the mare, Roya Dale. The brown mare is also a pacer.

Walsh will be looking to continue his success this Saturday at the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's weekly card, which has been setting new attendance records each week with an increased program of ten races per night.

Primed Pacer

Owner-driver Jerry Walsh puts the finishing touches on pacer Roya K Abby before a training session on the Belleville Fairgrounds track. Walsh has entered the mare in the sixth race of this Saturday night's Quinte Riding and Driving Club card and will be looking to repeat his performance of last week, when he emerged as top driver of the night.

Ex-Expo Waslewski Big Help to Yanks

The former Boston Red Sox right-hander got one of his infrequent starts Thursday and performed superbly, allowing his former teammates two harmless singles for six innings before tiring in the Yankee 3-2 victory over Boston Thursday night.

Waslewski, 32, picked up from Montreal Expos a month ago, provided the needed lift and the Yankees—winning their 12th game in 16 starts—edged to within 1½-games of the American League East Division leading Baltimore Orioles. Last year at this time, the Yankees trailed Baltimore by 16½-games.

In the only other American League game, Cleveland Indians stopped Washington Senators 6-2, while in the only two National League contests, Cincinnati ripped Atlanta Braves 10-7, and Chicago Cubs blanked San Francisco Giants 6-0.

The Yanks led 3-0, including a homer by Curt Blefary and a run-scoring single by Bobby Murcer before Waslewski was reached for a lead-off homer by Sox shortstop Rico Petrocelli in the seventh.

"I was getting tired," Waslewski said. "I lost my concentration. I was just trying to throw a strike but got it too high to Petrocelli."

Waslewski, who pitched in the 1967 World Series for the Red Sox, moved to St. Louis Cardinals and the Expos in 1969 before the Yankees bought him. He also hurled for seven minor league clubs in his 10-year professional career.

"I didn't get any particular thrill out of beating the Red Sox," he said after picking up his first victory of the season after going 0-3 with Montreal.

"I've been around too long," said the Medford, Mass., resident.

Tony Horton slammed a three-run homer in the eighth inning, snapping a 3-3 tie and giving the Indians their fifth consecutive victory.

Horton also had a pair of singles and was aided by solo homers by teammates Ray Fosse and Graig Nettles. Aurelio Rodriguez had a two-run shot for the Senators.

Ron Fairly slugged an eighth-inning grand slam homer to cap Montreal's six-run rally in overtaking the Braves who got three hits from Hank Aaron, including his 18th homer of the season.

Aaron, who drove in four runs, added a single and double along with his two-run shot, the 573nd of his career, Jim Gosger drilled four hits for the Expos, including a two-run homer.

Fairly, describing his grand slam, said:

"I went up to the plate looking for a fastball and that's what I hit. I had been watching Jaster warm up and saw that he had no control over his breaking stuff."

Brill Already Favored

HAMILTON (CP) — Debbie Brill, 17, the Haney, B.C., high-jumper who flips over the bar backwards, is already rated the favorite to become darling of the 31 British Commonwealth Games track and field trials here this weekend.

Miss Brill, following in the tradition of such British Columbian athletes as silver Nancy Greene and swimmer Elaine Tanner, has captured the imagination of fans with her spectacular jumping. She recently set a North American women's record of six feet, one-quarter inch and became only the fifth female to clear six feet.

Her target for the Games trials tonight and Saturday will be six-feet-two. She will be one of 230 athletes competing for 56 spots on Canada's team for the Games in Edinburgh, July 16-25.

Billy Cooper Says:

It is essential for the left arm to remain straight throughout the back and down swing and well into the follow through. This keeps the clubhead are within a controlled pattern and ensures solid impact.

If you allow your left arm to break in the backswing, you are likely to swing "over" the ball and top it. That's because your swing arc will be raised. The left arm also produces the needed tension you need in your left side throughout the swing. If it collapses, either on the backswing or impact, your left side will take over and ruin the shot.

Jacklin at Home in U. S. Open

But Jacklin treated the par-72, 7,131-yard Hazeltine National Golf Club like home Thursday and vaulted into the lead with a one-under par 71 in the U.S. Open golf championship.

"If I go to a new country," said Jacklin, "I adjust to its food and its habits. When I play a new course, like this one, I try to adjust to its characteristics."

The rest of the star-filled field didn't adapt to 40-mile-an-hour winds that slammed into Hazeltine and sent almost half of 155-man field over 80 after Thursday's first round.

Jacklin, with the forceful winds reminding him of English courses where he learned the game, adjusted so effectively that he was the only man below par. No one else reached par.

Two strokes back were Mason Rudolph, Julius Boros and Chi Chi Rodriguez. Bobby Mitchell, Tony Evans and Richard Crawford were tied at 74.

Gary Player took an 80 and Jack Nicklaus 81.

Toronto Al Balding, one of three Canadians, scored 36-35—75 to stay four strokes off the pace with 13 Americans.

Jacklin, the 1969 British Open champion from Dunham, England, went into the last three holes of his round four-under par. But the 25-year-old Britton was one over par on 16 with three putts and landed in a creek for a two over on 17.

He had a second operation to remove a blood clot several weeks ago but since his accident has been unconscious.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Trans-National Communications Inc., which has lost control of Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League, has asked to have its petition seeking bankruptcy dismissed.

Bankruptcy referee Sheridan Downey notified Trans-National's creditors after papers were filed Wednesday and set a new bankruptcy hearing for June 26.

Superior Court Judge Robert Schnacks ruled June 9 that Trans-National defaulted on payments to San Francisco Seals Ltd. after buying the team last year.

Seals Ltd., headed by Barry van Gerbig, said it will sell to the highest bidder.

TORONTO (CP) — Maple Leaf Gardens directors decided Thursday not to raise ticket prices for 1970-71 National Hockey League games.

Ticket prices for Maple Leafs home games range from $3 to $6.50.

"There's no other rink with prices this low," team president Stafford Smythe said, "no place that brings in less than we do when the house is filled to capacity.

"I suppose the directors feel that, when we're in last place, the players can't ask for any raises and neither can we."

OAKLAND (AP) — Defenceman Bert Marshall played the entire 1969-1970 National Hockey League season with a hairline fracture of his left wrist, the Oakland Seals reported Thursday.

Marshall, 36, who lives in Hayward, Calif., during the off season, was scheduled for an operation Friday. He is expected to wear a cast for three months.

Brazilian Tactics Not Confined to Field

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The favored Brazilian team rested today amid signs of a budding psychological war with Italy, its rival in Sunday's World Cup soccer final.

The rumblings erupted Thursday afternoon when Brazilian radio stations carried reports that Italy had been disqualified from the finals because doping fresh had been proved positive on two players, and that West Germany would replace the Italians.

The reports were denied by the Italians, the West Germans and the International Football Federation (FIFA).

"I don't want to know anything more about these absurdities," said Italian coach Ferruccio Valcareggi..."Nor do I want to say anything about who began circulating them and who picked them up."

The FIFA announcement did not name the two Italian players. It merely said the tests had been proven negative and that a further announcement would be made today.

The Brazilians flew to Mexico City Thursday night after a tearful departure from Guadalajara, where they won all their five matches on their way to the finals.

They were seen off by a large crowd at Guadalajara airport. A mariachi band struck up Mexican tunes and hundreds waved Brazilian flags.

Soccer king Pele, and forward Jairinho received the biggest hand from the spectators.

The Italians have only seen the Brazilians on television. They have not scouted any of the Brazilians' matches. Nor have they played the Brazilians in the last seven years.

Valcareggi has not seen the Brazilians play at all.

He will rely on Italy's ability to defend against virtually any type of attack, and the piercing ability of strikers Luigi Riva and Roberto Boninsegna.

The Italians have been buoyed by their overtime 4-3 victory over West Germany Wednesday in semi-final play and the tremendous popular explosion in Italy after that victory.

But Brazil will be the crowd favorite on Sunday at noon in Aztec Stadium when the teams fight for the Jules Rimet Cup for the third time. According to regulations, the meeting will put the trophy out of circulation, with the winner keeping it.

Referee Rudy Glockner, 41, of East Greenbush, N.Y. was picked Thursday to judge the final. Glockner refereed Italy's accurate draw with Uruguay earlier in the tournament.

Glockner will be under tremendous pressure. Finals have often been marred by controversial decisions. English and German fans are still arguing about England's controversial third goal which propelled them to victory in the 1966 cup.

West Germany and Uruguay will fight for third place in a Saturday game, also at Aztec Stadium.

The losers duel could see at least one record equalled. West Germany's Gerhard Mueller, if he scores from goals, as he did in two other matches, could equal the record number of goals scored in a World Cup—12.

Hoop Loops Regroup

ATLANTA (AP) — Owners of franchises in the National and American basketball association voted Thursday to seek permission from Congress to merge into one professional league.

Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the NBA, said the vote came on a statement of principles agreed to by merger committees of both leagues before a U.S. District Court in New York issued an injunction in May legally barring a merger until disposition of a suit filed by the NBA Players Association.

Quarry Could Challenge

NEW YORK (AP) — In the wake of Jerry Quarry's sixth-round knockout over Mac Foster Wednesday night, Madison Square Garden officials made plans Thursday for a series of heavy-weight fights.

Quarry suddenly injected himself into the midst of the picture with his victory over Foster, an 8-to-5 favorite who had won all 24 of his previous fights by knockouts.

Teddy Brenner, Garden matchmaker, has a plan that could lead to a February challenge for champion Joe Frazier.

"I would like to put George Chuvalo (a knockout winner over Quarry Dec. 12) in with George Foreman on Aug. 3," said Brenner. Chuvalo, Canadian champion, comes from Toronto.

Foreman is the unbeaten former Olympic champ who has been rolling up knockout victories on a busy schedule.

"Chuvalo said he wanted $50,000 and I told him he had it," said Brenner. "I'm waiting for his answer."

Brenner's plans would send the Foreman-Chuvalo winner against Quarry in the Garden in October, with the survivor getting a shot at Frazier for the title in early February.

Lou Cavalaris Getting Stoical

TORONTO (CP) — Lou Cavalaris prefers to remain philosophical about his professional misfortunes, even if they are big ones.

Cavalaris trains Two Violins, the horse which until Thursday morning was the outstanding favorite to win Canada's richest thoroughbred event—the 111th running Saturday of the Queen's Plate, which now has a purse of $92,200.

Two Violins showed swelling on his left foreleg after a workout Thursday morning and owner George Gardiner of Temple agreed with his trainer that the horse shouldn't be entered.

"Ho," was Cavalaris' immediate answer when a reporter asked if he thought there was a fix on his top contender.

"This sort of thing happens to lots of horses. We've got a bunch out at the farm now with injuries of one kind or another."

Cavalaris has had a series of such disappointments in recent years, and 1968 was one of the worst.

He saddled Peter Fuller's Dancer's Image which won the 1968 Kentucky Derby. But discovery of a prohibited drug in the horse's urine disqualified him from the winner's purse. A few weeks later, Dancer's Image came third in the Preakness but again was set back because he had bumped another horse.

"It's just racing luck," said Cavalaris.

Much the same fate plagued Cavalaris in 1967 when he was training Plate contender Cool Reception. He and owner Larkin Mahoney decided to enter the horse in the Belmont Stakes where it finished second but broke a leg 70 yards from the finish line.

The bad luck came back Tuesday when Two Violins, undefeated in five starts this year, stumbled during a workout. Cavalaris reported the horse appeared sound after the accident and "seemed looked better" after a workout Wednesday.

But after the Thursday morning gallop, the feeding showed swelling and Gardiner withheld the $1,000 entry fee for Two Violins.

He did, however, put down $2,000 to enter the filly Mary of Scotland and Dean of York. The entry was immediately rated 8-1 by the Woodbine Racetrack odds-makers.

The withdrawal of Two Violins opened up the field for several contenders with Dance to Market a slight favorite at 5-2 over Montrealer J. Louis Levesque's entry of Frazzledash and Croquemitaine, both at 3-1.

Inflation Debated

Benson, Basford Slam Unions; Stanfield Says Policy Cruel

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Thursday night approved the government's main spending estimates of $8,813,217,598 for the 1969-70 year — but not without a few parting salvos on inflation.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford slammed labor-indeed for calling the prices and incomes commission to "go to bloody" with its wage restraint policy.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the government's anti-inflation policy is hard-boiled and cruel.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said the policies are a "shambles" and defended the refusal of organized labor to agree with the prices and incomes commission on limiting wage demands.

The bill authorizing the main spending estimates whipped through first and second readings, committee and third reading in five minutes after MPs spent nearly an hour on filibusters on 12 separate votes. The bill now goes to the Senate.

There were four standing votes and eight others were decided by yeas and nays on division. None of the recorded votes was close as the government had at least one opposition party supporting it on each occasion.

Voting on the four divisions was 142 to 27, 138 to 41, 142 to 26 and 139 to 29.

The estimates passed on the session's final allotted "opposition day," in which the opposition chooses the subject for debate. The battle over government anti-inflation policy was renewed in the debate.

Mr. Benson said labor is trying to write everything it can out of the economy rather than agreeing to the prices and incomes commission wage restraint guide.

Mr. Benson said the country would be suffering less from inflation and there would be less unemployment if labor had cooperated earlier with the commission.

Without an "early and marked reversal" in wage and salary increases, price stability was beyond hope. He charged that Mr. Douglas had tried to undermine the prices and incomes commission since it began work more than a year ago.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Benson is saying the Canadian economy "very substantially below par." The government had actually incurred inflation by applying restraints in the home-building industry.

Higher rents and prices had resulted, "driving up unemployment figures, he said.

The government was deliberately creating unemployment to fight inflation. If Canadians were to support anti-inflation policies, they had to be convinced they were humane.

Mr. Douglas said unions could not make binding contracts under the commission's restraint guides, while business only offered "pious expressions of hope."

He said the government should meet with business and labor to discuss anti-inflation measures. This duty should not be left to the prices and incomes commission.

The economy should also be expanded and selective controls applied to prices, profits, rents and all forms of income if prices got out of hand.

Adrian Lambert (Crediton—Bellechasse) said farmers are being victimized by the government's anti-inflation policy. But farmers were not contributing to inflation.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) urged the government to provide tax incentives to industry to encourage more productivity and to keep prices within the limits set by the commission.

Penalties should be imposed on those who did not keep within the price guides.

Munro Assailed On Abortion Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister John Munro was met with shouts and cures from a feminist group Thursday after addressing the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare.

The women accused Mr. Munro of forcing 200,000 Canadian women a year to go to abortionists.

Mr. Munro replied: "Your views are being taken into consideration, but we're not entertaining any changes at present."

Earlier during the welfare conference, two Hamilton psychiatrists offered diverging views on militant feminists, one comparing them to Amazons and the other saying women's problems are caused by men.

Dr. Allan MacFarlane, of McMaster University and Henderson General Hospital, said women seem to want to get out of their female skins.

"If one is to believe some of the things they say, they appear to be the first cousins of those other female warriors, the Amazons, who cut off their right breasts so that they might draw their bows more efficiently," he said.

Dr. Peter Smith, of St. Joseph's Hospital, said more women end up in psychiatric treatment than men, particularly men, are not taught how to live constructively in a family setup.

"Warmth, gentleness, empathy and tenderness are often neither completely absent in the men or, more commonly, present under such heavy defences that their appearance is frightening," he said.

Bourassa Budget Aims At Economic Resurgence

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa presented his first budget Thursday, a housecleaning operation aimed at preparing the province for what he called an "economic resurgence."

Mr. Bourassa, 36, also finance minister, told the Quebec national assembly the province's finances had to be straightened out before any economic and social reforms could take place.

He described the sum of his $207,000,000 — deficit budget as "consolidation."

The present government was left in "a $250,000,000 hole" by the former Union Nationale government. It had to be filled through negotiations with the federal government, adjustment of equalization payments by Ottawa and cutting provincial expenditures by $95,000,000.

The $250,000,000 "handicap" included expenses of nearly $160,000,000 which the former government did not account for when it presented its spending estimates for fiscal 1970-71 before calling the April 29 general election.

Mr. Bourassa did not present any new spending programs in his budget, which contained no tax increases.

The budget made no mention of a medical care insurance program, which apparently is to be financed under a premium system. The Union Nationale had promised to start the program July 1, but the new Liberal government will not present its legislation on the matter until next week.

Proposals in the budget for tax reforms and measures to promote the economy were discussed in general terms.

A finance department official said the new administration simply did not have time to draw up more precise legislative programs. Rather, it set out a number of fields for detailed study.

The $207,000,000 deficit for fiscal 1970-71, which started April 1, compares with a $230,700,000 deficit in the previous fiscal year.

The budget addresses included proposals for tax benefits for municipalities, working mothers, artists and professional athletes. It also promised a new system of investment grants for industry.

The government said the revenue department's powers would be broadened in a battle against tax evaders. Penalties for late filers would be increased.

Jean-Jacques Bertrand, former Union Nationale premier and leader of the Opposition now, commented that Quebec will neither be "saved nor lost by a few million dollars more or less" in the budget.

Galbraith States Americans Worry Over Big Firms' Power

TORONTO (CP) — John Kenneth Galbraith says people in the United States are as concerned as Canadians about the power of large U.S. corporations.

Dr. Galbraith, arguing for selective wage and price controls, said large corporations, not consumers, now have the power to determine what the consumer wants.

Dr. Galbraith, spoke Thursday at the 50th annual meeting of the Society of Industrial Accountants of Canada. A native of Iona Station, Ont., he is a professor of economics at Harvard University and a former U.S. ambassador to India.

The money and time required for modern production makes companies seek ways to ensure their products are sold, he said.

"What people get is not what they want but what they are persuaded to want," he said.

He said the original Ford car was made with a capital outlay of $28,000 and major design changes could have been made in two or three weeks. It requires $50,000,000 and three years work to develop a recent model, he said.

He said it does not matter where the head office of a company is in terms of its impact on the consumer. The individual felt himself "in the grip of large impersonal powers."

At a news conference later Dr. Galbraith said American domination "should certainly be among the lower order of worries" for Canadians.

He said his proposal to stop inflation in the U.S. would fix for a six-month freeze on wages and prices. At the end of that period wages and prices would be freed in those areas where there was no "market power"—the power to create consumer demands.

The market power was in the control of the large corporations, which had employees that were members of large unions.

Dr. Galbraith discounted the guideline approach to inflation control with the comment: "The key for that nonsense is passed."

At the end of the six-month period, he said, wage and price controls should be imposed on the sectors of the economy that had market power.

Nurses Urged to Seek Equality With Doctors

FREDERICTON (CP) — Canada's nurses must "raise their heads from their traditional dependent role," Rosemary Coombs, clinical nurse specialist at the Ottawa Civic Hospital, said Thursday.

Mrs. Coombs told nurses attending the general meeting of the Canadian Nurses Association they should seek the knowledge and clinical expertise necessary to establish themselves as "interdependent partners" on the medical team.

Health professionals must work in "peer relationships."

Nurses must assume some medical function if they are to "keep apreast of medical advances and their effects on patient care," Mrs. Coombs said.

Dr. F. B. Falls of the department of family and community medicine at the University of Toronto said the local health team is one of the "most best hopes of maintaining any sort of quality in community life."

Dr. Falls said the "seriousness and urgency" of problems common to nurses and physicians demand rapid growth of new forms of grouping and cooperation in health.

An expanded role for the nurse, he said, is "absolutely essential."

Monica Green of Victoria, director of public health nursing for the British Columbia department of health services and hospital insurance, said government is short-changing Canada's public health nurses and agencies.

She said 95 per cent of Canada's health care budget goes to treatment, while only five per cent is spent on prevention.

Shulman Threat 'Phoney': Wishart

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morris Shulman's allegation that the Mafia had issued a "contract" for his death were delated in the legislature for the third day Thursday, with Attorney-General Arthur Wishart describing the allegation as "completely phoney."

Mr. Wishart, rising on a point of privilege, said the NDP member's charges had been investigated by "several police departments" and that there is no evidence of a Mafia death threat.

He said police had assigned a bodyguard to Dr. Shulman (Toronto High Park) after a woman had phoned police to say she overheard a remark at a cocktail party that if the MPP did not mind his own business he might be hurt.

Dr. Shulman told the house Tuesday that when he returned from a trip to Europe Saturday, he found that his wife had been wakened by police of a Mafia threat against him.

He said Thursday he has two witnesses who heard police officers use the words "Mafia" and "contract" when they spoke to his wife.

During his visit in Europe, Dr. Shulman went to Sicily, home of the Mafia, to follow up his personal investigation of alleged Mafia influence in Ontario.

The MPP charged in the house June 4 that known Canadian Mafiosi were friendly with an, Oakville businessman who boasted of his friendship with officers of the provincial police.

Dr. Shulman also revealed in the house Tuesday that he had written a letter to Mr. Wishart asking for an investigation of two prominent Torontonians concerning "suspect" money funnelled into legitimate businesses.

Metropolitan Toronto police, who assigned detectives to guard Dr. Shulman as a "routine precaution" after the reported death threat, withdrew the guards Thursday.

Mr. Wishart told the house the police provided the protection only because this is a routine precaution whenever there is a threat of physical harm.

In other business in the legislature Thursday:

—Municipal Affairs Minister Daroy McKeough introduced amendments to the Planning Act which will make all land in Ontario subject to subdivision control. A department spokesman said the bill should stop such developments as those of Whitecrok Estates which subdivided and sold rural land for housing purposes in the Peterborough area where no adequate services exist and where the municipalities are not prepared to meet the burdens that will results.

—Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said the province and Ottawa have reached an impasse over the validity of Ontario's calculations of revenue to be derived from proposed tax reforms in the federal white paper. The controversy arose last December when Ontario suggested the tax reform proposals would yield $1,300,000,000 in revenue, not $830,000,000 as Ottawa had suggested.

—The Women's Equal Employment Opportunity Act was sent for third reading over opposition protests that certain sections of the bill treat women like schoolgirls and others discriminate against women working in small companies.

—Revenue Minister John White introduced 18 pages of amendments to the Corporations Tax Act, made necessary by recent amendments to the federal Income Tax Act. The amendments, which include making clear that the act applies to all insurance corporations, becomes effective the day the bill receives royal assent.

—Agriculture Minister William Stewart introduced legislation which will provide for coverage by Ontario's crop insurance program of losses arising from a farmer's inability to seed his land because of adverse weather conditions.

—Premier John Robarts told the government will take action before the next election on a committee report that recommended the voting age and legal majority be reduced to 18 from 21.

—John Yaremko, social and family services minister, said the rate paid to trainees in recognized vocational rehabilitation workshops in the province has been increased to $25 a month from $20, retroactive to April 1, 1970.

Consumer Bureau Is Kept Busy

TORONTO (CP) — The department of commercial and financial affairs in 1969 received 2,240 written and 36,000 telephoned complaints at its consumer protection bureau, the department said in its annual report Thursday.

The branch was able to achieve redress in 1,026 cases and failed to get redress in 741. Another 178 complaints were found unjustified and 127 were discontinued by the consumer.

Warnings were issued in 19 cases of inadequate information of the cost of credit in advertisements and three cease-and-desist orders were issued on false, misleading or deceptive advertising. There was voluntary withdrawal by offending advertisers in "a number of other cases."

There were more than 200 complaints in the year in each of these areas: applicances and furniture, home driveway paving, home improvements and repairs and magazines and books. Another 108 complaints dealt with apartment rental security deposits and leases.

Biafrans Will Face Hardship

LAGOS (AP) — The Nigerian Red Cross is scheduled to end its relief operations in what used to be Biafra at the end of June, but about 3,000,000 persons are still living in hunger and economic despair in the former rebel state.

Experts warn that the Red Cross pullback could imperil the lives of some 2,500,000 children who lived through or were born during the 2½-year war of secession.

The director of the Nigerian Christian Council, Emmanuel Urhobo, said the figure of 2,000,000 persons in danger—estimated three weeks ago—probably has risen.

National and state government rehabilitation committees alone are slated to take over the Red Cross relief work, but there is widespread doubt of their ability to do so.

Although starvation no longer hangs over the Ibo people and others who joined the rebellion, many go hungry in villages and towns around Owerri and Orlu, 240 miles southeast of Lagos.

Thousands of children are severely undernourished. Their milk rations will end when the Red Cross goes.

Countless people are out of work in the towns, and in the villages the main cassava crop is still two months away, while other crops have not yet been planted.

Man Is Shot Three Times In Gun Battle with Police

The man, described by police as a former mental patient, was wounded twice in the arm and once in the neck.

Police said the man was shot by two policemen as he ran down the stairs from his second-floor apartment firing a .22-calibre rifle as he ran.

The gunman had been flushed from the apartment with tear gas after shooting at police for 30 minutes down the stairway.

The gunman carried a .22-calibre pump-action rifle and a pouch containing 2,811 rounds of .22-calibre ammunition and 13 rounds of .45-calibre ammunition.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I smoke like the proverbial chimney. My wife calls me a chain smoker. I am more than that. I'm the kind of smoker who never takes the cigarette out of my mouth until it has burned down to about a half inch from my lips. I "set" about three packs a day.

I am 53 and extremely healthy. Have no cough or any other symptoms. Yet my wife worries, isn't it true that some of us are immune to the so-called poison we call tobacco? Why should I quit, when I enjoy it so much? — Mr. O.

Comment: Some of us are immune. But we have no way of knowing which ones' are susceptible to disease. Russian roulette, anyone?

That's what it amounts to. A gamble. Your wife has good reason to worry. I know statistics won't convince you, yet they may be of interest.

For example, a recent study by Drs. G. Z. Brett and B. Benjamin of London, England, of 15,000 English smokers showed some interesting results. They called your type of smoking the drooping cigarette habit — in which smokers do not take the cigarette out of their mouth between puffs.

Such smokers had the highest mortality rate from lung cancer: 14 times greater than that of nonsmokers and ex-smokers. They also found (and you have undoubtedly read similar reports) that heavy smokers had death rates three times that of light smokers and eight times that of nonsmokers.

Congratulations are in order (and I'm not being sarcastic on your present "extremely good" health. How long will it last? No doctor can say...But I think you must admit that you're a "gamble" man.)

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is it really true that too many eggs are not good for you? I have a hard-boiled egg every day for lunch. A friend just told me that I am hurting my health. I am in my 70s and feel fine. How many days a week can I have my eggs? — Mr. N.

Comment: An egg a day will keep the doctor away! (In similar instances I have never changed the egg-eating habits of an apparently healthy patient of your age.) I wouldn't want you to suffer unnecessarily. From what I call "cholesterolophobia."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Recently I have noticed a hump in my left breast. I am a 71-year-old male. After going to our family doctor, he said I have nothing to worry about. However: I foolishly fear that he is incorrect and that this may be cancer. What is your opinion? — Mr. C.

Comment: It is possible for a male to have cancer of the breast, but it is relatively rare compared to the incidence of female breast cancer. And it is even less likely to occur in a 12-year-old male. Nevertheless, for your peace of mind, ask your patient to arrange for a consultation with a surgeon. (Chances are the news will be good.)

• • •

For Mrs. U.: You say you take quinine every night for the muscle cramps in your legs. This might be the cause of the "ringing in the ears." Some persons are sensitive to quinine.

But this is only one possibility. Do you smoke or drink excessively? Sometimes excessive use in the ears causes ringing. Is there any trouble in your inner ear? (Better see an ear specialist.)

If your ears are all right, then have your family doctor check on your blood pressure and any other medicines you may be taking.

Some Are Immune, Who Knows Who?

Montreal Firm Develops New Way to Treat Wastes

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal-based company says it has developed a revolutionary method of treating industrial and municipal wastes which could cut treatment costs by as much as 70 per cent.

Developed by Canatraco Ltd., the new system uses oxygen and ozone to remove up to 98 per cent of micro-organisms and certain poisons from waste material.

Karel Stopka, president, says the firm has spent seven years "of hard work" developing the ozone process for the treatment of industrial wastes, sewage, polluted salt water, drinking water and air.

The company also manufacturers and sells biological research supplies.

Recently tests were carried out on sewage water in Granby, Que. The city's director of technical services, Andre Laliberte, says the results were excellent.

Canatraco's principal innovation is the development of a system to treat waste materials directly within the waste pipe, usually within the last 1,000 feet.

Mr. Stopka says the elimination of holding tanks and other equipment can cut the cost of sewage treatment by about 70 per cent.

The Canatraco process first pulverizes waste material like tiny particles within a gas chamber. The particles are then exposed to oxygen and ozone under pressure and within a closed system. Any ozone not consumed in the oxydation reaction is recovered and recirculated.

Since ozone is an active form of oxygen, containing three atoms of oxygen in a molecule, it reverts rapidly to oxygen. Consequently, it does not cause unwanted side-effects such as those created by the addition of chlorine or other chemicals to waste water.

Several cities in Europe and the United States use ozone in water purification plants instead of chlorine.

The high cost of conventional waste treatment has prevented many cities from installing treatment plants, Mr. Stopka says. However, the Canatraco process is cheap enough to be bought by even small municipalities.

In the treatment of industrial wastes, the ozone-oxygen process is effective in oxidizing common industrial byproducts such as cyanide and phenol.

Canatraco plans to market a small treatment unit for the purification of drinking water at summer cottages and city homes. The system will not only kill micro-organisms but will remove offensive odors, colors and iron, manganese, phenol and chlorine.

Sydney J. Harris Says

U. S. President Isolated

One of the books I have been reading lately is George Reedy's "The Twilight of the Presidency," by the man who served briefly and bitterly as President Johnson's press secretary.

What emerges from this book is the absolute conviction that we have to "ventilate" the White House. We need to let in more air and light and the hubbub of public controversy.

Despite more facts at his finger-tips than any other man in the world, the President — whoever he may be—remains one of the most insulated men in the world. He is protected by his advisers, loodled to by his associates, hampered by his staff, and shut off from the fresh breezes of public sentiment.

This has always been true. President Garfield, nearly a century ago, remarked that "The President is the last person in the world to know what the people really want and think." Since then, the White House has become even more remote from everyday life, as experts multiply, administrative bureaus flourish, and the whole panoply of promotion and publicity armors the Chief Executive against the rude winds of popular feeling.

How otherwise could an shrewd a politician as Lyndon Johnson have misjudged the mood of the nation that a hastily organized campaign of college kids succeeded in dislodging him from office? How else could so facile a compromiser as Richard Nixon make two successive mistakes in selecting nominees for the Supreme Court?

Presidents are told what they would like to hear. Their whims are indulged, their immaturities unrepressed, their circle is confined to age-mates, yes-men-aides and a like-minded man. It becomes easy to believe that this select self-serving group represents "the country," and understands the temper of the times.

It is a part-political problem, growing beyond party and issues. It is a matter of getting the President out of his gilded cage and into the mainstream of society. To confer upon him such immense power, without all the same time seeing to it that he is responsible to all the complex and conflicting needs of society, is to erect a kind of modern monarchy as oppressive as the one we overthrew.

It should not be so necessary for the Court to rebuke, or the Congress to revoke what the White House proposes. It is not the "power" of the Presidency that corrupts, so much as the pride, the privileges, the prerogatives of office that seal off a man from the ultimate reality of his age.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 20

Your birthday today: Independence of spirit is essential in the coming year. Going it alone is not quite feasible, and perhaps the philosophic equivalent might be said, once again, for achievable. Romances comes and perhaps goes abruptly. Today's natives are more independent than most Geminis. Their special gift is for emulation and imitation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Romantic attraction appears without warning and provides some interesting situations. Family affairs become complicated no matter what is happening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today's experiences include some novelty, some excitement, mind-improvement programs are very productive. Make it a sort of holiday evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Arrange matters of long range security. The most tempting use of the day is the pursuit of pleasure, sentimental expressions, romance.

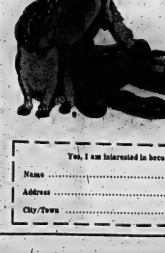
CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Arguments should be avoided at least through today. Use forbearance to bridge the gap between what you want and when it can be had.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Outline today's doings and stick with it despite interruptions. Do switch back and forth between different activities. Simplicity is best.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Early disagreements fade as this interesting and exciting day wears on. Contacts made today evoke emotional reactions. Romantic attractions depend on new circumstances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The unexpected incident is normal in today's love story. Attend the problems of older people. Arrange to make your home more convenient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You find yourself with more things to do than there is time. Begin promptly. Some earnings opportunity might well be lost in the service of basic needs.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Nothing turns out quite as planned, but with any luck at all, it's a happy and rewarding experience. Take the time tonight to enjoy it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Today there is just enough opposition to stimulate you. Fresh encounters bring meaningful relations and opportunities. Be open-minded.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your severity should carry you through your dealings with insecure people. Later you find happier, interesting contacts by apparent chance.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Coping with the quick tempers of other people is part of your adjustment formula today. With patience, it all works out well by evening.

He said in an interview he had written O. D. Vaughan, chairman of the university's board of governors, this week and had set his proposed resignation date as June 30, 1971.

The board is expected to accept Dr. Bissell's resignation when it meets next Thursday. He has indicated privately during recent years that he wishes to resign after presiding over changes in the university's governing structure.

Dr. Bissell said he did not want to expand on his plans until after the Thursday meeting, at which time a statement would be issued.

Potential successors are John Deutsch, principal of Queen's University, Kingston; A. Davidson Dunton, president of Carleton University, Ottawa; Douglas Wright, chairman of Ontario's committee on university affairs; and at the University of Toronto, J. H. Dr. Bissell, 54, became president of the university in 1958 after two years as president of Carleton University in Ottawa.

Witnesses Declare Prisoner Assaulted

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Three Crown witnesses testified Thursday that Amherstburg Police Chief Ronald Seney hit and kicked a man he had under arrest Feb. 21.

The police chief of the town about 15 miles south of Windsor was charged with assault causing bodily harm by Frederick Brown, 23, of Amherstburg.

Brown, who was fined $150 for creating a disturbance earlier that night, testified Chief Seney hit him once in the face with his fist and kicked him in the ribs.

Anderdon Township Constable Neil Bouzsey said Chief Seney approached his car in which Brown was sitting. Constable Bouzsey said Chief Seney took off his coat, watch and gun and told Brown: "I'll teach you to put the boots to one of my men."

Anderdon Township Constable William Cota said Chief Seney flung Brown over the car door knocking off the car aerial.

The trial continues.

Chief Dismissed

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Fire Chief Donald Clark, fired and rehired by Strathroy town council in April, was again dismissed Thursday night at a special council session.

In a recorded vote, council gave first, second and third readings to a bylaw terminating Chief Clark's appointment effective June 30 and reverting the fire station's position back to a part-time voluntary basis.

Youth Is Charged In Cousin's Death

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Brian Joseph Kelly, 16, of Harriston, Ont., was charged Thursday with non-capital murder in the shooting death of his cousin, Eugene Kelly, 31.

Police said Brian Kelly was arrested after he walked into police headquarters here. A car and a .22-calibre rifle were seized at the time of the arrest.

Eugene Kelly was found in his Harriston farmhouse Wednesday by his father. Police said Kelly had been shot twice in the chest about 48 hours before his body was discovered. Two .22-calibre shell casings and the victim's empty wallet were found near the body.

Mrs. Eugene Kelly is in hospital in Guelph where she gave birth to a son June 11. Another son, Shaun, 2½, was at home and found crying upstairs when his grandfather came to the farm.

Harriston is 40 miles northwest of Guelph.

Kraft Paper Mill Project Is Studied

Development Would Cost $71-Million

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Establishment of a $71-million kraft paper mill and satellite operations on the verges of the Quinte district is under negotiation.

The federal and provincial governments are encouraging location of the kraft paper mill somewhere on the lakefront between Trenton and Cobourg, with a feeder mill operation in the Bancroft district.

But Canadian International Paper Company, now negotiating with two levels of government on establishing the industry near here has not yet announced a firm decision on the matter.

The Trenton-Cobourg area is being considered as the site of a huge kraft paper mill, with a feeder pulp-making mill in the Bancroft district to supply the lakeshore processing unit. The two projects could employ a total of close to 1,200. They would be linked together by rail, with 60 freight cars of wood chips moving from Bancroft to the lakefront every day.

Engineering operations leaning out from Bancroft into the Upper Ottawa Valley would provide many more jobs in an area of slow economic growth.

The federal and provincial governments have offered to pay $5 million toward the cost of the Bancroft mill if CIP decides on the Quinte-based operation.

Although the development appears to be one of the best-known secrets in Quinte public and business circles, the project remains foiled in top-level secrecy. No firmly official progress reports are available, although provincial Agriculture Minister William A. Stewart recently lifted the curtain slightly when he said the Bancroft phase would provide a major boost for the Upper Ottawa Valley.

That region has been designated for special regional development assistance. The Bancroft mill is the first major Eastern Ontario project proposed for federal grants under the designation.

MIRVs Ready To Fly

'Happy Father's Day, dear!'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newest addition to the United States nuclear arsenal — global missiles capable of carrying multiple warheads — have been installed and primed for launch in concrete silos buried in North Dakota near the Canadian border.

The U.S. Air Force, in an announcement Friday, said the Strategic Air Command has taken control of the first flight of the Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles at Minot Air Force Base, N.D.

A flight consists of 10 Minuteman III missiles. Each missile can carry three independently targetable re-entry vehicles—warheads known as MIRVs. Some warheads will contain electronic deception devices to confuse enemy radar instead of nuclear bombs.

The deployment of the missiles was not unexpected. The air force told Congress in March the first MIRV-equipped Minuteman IIIs would be operational sometime in June.

But the air force declined Friday to say if the multiple warheads were already installed on the Minuteman IIIs.

The decision to go ahead with deployment of these highly-sophisticated weapons capable of hitting separate targets comes at a time when the United States is trying to reach strategic arms limitation agreements with the Soviet Union.

Nixon administration officials said the decision to deploy the MIRVs would not impair the prospects for an arms agreement.

Other officials, including Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird, contended the administration's determination to proceed with MIRV and the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system adds to the bargaining effectiveness of the U.S. negotiators.

School Plane Total Wreck, Six Injured

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP) — Six persons were taken to hospital after a DC-3 aircraft carrying 34 students and three crew members crashed Friday night in a wooded area on Canadian Forces Base Val d'Or with its left engine burning.

A spokesman at St. Sauveur hospital said the pilot, co-pilot and radio operator suffered the worst injuries but were not in serious condition. Three students were treated for shock, minor cuts and bruises.

The aircraft was carrying teen-age Indian students from a school they attended in Noranda to their homes in the Fort George, Que., area for the summer vacation.

An RCAF spokesman said the aircraft had stopped at the air force station to refuel and "about two or three minutes after take-off the left engine went on fire."

"We believe the pilot was attempting to return to the runway for a landing, but he didn't make it."

The aircraft, owned by Austin Airways, was described as a total loss.

Cabinet Appears Split On LeDain Drug Report

Minutes after the report was tabled in the Commons Friday, Health Minister John Munro and Justice Minister John Turner differed about what the government may do to implement the report.

In a statement as the interim report was tabled, the government said it will consider recommending to Parliament that marijuana be shifted from the Narcotics Control Act to the Food and Drug Act and the penalty for possession be limited to fines rather than jail terms.

Outside the House, Mr. Munro forecast that the changes will be implemented at the next session of Parliament, to begin in October.

Mr. Turner, standing nearby, said that government is committed only to consider the proposal.

For Summary Of LeDain Report's Findings See Page 17

Quickly rejected by the government was the proposal that possession of not only marijuana, but any drug, including heroin, be subject to fines of no more than $100.

Mr. Munro said the government has decided against any all-encompassing changes until the commission makes its final report next year.

Gerald LeDain, the York University law dean who is leading the royal commission study, defended the no-jail proposal at a news conference.

"No one should be liable for prison for simple use of a drug —that is a general principle," he said.

Among the five commissioners, Professor Marie A. Bertrand, University of Montreal criminologist, said in a minority report that marijuana possession should not be an offence.

The majority report said the Initial reaction generally has been favorable to the interim report of the LeDain royal commission on the non-medical use of drugs, except for a proposal to drop jail sentences for possession of hard drugs such as heroin.

Sgt. John Finnie, head of the Vancouver city police drug squad, said the recommended leniency for marijuana smokers "missed the other side of the picture". The other side, he said, shows that countries where drug use is prevalent "are full of bloody dropouts."

Inspector John Wilson of the morality squad of the Metropolitan Toronto police said jail terms have a definite deterrent effect and made it possible for a user to kick the habit because he was separated from narcotics while in prison.

Reaction from clergymen, social workers, lawyers, psychiatrists and youth groups was overwhelmingly favorable.

The proposal to remove jail terms for drug possession was welcomed by Dr. Sidney Lecker, director of youth services in the psychiatric department of Montreal General Hospital; Dr. Vivian Rakoff, psychiatrist at Toronto's Clarke Institute; and Dr. John D. Griffin, general director of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

If organized labor demands 35-per-cent wage hikes in an economy expanding at the rate of five per cent a year, he told the men, "somebody's going to get screwed and it's not going to be you."

The economy could pay back only the increase in productivity put into it and if the strong insisted on taking out more than their share, then the weak—those on fixed incomes or pensions—will suffer because of it.

He said it is the government's job to protect these people.

Three workers he talked to struck back determinedly, maintaining that the federal government was asking labor to bear the brunt of restraint.

They also argued that while management, industry and professionals might accept wage restraint for a limited period, labor would be bound to settlements by a three-year contract whether or not inflation had been beaten.

Mr. Trudeau suggested they sign six-month or one-year contracts which, he expected, would give the government all the time it needed to curb inflation. He said if labor had co-operated with the government last summer inflation now would be licked.

PM Preaches Wage Restraint To Workers and to Farmers

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau preached the gospel of wage restraint Friday in a series of dialogues across southwestern Ontario.

He first argued the subject with workers wearing New Democratic Party buttons at the Ford Motor Co. plant in Talbotville, about 10 miles south of London. He met some determined grass-roots resistance.

The reception was more friendly during the evening in this farming and manufacturing town, where he replied to a series of local economic complaints by outlining the government's strategy against inflation.

In between, he visited Guelph, where he talked with young people at a new youth hostel, and Douglas Point, where he inspected the controversial $1,000,000,000 nuclear power plant owned by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

At Talbotville the prime minister accused members of strong labor unions of trying to take all they can from the economy to the detriment of the weak and the poor who suffer most from inflation. The plant workers belong to the United Automobile Workers union.

Heath Starts Rule

LONDON (CP) — Edward Heath made himself comfortable Friday at 10 Downing Street, shaping his cabinet, and then with a smile and a wave to a waiting crowd drove off to Windsor Castle to dine with the Queen.

Thus began the first Conservative regime in six years after the biggest election upset in a quarter-century. As Labor Leader Harold Wilson hastily moved out of the residence and struggled to find reasons for his defeat, the new prime minister prepared his strategy to modify Britain's expanding welfare state and steer it more towards free enterprise.

Heath's Conservatives wound up with a total of 330 seats to 288 for Labor, 26 for the Liberals and six for a miscellany of other opposition members.

The Tories captured 13,106,985 votes or 46.4 per cent of the total 28,258,572 ballots cast, compared with 43 per cent for Labor, 7.4 per cent for the Liberals and 3.2 per cent for others.

Brockville Hippo Again Is on Lam

BROCKVILLE (CP) — A hippopotamus which broke out of his pen in the nearby Woodland Park Zoo two years ago and was on the loose for nearly a week has gone astray again.

Zoo owner John Vanderschuit said the 8,000-pound animal broke through a six-foot-high wire fence late Tuesday or early Wednesday and hasn't been seen since.

After the animal escaped in 1968 it was found in a creek on the zoo property and two local residents claimed a $1,000 reward for finding it.

Mr. Vanderschuit said he had delayed reporting the escape this time in hope of recapturing the hippo without publicity.

Kraft

Mr. Stewart said the project has been given formal Ontario approval under an order in council. Specific details are still to be worked out between CIP and both senior governments, the minister added.

The order authorizes Ontario participation under AEDA agreements.

The prospect of a huge CIP development somewhere in the region is not exactly novel. However, the latest reports indicated a shift in location patterns are dramatically recent.

Earlier this year, there was electrifying news for the Bancroft area when Queen's Park announcements indicated the entire kraft paper mill would locate in the North Hastings area.

Sometime later, apparently, the Ontario Water Resources Commission voiced fears for initial surroundings, because of inadequate water supplies. The enterprise would demand plenty of deep water.

Mr. Stewart said the decision to build a chipping mill in the Bancroft area and shift the kraft mill to the lakefront, was intended to solve this dilemma.

CIP is reported scanning several sites between Port Hope and Gananoque.

Educated guessers are giving the Cobourg-Trenton area priority because of rail links to the northern sources of supply.

Russell Rowe, the Cobourg MPP who represents the area, last night could not say if the final site had been pinpointed for his area.

"But as I say, I'm optimistic," he added.

Mr. Rowe was hopeful of some announced decisions in "the very near future."

Site chosen for the Bancroft-area chipping mill is reported to be 200 acres on Blue's Creek near Highway 62. From here the chipped pulpwood would be fed by hoover to the lakefront operation.

The entire undertaking would be in production in three years, reports indicate.

The size of the lakeshore project — if realized — also would demand close pollution checks. Indications are that the OWRC would install a model supervision plant.

"I can assure you there would be no mill even built until they have satisfied the OWRC," said Mr. Rowe. "This would be one of the prime requirements of people's minds can be at rest."

Oops, watch that first step, it's a dilly and cold besides. There were many such spills yesterday in the first race of the North American Albacore championships as 44 Albacore-class sailboats vied for positions in the race. No serious mishaps occurred but there were a number of dumpings, one right at the end of the race, a broken rudder on one entry and another craft was towed back to port disabled. What lies in store for the final race at 10 a.m. tomorrow?

More Park Land Sought

A call for the reservation of more park area in the city's rapidly developing northwest sector, was heard at last night's city parks board meeting.

The request was made by Alderman Robin Jeffrey during discussion on a draft plan of a proposed subdivision which would see construction of 14 apartment structures of 11 units in the Treacy Street area.

Under the plan, the developer would provide five per cent (one half acre) in the southeast corner of the subdivision for park purposes.

Parks superintendent Lloyd Syer said that the one half acre would make a good neighborhood park but said that because the area was nearing the city boundary, this pointed out the need for regional planning to provide for community parks.

Parks chairman Alderman Paul Russell observed that under current regulations, municipalities were entitled only to five per cent of land from developers.

"We have to decide on whether to take the five per cent or take cash in lieu," he said.

Board member Don Pemper-man said if additional park area was required, it was the city's responsibility to provide the money.

Alderman Jeffrey said the need for more park area in the northwest part of the city had been impressed on her by the destruction of trees in the industrial area south of Highway 401.

This is one of the last remaining wooded areas in the city," she said. "It is up to us to provide parks for the next 25 or 75 years."

At the suggestion of Alderman Donald Soutter, approval of the proposed Treacy Park subdivision was deferred to allow city parks superintendent to confer with the planning department and come up with suggestions for an area park proposal.

Yardmen Continue to 'Book Sick'

Yardmen with the CN here are still booking sick today as many continue their protest over a union ruling on seniority.

Although support from yardmen in other Central Region terminals failed to materialize, the 34 Belleville men have refused to end the fight.

Last night they walked out of a meeting with CN and union officials at Club Canaro after 20 minutes.

Reports that 25 yardmen at Richmond and Chaudiere, Quebec, were booking sick were denied this morning by Richmond yardmaster J. R. Tremblay.

"We couldn't get together on the issue, but we are having another meeting tomorrow," Mr. Tremblay reported.

The Belleville yardmen, leaders of the protest movement over a 1969 contract they feel undermines their seniority rights, have vowed to continue to book sick. At last night's meeting, George McDevitt, Canadian vice-president of the United Transportation Union, asked the men to return to work.

The men countered with an offer to go back on a 30-day basis at the end of which they would pay all dues they owe the union — on condition they be guaranteed a hearing into their dispute with trainmen for the two crafts.

Most of the yardmen have been withholding their union dues for three months and last Wednesday were put on the spare board by the company, in accordance with its contract with the union.

The CN's action triggered the walkout in the Belleville yard. If the men return to work, they cannot regain their preference of service unless they pay their dues. The men say they will return to work only if they can continue to be delinquent in their dues and still log — not be made to go on the spare board.

George Van de Water, acting Railway Area general manager, refused to comment on the situation yesterday and could not be reached today.

Cabinet

commission can't go that far because there hasn't been enough informed public debate and the implications are not clear.

In setting out a framework for a general debate on drugs, the commission said current law is ineffective and creates contempt for the law.

It recommended that police stop using entrapment and physical violence to catch drug users, and that the definition of trafficking be narrowed to exclude non-commercial movement of drugs.

The report said that while short-term effects of marijuana are insignificant, research is needed into the long-term effects. It suggested that government finance more research that better drug-use evaluation systems be set up, and that a scientific agency free of law enforcement agencies be established.

The report destroyed some popular beliefs. There have been few LSD deaths, it said. And "speed," didn't kill—it simply wrecked the user.

Bad Battery Downs 'Copter

A faulty battery forced a large helicopter from CFB Trenton to make an emergency landing in a farmer's field near Mountain View Friday.

The helicopter — a big H-21 carrier designed to carry 30 fully-equipped troops — was flying close to Mountain View airport when its pilot Capt. N. B. Gesner, detected indications of a fault in the electrical system. Almost simultaneously, there was a muffled explosion.

The explosion was traced to a battery and the helicopter was later towed to the nearby airport for repairs.

Motorcyclist Injured in Crash

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton man was injured Thursday night when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car on Highway 40 near the golf club.

Driver of the motorcycle, Ivan Stringer, Washburn St., was treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for a shoulder injury. Driver of the car, John Broadbent, John St., Picton, was not injured.

Pipers Coming

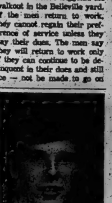
If Belleville's beat isn't in the Highlands next weekend don't blame the city's Kinsman Club.



The city will echo to the skirl of pipes next Saturday and Sunday as the club launches a Highland Weekend — with some 18 massed bands leading the way.

The program gets underway Saturday at 7 p.m. with a parade through downtown Belleville to the city armoury.

A gala Tartan Ball, with music by the Commodores Orchestra, will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Entertainment will include 30 highland dancers and the singing of Gordon Tocher, a Ted Mack talent show participant from Smithfield.

Sunday sees the peak program event with a tattoo at the Quinte Exhibition Grounds featuring all participating bands, including a massed pipes and drums display.

Close to 300 pipers will attend the weekend from an area from Brockville to Ingersoll.

John Gerald Batchelor, formerly of Belleville graduated from McMaster University, Hamilton with a B.Sc. degree (honours). He received a Canada Council award and will attend the University of British Columbia in September to study for his PhD. degree in physics. John, who is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville, is now residing in Toronto.

That Magic Touch

Parade horse 'Racktaseer' has his halter adjusted by David Culmer, son of owner Charles Culmer, before entering the ring from which he has often emerged the winner.

Show Ring Veteran To Appear Tonight

PICTON (Staff) — His stablemates just call him "Ace" but in the show ring horse enthusiasts recognize him as "the Racktaseer" one of Ontario's outstanding parade horses. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Culmer, Picton, the tall chestnut gelding is an undefeated champion in his class at the Prince Edward Spring Horse Show.

Competing in this annual event sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club in co-operation with the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society "Ace" has stolen the show for the past four years. Ridden by Charles Culmer this flashy American saddlebred has placed first in the western parade horse class at the county's spring horse show each time he was entered. This weekend "The Racktaseer" again goes on parade to defend an enviable record in the ring.

One of the most colorful classes in the annual spring western parade call for a tall horse with stamina and action. Conformation is also an important component of size and endurance. Standing 17.2 hands, "The Racktaseer" dwarfs his competitors with no trouble at all. Local horsemen have long dubbed him as the horse with conformation to born", and when it comes to action few parade horses can match the style of this veteran trouper.

The trappings used by riders in the western parade class are striking to the spectator. Saddles of German silver crafted entirely by hand except for their trees catch the lights in the ring and reflect the colors of each rider's costume. Glittering breast collars with droplets of silver glamorize each competitor's horse as do parade bridles set with silver sidepieces and lace chains. Brilliantly colored streamers flow from the horses manes and tails adding grace and dazzle.

Each rider is dressed in full western attire, his costume usually of brocade or a similar rich fabric. Popular colors for these "millionaire cowboys" include red, green, turquoise and royal blue.

Occasionally a woman entrant whips up a shirt and slacks of shocking pink or deep purple to catch a judge's eye. A footnote to the costume of every horse and rider is the gay glitter sprinkled on each competitor's hooves.

To match the beauty of his regal chestnut gelding, Charles Culmer has chosen an outfit of emerald green. The luck of the Irish seems to naturally follow his color choice since The Racktaseer is a consistent winner in show rings throughout eastern Ontario.

This weekend the County Centre will be filled with spectators who will remember the western parade class long after other events on the program are forgotten. If the Culmer Stables win their class it will be the fifth trophy that "Ace" has taken in five years of showing under the lights at this annual event.

For, Charles Culmer Jr will represent the ninth consecutive win in this class. Riding Hawthorne Noble Gold he has entered the winner's circle on five occasions. "Noble" was sold to an American stable four years ago when the Culmers purchased "Ace" performing in the show ring tonight, The Racktaseer will typify a king on parade.

If you think Ontario can solve its pollution problems without your help, you're not thinking.

Fortunately, for our future a lot's being done about pollution right now. But to wage and win the war against pollution, Ontario needs your help.

Who causes pollution anyway?

The unpleasant answer: we the people. People who buy the products that industries produce. People with cars and boats. People who flyFree people build cottages and heat homes. Even people who keep livestock. Pollution now is everyone's problem.

What's government doing about pollution?

The Ontario government is doing things. Since the formation of the Ontario Water Resources Commission in 1957 and the passing of the first provincial air pollution act in 1958, Ontario has become known as a world leader in the battle against pollution.

Industrial Pollution. It's a crime.

Stiff legislation is in force that makes pollution a crime in Ontario. It controls what our factories can put into the air and water and what they can't. These laws are being enforced and polluters are being fined. In addition Government engineers and pollution control experts are assisting industries in the planning, design and installation of pollution control equipment.

War in the air

Ontario has a task force at work clearing the air. The government has created an Air Management Branch with a highly trained staff of over 200 specialists and a multi-million dollar budget. With this kind of power directed at the air pollution problem, we can all breathe a little easier.

War on water

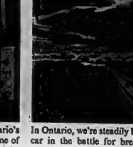
The war on water pollution is being waged and won. The Ontario Water Resources Commission works with communities throughout the province to plan and construct water supply and sewage systems. To date, more than a billion dollars have been spent on such projects making Ontario's sewage treatment facilities the best in Canada.



Pictured above is one of Ontario's 250 air monitoring stations. Some of these stations, equipped with the worlds most advanced instrumentation, check air quality and weather data which is then telemetered directly to a central office for immediate assessment and action.

What can you do about pollution?

You can get concerned and stay concerned. You can make sure your boat, your cottage, your car or your plant isn't adding to the problem. You can tell your children and yourself that air is not an ashtray, rivers and lakes are not free sewers, and soil is not dirt.

You can be prepared to invest in a clean, healthy province for our children. To do that we need a healthy economy to support our good intentions. One way you can help: when price and quality compare, shop Canadian.

In Ontario, we're steadily beating the car in the battle for breath. Strict emission control regulations (the first of their kind in Canada) were introduced in 1968 and strengthened in 1969. The result: 1970 model cars contribute 70% less to air pollution than did pre-1969 models.

Canada's life style of tomorrow presents many challenges. But it's Ontario's style to meet these challenges today.

UK Election Surprise

Against virtually every prediction of the political polls and the prevailing social and economic mood, Conservative leader Edward Heath has led his party to victory in Britain. In doing so he has confounded the critics and thwarted a hitherto confident Harold Wilson in his bid for a third term unprecedented in modern times in the United Kingdom.

Certainly the polls, which on reflection could scarcely have been taken seriously because of their wildly varied predictions, will have even less credibility in future.

Healthy as the British economy is generally (Heath did capitalize, however, in recent days on the fact that trade figures for May showed a deficit for the second straight month), the Conservative victory suggests that the country was ready for a change anyway.

Mr. Heath is unlikely to effect any drastic changes in policy, but the very fact that the Conservatives are in and the Labour party out, may give a boost to British fortunes generally. Visitors to the United Kingdom in latter days speak of the atmosphere of gloom and depression which pervades the usually buoyant British character. They speak of short tempers and an air of defeatism stemming from the years of economic difficulty.

It will be part of Mr. Heath's task to restore Britain's old confidence, hamstrung in large part by the economic controls imposed by the Labor government. These, even if necessary to correct the country's successive trade imbalances, have greatly dampened personal initiative and contributed much to the discontent of recent years.

It has been a triumph against odds for Mr. Heath who now joins our own Mr. Trudeau in the role of a bachelor Prime Minister. Mr. Heath may not be a swinger in the Trudeau tradition, but he is a keen sportsman, particularly as a yachtsman, and in this regard the British and Canadian leaders will have much in common.

Valued Administrators

Belleville this year is losing two able and popular administrators in L. A. Kelis, superintendent of administrative services for Hastings county board of education, and Bert Messacar, general secretary of the Belleville Family YMCA.

Mr. Kelis, formerly superintendent of the Belleville public school board, is retiring June 30 after 41 years as teacher and administrator.

Mr. Messacar, who has been here five years and whose duties of late have been performed amid public controversy surrounding the role of the YMCA in this community, is resigning for health reasons. He has said he wants to do something with less stress and that this is a very human and understandable reason. Meantime he will remain in the job until September 1.

Belleville has been fortunate in having these two gentlemen. They are typical of the calibre of professional men in this area, and while their tasks will be carried on by others the work they have performed here will be remembered.

Act of Vandalism

Whether or not the recent acts of vandalism against the Canadian National's signal system in this area is related to some way with the strike of Belleville CN yardmen has not been determined. Whoever was responsible however was guilty of dangerous and reprehensible conduct which, had it not been discovered, could have resulted in a serious accident and loss of life. It is difficult to conceive of such a deliberate attempt to sabotage a railroad, in a relatively law - abiding community such as this, and in time of peace.) Yet it was done — apparently by a person or persons who were familiar with the signalling system — and the only consolation is the fact that beyond traffic being slowed no accident or loss of life resulted.

They Stared

A group of Indians from the St. Regis Reserve on Cornwall Island, in Ottawa recently to discuss disputed ownership rights on three St. Lawrence River islands near Cornwall, were invited to the Governor - General's garden party.

Reactions were varied and interesting. One woman was overheard explaining to a friend that the Indians (in full regalia) really must be "another of those foreign delegations."

As for the Indians, one of their number, a young man, observed: "There are a lot of people, but most of them just stare . . . nobody talks to us . . ."

We are reminded once again that between whites and Indians there is still a gulf of prejudice and ignorance and that both sides are to blame. But let the consultations continue, let both strive for greater understanding, toward a better day.

They Help Get Things Done

The Prodders, Shakers and Movers of Parliament Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Broadly classifying them, there are three varieties of MPs.

There is the big tongue-tied silent majority of MPs whose votes in the Commons keep the Government in business and who, because there is only so much time in Parliament's working day, of necessity must leave the talking to their seniors, the Prime Minister and the 29 men of the Cabinet around him.

Then there are the oratorical showboats and wave-makers of the Opposition.

And finally, those Opposition MPs who, working with quiet persistence behind the scenes, and get things done.

Occasionally there are the unusually gifted political enterprisers, two - way threat men like John Diefenbaker and George Hees who combine the two Opposition talents as movers and shakers and shapers of parliamentary events, and as disturbers of the quiet of the Commons and the peace of mind of the Government of the day.

So let's look at a few of the quiet, behind-the-scenes Opposition types who often seem far more able to get goodies out of the Government than do its own backbenchers.

Well, there is Alfred Dryden Hales, for 12 years Conservative MP for Ontario's Wellington constituency.

What attention Al Hales has attracted over recent years has been as Chairman of Parliament's Public Accounts Committee, dragging such expensive skeletons out of the Government's cupboard as the extravagances of the refit of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure, with a price tag which initially read $8,000,000 and ended up at $18,000,000 with the old flattop in all her expensive new finery bound for the scrapheap.

But did you know it was Al Hales who, in his years of banging tough in the House during the Daily Question Period, finally cracked the Government's resistance to establishing an historic site in which all Canada can take pride?

The historic site — as the Government describes it here — shrines to great Canadians of bygone eras — is the former home at Guelph of Col. John MacCrae, the once-poetry remembered author of the haunting "In Flanders Fields the poppies grow" which tells the crosses in row on row that mark our place . . ." and who died of an illness on the battlefields of World War One.

Now in Guelph, Col. MacCrae is remembered not just on November's Remembrance Day but whenever thousands of Canadians and more thousands of American visitors passing through that old Ontario town pause for a silent moment at the poet's old home.

Then there is Oxford Conservative MP Wallace Nesbitt, and a small but important service he did for some lads in Woodstock.

Crown Assets Corporation a few months ago sold the Woodstock Armouries to the Board of Education, with the takeover date March 31. But this was where the Woodstock Sea, Army and Air Cadets were doing their training.

The Defence Minister cast off the Board of Education until June 1 when the tri-service cadets had a year's notice, done, held their March Past.

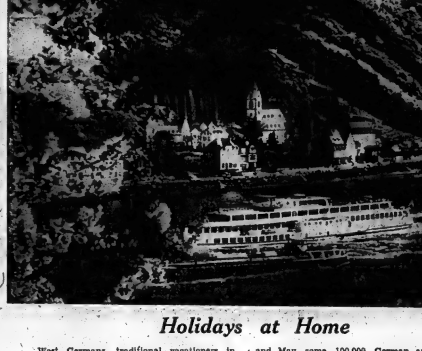
And consider Lloyd Roseville Crouse, Conservative MP for Nova Scotia's South Shore riding.

His home port is Lunenburg, famed across the Maritimes as the historic birthplace of "wooden ships and iron men," and across all Canada for that triumph in the fine art of the shipwright, the Blue Nose.

Lloyd Crouse worked over the Government boys — some as many as five or more — begging the Administration to revive the financial assistance the builders of fishing craft had been given in the Diefenbaker days.

The program had been washed out by former Liberal Prime Minister Pearson.



Time after time — persistent to the point of monotony — Lloyd Crouse told Lester Pearson, then, in turn, Prime Minister Trudeau, that the interests of Canada's Atlantic fish catch is sold on the American market, helping to swell Canadian balance of payments and providing needy markets.

A little help for the builders of the fishing fleets, he kept on saying, would only be in the national interest.

Finally, after years of bearding Lloyd Crouse dressing is his ear, the Government, just last month, new things his way.

The Administration, with a flare of trumpets and a waving of banners, presented it as a "new" program — and there was Lloyd Crouse again, up on his feet, beaming. It was the reminder that actually it was a "revival" of an old Diefenbaker deal.

Lloyd Crouse, Wallace Nesbitt and Alfred Hales are three of a host of MPs — and there are few who, despite all the many and increasing difficulties, insist on making Parliament work.

Holidays at Home

West Germans, traditional vacationers in sunny southern countries, are rediscovering the beauties of their own land. A special attraction earlier this year were the blossom-fringed hillsides along the Rhine and Neckar rivers and the banks of Lake Constance. In the period between March and May some 100,000 German and overseas tourists visited these areas, or 40 per cent more than last year. Here the river boat Deutschland cruises past the idyllic Rhinesside village of Bornhofen, a mecca for pilgrims.

Reaction: Too-Little-Too-Late

President Declares 'Alert' in Fight Against Inflation

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's wordy prescription for lowering the temperature of the worst inflationary spiral in 20 years has drawn a too-little-too-late reaction.

Wall Street yawned.

Aside from outlining in general a rather toothless program for curbing wage and price increases, the president in his long-awaited report to the nation Wednesday also set up two more governmental bodies.

In essence, he reaffirmed that he is standing by his strategy against inflation and recession — a stance that many economic and business authorities had said in advance simply wasn't enough.

As forecast, he reiterated his abhorrence of any outright wage-price controls, terming them a temporary expedient and a threat to individual freedom.

The only real meat in the 25-minute lecture was his administrations promise to publish a periodic "inflation alert" to warn of excessive wage and price increases.

But headline writers had hardly pounced on this morsel when administration spokesmen started explaining that while the "inflation alert" will be a form of pressure against wage and price increases, no business or labor leaders would be summoned to the White House and "vilified" or "whacked" over the head.

This apparent attempt to tone down the scope of the new bodies to pinpoint or spotlight gross wage or price increases left little of substance to the speech other than Nixon's expressions of faith in the economy and in the ability of the U.S. to overcome its problems.

Wednesday, in advance of Nixon's noon speech, the market was stronger; then it began to drift and never recovered.

Although no one expected Nixon to set up any firm controls to police inflation, the general expectation was that he would give a more assertive, vigorous speech.

The only ones not disappointed it now seems, were the realists who long ago faced the fact that there are no easy or simple or harmless remedies for the situation.

The war in Indochina is, of course, the main cause of the economic blight. And Nixon spent a great deal of time explaining the steady transition from a war to a peacetime economy

In essence he seems to have linked the fate of his economic policy to his Vietnam withdrawal policy.

By slamming the door on all the alternative economic solutions and conceding that inflation has proved to be a far more difficult problem than he and his economic experts had anticipated," says the Washington Post, "he is plainly betting heavily on a steady and unintercupted disengagement from Vietnam"

Christian Minister in Jail Increasingly Common Sight

NEW YORK (AP) — An old American in Washington, D.C., but increasingly common spectacle on the American religious scene is the Christian minister in prison.

In a growing number of cases, clergymen have been taken into custody, tried-and, in several instances, sentenced to lengthy prison terms, usually in connection with draft board raids opposing the Vietnam war.

Demonstrations in behalf of the blacks and the poor also have landed ministers in jail in recent months. But most of the latest clergy-prosecution cases have been for anti-war acts.

"It scandalizes a lot of people," says Rev. William Sloane, a canon law professor at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. "It's unusual in this country, but it's not unique in Christian history."

The most cases, in which clergymen and other draft resisters have been tried and sentenced to prison for destroying draft files at a heighborhood roster, including 15 clergymen, 11 of them seminarians, two brothers, a nun, an ex-nun and an ex-priest.

One of the priests, Rev. Daniel Berrigan, a Jesuit poet and chaplain at Cornell University, became a fugitive from justice, jumping bail to spare a date for his surrender to begin a three-year prison term. In hiding with friends, he writes:

"I refuse, for the time being, to submit behind a prison door which is condemning me, condemns food as an instrument of exploitation and murder in Vietnam and elsewhere."

Scores of other clergymen have gone to jail for brief periods or been arrested in recent times in protests against the war, including many among the 72 persons arrested recently in and around war-weighty offices in Washington across the street from the White House. Most forfeited $25 bail each.

Other issues in some clergy cases have involved demonstrations against racial discrimination in hiring or poverty conditions.

Rev. James Groppi of Milwaukee has been arrested 11 times for various demonstrations in behalf of blacks and the poor, serving one four-day period in school before a system of trial in jail for leading a mass incursion into the Wisconsin state assembly, protesting cuts in welfare and payments.

"They are violating the first law of God—feed the children," Fr. Groppi said at the time. "I don't know what their concept of Jesus Christ is. I see Him nailed to a cross, hands bleeding, crown of thorns, whipped to shreds, pieces, sitting in jail."

Besides the more than a dozen clergy imprisoned for anti-war activity, Dr. Allen Brick, an officer of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, a pacifist group, says hundreds of others have been arrested and detained briefly in that cause.

Also, he noted, numerous seminarians are among the approximately 300 young Americans in the prison for resisting the draft.

Paraguay's Bishops Oppose Government

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — In neighboring Paraguay the Roman Catholic bishops are at odds with the authoritarian government. But there is talk of compromise, and some priests fear privately that their bishops might surrender church militancy in any agreement with President Alfred Stroessner.

This fear is related in an 18-page, unpublished review of Paraguay's church-state confrontation, written by several of the progressive priests most active in the conflict. The review appeared shortly before Stroessner finally agreed to meet, on April 7, with Rt. Rev. Ramon Bogarin, president of the 12-member Council of Bishops and an outspoken advocate of progressivism.

The confrontation is the first in Latin America in which a nation's bishops are united in open defiance of government on social, economic and political issues. The church has emerged as the only major opposition to Gen. Stroessner, whose measures during 16 years in power have weakened dissident student groups and the traditional opposition political parties.

The Council of Bishops has voiced the hope that Stroessner himself will end the confrontation by agreeing to a "meaningful dialogue" and by accepting the view that basic change is essential in underdeveloped Paraguay. Church figures indicate at least 36 per cent of the population is illiterate.

For months, the bishops have been urging Stroessner to deal realistically with a "wretchedly underdeveloped economy" and "police brutality," laying political prisoners to trial and restore press freedom.

For years Stroessner, now 57, counted the Roman Catholic Church as one of his chief allies. After the break developed in 1967, the president warned the country's several hundred priests—some of them foreigners—to keep out of politics.

Last year he cut down traditional state subsidies to the church and ended the practice of allowing priests to import cars, trucks and medicine duty-free.

The April 7 meeting of Stroessner and Bishop Bogarin appears to have been an attempt to resolve this confrontation. The Council of Bishops, an ita official publication, says: "Agreement was reached for the two personalities to meet again to discuss the problems calmly and at greater length."

In the unpublished review a few of the nation's most militant priests warn that Stroessner might be seeking a compromise "for reasons of internal security or international prestige." The review also declares that the bishops might seek the same goal "for reasons of economic survival or the bad habit of a traditionalist mentality."

Churches Losing Members

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, both Roman Catholic and most major Protestant denominations in the United States are experiencing declines in membership. Instead of only a slowdown in growth, the trend in many cases has become an actual loss.

"The falling off has become pretty general among the main Bible denominations," says Rev. Dr. Douglas Johnson, head of the research department of the National Council of Churches.

Why? The reasons are multiple," he adds—including defections of young people, slackened evangelism, a technological-secularist environment and the pressures of change. But he sees glimmerings of an upturn ahead.

For the moment, however, the five-year downward curve in church growth is at its lowest point so far, and has become on a broad front, outright reversal.

Only a few major communions, chiefly the Southern Baptists, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the Mormons, have managed to continue some gains, but except for the Mormons, the gains were also reduced.

Other major Christian bodies —the Episcopal (Anglican), United Methodist, Roman Catholic, American Lutheran, United Presbyterian, Presbyterian U.S. (Southern), Christian (Disciples) and American Baptist churches and the Lutheran Church in America—reported membership counts were declining, in some cases for the first time.

Although growth had been tapering off for several years, the new figures released recently for the Official Catholic Directory showed the church had its first real loss—down to 47,872,089, a drop of 1,149.

Some people don't like what's happening in the church and are leaving it," says Thomas Walsh, the directory's chief statistician for 11 years. He also cited lower birth rates, reducing baptisms and fewer converts.

Over-all, church membership in the U.S. now stands at 128,469,636, about 63.1 per cent of the 203,000,000 population, says the 1976 Yearbook of American Churches.

Executive Secretary Earns More Money

CALGARY (CP) — The top job in the secretarial field is that of executive secretary. They seem to have the most responsibility, get the most satisfaction from their jobs and earn the biggest salaries.

So six executive secretaries from a wide range of businesses in Calgary were asked about their jobs and their duties.

"How does a secretary get to the top?" was one question.

"Hard work plus dedication," was the most frequent answer.

A willingness to perform a little extra duty also seemed to help.

Florence Campbell, executive secretary for the Calgary Zoological Society, once shared her office with a lion cub named Tika and helped raise him for about four months.

"He was the smallest of three and needed a little extra attention when the other two were sent away to a Boston zoo," she said. "We kept it inside where it was warmer—it was in the fall—and on the bottle until it was big enough to go out to the lion pens."

She also looks after Jack, a myrnah bird which she has had in her office for nine years.

"We often have mynahs given to us, and if they are put out in the city they seldom live for more than three months."

Her regular duties require her to sit in on all meetings of the 21-member voluntary board and to act as accountant for the society. She also looks after the affairs of Western Canada and United States Zoo and Aquariums Society.

The executive secretaries interviewed ranged in age from 22 to 55. Three were married, one was a widow and two were single.

Aside from agreeing about the hard work, most of them expressed a preference for dictation, preferring a short hand to a dictaphone.

The youngest of those interviewed was Sandra Smith, who is employed by a trailer-manufacturing company. She's been with them for 5½ years.

"I kept climbing from the beginning," she said. "The best thing is to be a good secretary, then grow with the firm."

About half her duties involve typing and shorthand, but she must still travel plans for her executives, work out itineraries and keeps in touch with them while they're away.

The duties of Shirley Short, top secretary with a food company, are mostly accounting. She works with the corporate controller, does reports for executive meetings, posts all accounts payable and bills for the company.

She also works up forecasts of profits for the coming week, then the executives meet to discuss sales volume and she makes up a resume.

Evelyn Grey, executive secretary for a fertilizer firm started in the plant area, then moved to the office and worked her way up.

"Some days I'm rushed off my feet and wonder if it's worth it," she said. "But my family co-operates beautifully and my husband is in full agreement with my working."

She has some overtime work, but prefers to come in early rather than work late. Her time is comparatively her own and she is free to claim a day off if she desires.

Mind and Body Are Not Separate

By DORIS CLARE

Mind and body are not two separate and distinct entities into which each person is neatly divided, says Doris Clare.

If you are waiting along the personal line a busy street, and you drift off to mull over something that a shop window done to the accessories, or a newspaper screamer, and you hope the horrid spectacle of somebody being injured, the physical damage is not has been nil.

But you may feel quite ill and upset, even unfit to continue whatever business you were about. You may feel faint and your pulse-beats may be much faster than usual. You are suffering from shock.

When you get home there is no visible injury to explain your state of shock; yet you would be hurt and indignant if someone told you you were just imagining that you were upset.

Try to remember this next time you are tempted to tell somebody else that his sufferings are all imaginary.

"Anxiety, Nervousness and Depression" (A Family Doctor booklet published by the British Medical Association).

Dear Doris: My girl friends call me. I am using boys although I have in no way whatsoever used any boy.

I went out with this guy named Bruce for three weeks steady but because I wouldn't let him do anything he proposed me for a girl who had a reputation of a slut. Then he drove around just to see who I was with and I was with a different boy each time.

Then last week he was supposed to come up and baby sit with me but he didn't. He's walking home a girl with a pot of reputation. I met a nice boy, Bob, and went out with him. I still like Bruce a lot, and get Bob too. If Bob asks me to the next dance, should I go? — Problems to Solve.

Dear Problems: I can't see why not. You like Bob, accept his invitation — but not just to spite Bruce.

As for "using" boys, are you? Most who word actually means is, I suppose, going out with somebody simply because you need an escort and not because you like the boy.

I don't imagine you are unchaste, but I wrote it down and am sending it to you as requested by Mr. F. E. C. — Miss E. T.

Dear Miss E. Y.: You were a pet to copy down these words and I think you are lucky friend did a fine job of remembering.

As it happens someone else sent us the complete poem, missing lines and all, which you will see are the rather comical (actually reporting one fatality). I'm sending you a copy and will be glad to forward one to anyone who writes in enclosing 10 cents and a self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers

Ideas on Friendly Gesture Differ

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was stunned by your answer to the teenager who said because the 16-year-old girl kissed her husband "Happy Birthday" and presented him with a pair of argyle sox which she knitted for him. All this was supposed to be in appreciation for his help with her essay on drugs. (He's a chemist.)

ANN LANDERS

You seemed to think the man's wife was out of her mind to object. I've got news for you, Annie. Fourteen-year-old girls aren't the boys they used to be. Our daughter is 14 and I'd better not catch her kissing the man next door "Happy Birthday," "Merry Christmas" or anything else.

You of all people are supposed to know what's going on in the world. So why don't you? Kids get ideas a lot earlier these days. A 1970 high-school girl might not have any more sense than when we had at her age, but she can fill a bathing suit like an 18-year-old and this makes her seem older. So watch it. — ANOTHER WITCH.

* * *

DEAR WITCH: I agree some 16-year-olds should be labeled "Dynamite," but the girl who knit the sox kissed the neighbor in the presence of his entire family. I thought it was a sweet innocent gesture — and I still do.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I moved to this city three months ago. The only people we knew before we came here are a couple my husband went to school with in Cincinnati. They were very helpful and we appreciated their kindness, but now we are virtually their prisoners. Max has a way of tying us up weeks in advance and both my husband and I find this irritating. On two occasions when I told Max we had a date with another couple she cleverly put words in my mouth and before I knew it she had her husband and herself included. I realized that she had manipulated me. I was furious with myself for allowing it.

We don't want to hurt their feelings because they have been very good to us, but we do feel "taken over." Is there any way we can free ourselves — gracefully, that is? — HERMETICALLY SEALED.

DEAR HERM: Forget about freeing "ourselves gracefully." Settle for just freeing yourselves. Once you've been overly chummy with a couple, it's impossible to unwind without some resentment. But unwind you must or you will never be able to call your souls your own. And the sooner the better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother and his wife adopted a baby. It is their second child — first adoption. They want to know if it is proper to send baby announcements to friends and relatives. They sent announcements out when their first child was born five years ago. Please advise. — NAPA VALLEY.

* * *

DEAR NAP: The arrival of an adopted child should be heralded in the same manner as a blood child. Tell your sister-in-law to go ahead and send the invites — I mean announcement.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some people have terrible telephone manners. Please print my letter. Maybe the guilty will see themselves and get smart.

I have a friend whom I call occasionally. If her daughter answers the phone she says, "Mom is busy, I'll have her call you back." Sometimes Mom doesn't call back until the next day when I am too busy to talk. In other words, my friend will talk to me when it is convenient for her.

I deplore such rudeness. From now on if a friend can't come to the phone when I want to talk, and I am told, "She'll call back," I'm going to say — "Tell her not to bother."

What do you think of that, Ann Landers? — INDEPENDENT SPIRIT.

DEAR IN: Your complaint is a splendid example of social myopia — a common form of distorted vision. Simply because you have a phone doesn't mean whomever you call is obliged to drop everything and speak to you. The person who places the call is the "intruder." How fascinating that you never resent being inconvenienced but you fail to see that your call might inconvenience others. Now that you have the total picture, I hope you will reverse your thinking.

NOT THE HOMEMAKER TYPE — Rita Stockiin, a shapely five-foot-two-inch blonde, says people find it hard to believe she runs a service station for a living. She changes oil, fillers, spark plugs and pumps gas. She says she'd rather do that than make cookies — "I'm just not the homemaker type." (CP Photo)

Woman Operates Her Own Service Station

It's difficult to believe the attractive five-foot-two blonde runs a service station for a living and owns two race horses for a hobby.

"I change oil, fillers, spark plugs and pumps gas," says Mrs. Stockiin. "I'm not afraid to get my hands dirty. I'd rather do this than make cookies. I'm just not the homemaker type."

She said competition in the service station business comes from directly across the street where her husband Al runs a station.

"Al taught me the business," Mrs. Stockiin says. "I try to stay open a half-hour longer than he does to get him mad, but he comes down and starts putting things away to close my station."

She and her husband operate the stations as independent businesses, but they do share a common accounting system to down expenses.

"People think I'm a model or something," she says about her customers and passers-by. "They don't believe I do this for a living."

She says she became interested in horses about five years ago when a customer asked her and Al to go to the races with him.

"We had never been before, so we decided we would. I loved it and really got interested."

Mrs. Stockiin, who has two daughters aged 13 and 8, made her first purse in harness and soon became the proud owner of two racers.

"I just had to have something to do to get away from the gas. It's mad crazy all day. My dad had ridden horses back in Romania and I always loved them."

Her two horses are Peyton Girl, a seven-year-old, and Lisa Marie, a four-year-old.

Peyton Girl ran the fastest mile of her life recently—in 2:06 —and paid $13.80, $7.20 and $4.20. The victory came after Mrs. Stockiin had gone down to the paddock to give the horse a pre-race kiss.

And she is not above betting on her own horses. She had $2 down on Peyton Girl and the victory brought tears to her eyes.

"It's not so much the purse, she says. "It's just so nice to see her win. I really got excited to see her race."

Girdles Are Distracting

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Girdles are distracting and may make a menace of the man who wears one when she drives.

She's safer in her pantyhose, says a report based on results of a survey conducted by the public service division of British Leyland Motors Canada Ltd.

The survey indicates girdles quickly become uncomfortable and the resultant squirming by the wearer behind the wheel reduces concentration.

In addition, the pull from the elastic garters tends to hoist the woman driver's feet off the control pedals. To overcome this constant contraction, she often pushes against the pull and winds up going faster than she really intends.

The report concludes by recommending that all women drivers wear panty-hose for safe, comfortable driving.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Whole Wheat Bread Recipe

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have recently purchased 100 per cent whole wheat flour, stone ground. I intended to make some bread with it. However every recipe I find uses something like this — 2 c. whole wheat flour, 2 c. white flour or 4 c. whole wheat flour, 3 c. white flour, etc. Would you have a recipe for bread with just whole wheat flour? Is there a reason for the addition of white flour? — Audrey K.

ANSWER: Yes there is a reason — gluten for using some white flour. The gluten is a glury substance that is required to sustain the rise of the yeast containing bread dough.

I am glad to hear you can obtain stone ground whole wheat flour. Here is a good recipe in which to use it.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

¼ cup milk, scalded
¼ cup dark brown sugar
¼ cup shortening or lard
4 tsps. salt
1¾ cups lukewarm water
2 tbsps. sugar (or honey)
1 pkge. granular yeast
½ cup fresh wheat germ (optional)
4 cups fresh whole wheat flour
2 cups unsifted white flour

Remove milk from heat and while it is scalding hot add the sugar, shortening (or lard) and salt and stir until shortening melts. Cool to lukewarm.

In large mixing bowl put the lukewarm water and to it add the 2 tbsps. sugar or honey. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand 10 min. Stir once. Add lukewarm milk mixture to risen yeast liquid and stir. Add wheat germ, whole wheat flour and 1 cup white flour. Mix as well as possible. Sprinkle remaining 1 cup white flour on bread board. Turn dough out on it and knead 200 times or 5 to 7 min. (Time depends on whether you are a good steady kneader.) Or until all white flour has been incorporated into the dough and dough is perfectly smooth and squeaky.

Scrape down mixing bowl, rub with butter, replace dough, turn it over to have a buttered surface on top. Cover and let rise until doubled and dough will stay indent — 1 hr. at room temperature. (Or if desired you can make this dough at night, cover and refrigerate it overnight — but in morning it takes longer to rise because it is as cold.) Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 100 times. Divide in half, shape into 2 loaves and place in 2 buttered 8x4 pans. Brush tops with salt or melted butter or margarine. Let rise covered until 1" above rims of pans. Bake at 375 deg. F. for 40-50 min. Tap top of loaves to test for doneness. If baked through they will have a hollow sound. Remove from pans at once and cool on racks. These whole wheat loaves slice better when cold but taste heavenly when fresh from the oven.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYDON

Mother: "We have to whisper and play quietly without coughing or talking when the baby is taking his nap. He wakens so easily and he needs his sleep. We are on tiptoe if you go past his room."

Mother: "The baby seems to be a very light sleeper, but he'll soon learn to sleep through a little noise. Just don't shout or have the TV turned on too loud when he's napping."

If the family tiptoes and whispers near the baby's room, he may not learn to tolerate normal household sounds, which can be a problem when guests are present or the family gathers in the evening.

LATIN ?

"The subject . . . now seldom por'd on."
MILTON.

* * *

"One of my subjects this year is Latin," said the pretty young high school student sitting beside us on the bus, and who added: "What's more — I like it — which is just as well, since I need it for my course . . . "

We did not learn what her course was, for she had to get off at her stop just then. But we thought how different was her reaction to Latin from Margaret Cole the English writer, whose father was for many years lecturer at Trinity College, Cambridge and professor of Latin at Liverpool University. His daughter was against it and why?

Half our little High School student on the bus, would have found a friend in agreement with Mrs. Humphrey Ward, noted German novelist and writer, who once said in an interview — we had the privilege of having with him in Montreal:

"I told that Latin is the basic foundation of most European languages, and this is why it is necessary to North American peoples, who are not, by environment, linguistic."

Municipalities to Get Control of Snowmobiles

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Watchdogs Needed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Conservation authorities in Ontario should become watchdogs of the environment in their own regions, George Kerr, energy and resources management minister, said here Friday.

"They can bring problems and situations to the attention of other branches and agencies of my department," the minister said. He said many conservation authorities are already assisting the Ontario Water Resources Commission by taking water samples and reporting pollution sources to OWRC officials.

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation introduced by the Ontario legislature Friday would give municipalities increased control over the use of motorized vehicles within their boundaries.

In amendments to the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act, Transport Minister Irwin Haskett proposed that municipal councils have control over the vehicles, including the right to prohibit their use altogether, be extended to cover parks and private property.

Previously, they could only pass bylaws prohibiting the vehicles from crossing any highway or part of a highway.

Mr. Haskett also proposed that only persons with motor vehicle operator's or chauffeur's permits be allowed to operate the vehicles on highways where their use is permitted.

The minister's proposals also included:

—The obligation to report collisions causing personal injury or damage exceeding $200.

—Extension to snowmobile owners of liability for violations of laws by other persons using the vehicles with the owner's consent.

The minister also introduced legislation Friday to ban air-cushion vehicles such as hovercraft, from Ontario highways.

Mr. Haskett said the amendment to the Highway Traffic Act was intended to avert obvious hazards that would occur when air-cushioned vehicles become more popular.

He said a passing car can create a vacuum sufficient to turn one over.

"We do not want them on our roads until we know more about their operation. If we were to permit them now, they could cause a chain reaction of automobile collisions."

The minister also proposed amendments to the Traffic Act that would:

—Replace Walk and Don't Walk pedestrian control signs with symbolic signs.

—Increase allowable axle weight for commercial vehicles to 20,000 from 18,000 pounds.

—Prohibit sale of new cars that do not conform with federal safety standards.

In other business:

—Treasurer Charles Macnaughton announced he has sent a telegram he sent to the Civil Service Association of Ontario urging the association that provincial mediators have not been, and never will be, instructed to adhere to federal wage guidelines of six per cent.

—Premier Roberts said that if Ontario, through its health insurance program, is to pay for women having legal abortions outside the country, the abortions will have to be performed in accordance with Canadian laws, that is, on the recommendation of a medical committee.

—Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) said he was unable to unearth any new information about Mafia influence in Ontario during his recent trip to Italy.

—A bill to create a new regional government in the resort area of Muskoka north of Toronto passed committee stage to go to routine third reading before receiving Royal assent.

—Minister of Mines Allan Lawrence said the federal government has refused to provide assistance under its designated areas legislation to help the Northern Ontario community of Geraldtown overcome the loss of its only industry—a gold mine.

—A bill to permit Kingston to enact bylaws for the preservation of buildings or structures of historic or architectural value was given first reading.

Wife of Mountie Gave Tip Of Threat Against Shulman

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Friday that a telephoned tip last weekend about a threat to the life of Dr. Morton Shulman came from the wife of an RCMP constable.

Police said they were told by the woman, whose name they did not disclose, that she overheard a man at a party saying Dr. Shulman should mind his own business or he might get himself killed.

Dr. Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature from High Park, has been investigating Mafia operations in Ontario. He was in Sicily when police received word about a possible threat to his life.

Deputy police chief Bernard Simmonds said Friday that police interviewed everyone at the party in question and were satisfied none had any gangland connections and that the remark was "innocently passed."

Earlier Friday, Dr. Shulman's wife, Gloria, said two teams of Metropolitan Toronto detectives-did her last weekend the Mafia had a contract out for her husband's death.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said in the legislature Thursday that police reports showed no evidence of any Mafia contract in the Shulman case.

Arabs and Israelis Agree

MONTREAL (CP) — Arab and Israeli delegates prevented politics from becoming a contentious issue at Friday's sessions of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

The issue came up when Arab delegates tabled their proposals to deter and punish sabotage of civil aircraft before the special assembly of ICAO, an agency of the United Nations.

Dr. Ryadh Al-Qayal, first secretary in the Iraqui foreign ministry, said his country is concerned only with the problem of preventing sabotage and prosecuting saboteurs. This appeared also to be the intention of the Israeli delegation.

Trudeau Government Is Accused of 'Colonialism'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs accused the government Friday of colonialism and confusion in its approach to administration and water pollution control in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

The charges came in debate on a government proposals to change the administration of the territories and to increase control over pollution of northern waters.

The Commons also gave final approval to bills requiring operators of nuclear plants to carry liability insurance against accidents, improving a consumer making a housekeeping amendment to the National Energy Board Act.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) led the attack on the government's plans to change administration in the territories through amendments to the Yukon Act, the Northwest Territories Act and the Territorial Lands Act.

He said a measure giving the minister power to dissolve the territorial councils and call elections "smacks of pure colonialism."

The bill would enable the government to dissolve the Yukon council if it didn't like the council's actions, he said.

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) agreed that the council should be able to dissolve itself. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) supported his fellow Conservatives.

Northern Affairs Minister Chretien said the bill would give flexibility to the election system in the north. It would allow the people of the territories to express their views through an election if a dispute arose between the council and the territorial commissioner.

The charge of confusion came from Mr. Aiken earlier in debate on a bill requiring users of northern waters to obtain licences from the federal government, and setting penalties for pollution.

Mr. Aiken said the government lacked co-ordination in water management and pollution control.

Anti-pollution bills were being studied by separate Commons committees, each unaware of the others' actions.

The confusion had been demonstrated in the necessity of a Senate amendment to the water bill making its anti-pollution provisions conform to the Fisheries Act.

Mr. Aiken suggested the government form a co-ordinating body to integrate its anti-pollution programs.

But he praised the government's bill requiring nuclear installations to carry liability insurance.

The bill would enforce coverage up to $75,000,000 against injury or damage caused by a nuclear accident.

New Democrats Ran Harding (Kootenay West) and Rod Thompson (Battleford-Kindersley) echoed Mr. Aiken's praise.

Under the new law, a bank or finance company taking over a debt from a merchant assumes the duties, such as guarantees, included in the original contract with the purchaser.

In the debate on the Yukon bill, Mr. Nielsen proposed two amendments concerning the election of members to the territorial executive council. The motions were ruled out of order by the Speaker because they went beyond the scope of the original bill.

Mr. Nielsen proposed in one motion that the executive council consist of five members chosen by the popularly-elected legislative council.

In the other he proposed that three members be chosen by the legislative council and two by the federal government.

The government has proposed that three members be federal civil servants and two be chosen by the legislature.

Mr. Nielsen objected to another government proposal giving the power over financial decisions to the executive council. He said it would be a continuance of the colonial system because the executive council would be dominated by civil servants.

Mr. Chretien said the move was a step toward self-government in the north. The power now is held by the federally-appointed commissioner.

Oil Spill Threat To Northern Town

FORT CHIPEWYAN, Alta. (CP) — The young people in this Indian and Metis community are concerned about its future following the latest tragedy to befall it.

An oil spill earlier this month from the Fort McMurray plant of Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. drifted down into Lake Athabasca and forced closure of the commercial fishing season on the lake, which supported about 100 wage-earners in the community of 1,400.

The spill could hardly have come at a worse time. This was the first year of operation for a fishing co-operative under community control. Also, fish prices had gone up because of pollution in lakes elsewhere in the country.

There are few enough jobs as it is in Fort Chipewyan, where the majority of native and Metis people exist on welfare.

The trapping industry was dealt a fatal blow three years ago when the Bennett dam was completed at Hudson's Hope, B.C., and lowered the water table in the nearby wood bisons and beaver breeding areas here.

The entire community once made a living from trapping, but synthetic furs and fluctuating prices long ago made their furbuds and dead one of the earliest blows to Fort Chipewyan.

Odd jobs are available here and there, but even these are disappearing as skeddy in the fty are concerned about its future following the latest tragedy to befall it.

Charlie Simpson, 18, who hopes to attend Mount Royal Junior college in Calgary next September, says he and his peers are growing hangry about the state of their community and are taking the initial organizing steps to do something about it.

They formed the Native Youth Organization and are now working how to give themselves a power base.

"I'm trying to keep some of the junior high school kids busy with basketball games and things like that," he says, "but a lot of guys just sit around drinking coffee and waiking for forest fires so they can go out and get paid for fighting them."

Simpson says the fact that there is no high school here discourages many from continuing their education. The elementary and junior high school teachers are white, many of them immigrants from England and the Philippines who know little about Canada and less about the native culture.

Simpson says individual efforts on the part of the younger people to make their ideas heard in the native band councils have failed in the past.

"They all old people on the councils and they don't want to listen to us."

The answer may be to take group initiatives. But even with the new organizing efforts, there are no great hopes for Fort Chipewyan's future. A government White Paper's program includes adults in the community for jobs most of which would demand that they leave their homes here.

Canadians Sue U.S. Companies

DETROIT (CP) — Thirteen Canadian families are suing three United States firms for $1,795,000 in damages allegedly caused by American pollution drifting over the Detroit River into the Windsor, Ont., area.

A civil suit was filed in a United States federal court here on Friday against Great Lakes Steel, Allied Chemicals and Detroit Edison.

The 33 individuals are seeking $1,000,000 punitive damages from each of the Detroit-area firms for "wilfully and wantonly" jeopardizing their health. In addition the three companies are being sued together for a total of $795,000 compensatory damages.

Albacore Entries Swamped By Unruly Bay of Quinte Gales

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

If the North American Albacore championships were to adopt an official theme song after yesterday's races on the Bay of Quinte, it would be "Blow the man down," as 55-30 mile - per - hour winds forced cancellation of the third race of the day and swamped a number of craft in the one afternoon heat contested.

At least a dozen of the 15-foot sailing craft capsized on the third leg of a shortened afternoon course, with often spectacular results.

One of the competitors to feel the bite of the unruly western blow was first-round leader Jack Langmaid of the Shadow Lake Sailing Club near Oshawa.

The defending United States champion for two years, and a veteran of 11 years racing, Langmaid had won a nip-and-tuck morning battle with Geoff Revett of the Niagara Sailing Club and Hamilton's Donald Barnes the Oshawa sailor had come from behind to edge Revett, who is the defending Canadian champion.

Langmaid was victim of a "bad break" in the afternoon heat as his tiller was snapped by a following boat after his craft capsized in a gust of wind. "I didn't see what happened," Langmaid said. "I was under water at the time. But from all reports the other boat did an excellent job to keep from hitting us dead on. If the tiller hadn't broken, we would have been able to right ourselves and keep going." He was in about fifth spot when the mishap occurred.

One stroke of good luck for Langmaid, however, was the cancellation of the third race, giving him time to make repairs and avoid a second penalty for being unable to finish.

Operating as crew was his teen - age daughter Nancy, whom he praises for their first-round win.

"The crew members are like linemen in football," Langmaid explained. "They don't get much publicity but you could not win without them." Their main duties are to provide balance and operate the jib sail.

The skipper describes the feeling of sailing as "just about the same as running out of control on a good powder-snow in skiing. You're walking on a fine edge and you have to maintain your balance."

Despite Langmaid's trouble the first round leader's woes pale in significance to those faced by a pair of youthful veterans from the Buffalo Canoe Club, who had "about seven" upsets during the day including a complete end-over-end flip.

Mark Bryant, who began sailing at the age of six, and brings six years experience into the event is the group's youngest skip, while his 15-year-old brother Matt, comprises the crew.

Says Matt of their spectacular flip, "there was a gust of wind like you wouldn't believe. I think about six boats turned over at the same time. We caught our bow in the water and over we went."

The pair finished 19th at last year's North American championships and are determined to continue despite yesterday's difficulties.

They have competed as crew members in a number of major races, including the World Championships at Buenos Aires last year, where Matt was a crew member of the fourth-place finisher.

Despite the inclement conditions, competitors were unanimous in their praise of the sailing waters and the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club facilities.

"It's a perfect spot," claimed one racer, "the club does not try to be too ritzy. Most of the people involved are serious sailors, who are concerned with concentrating on the competition, rather than the social aspects, and here they are allowed to wear what they like and aren't weighed down with formalities."

Lucky Break

A broken tiller could have cost first-round leader Jack Langmaid any chance of winning the North American Albacore Racing championships. But unruly wind conditions forced cancellation of one of Friday's three races, giving the Oshawa sailing expert and daughter-crew Nancy time to make necessary repairs as the Bay of Quinte event entered its second day.

Barnes' Course Best

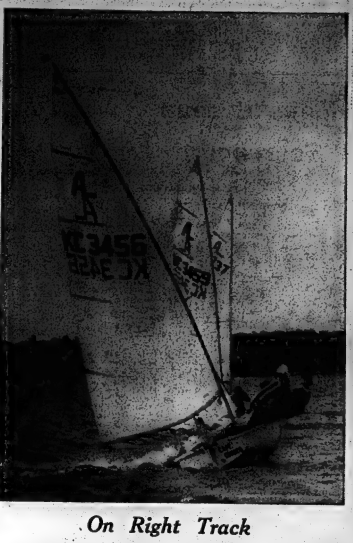
Donald Barnes of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club weathered the heavy afternoon going to win the second race of the North American Albacore championships and move into first place in the standings.

Positions are based on lower points for the top finishers with the sailor accumulating the lowest total over the three days becoming the winner.



A mark of ¾ points is given for first place with two for second, three for third, etc. Any boats which are disqualified or fail to finish the course are penalized 40 points.

Barnes had a third-place finish in the morning competition to give him a ¾ point lead over Geoff Revett of the Niagara Sailing Club. Revett had a four-point total, placing second in both races.

In third position, was Dick McLaughlin of the Muskoka Lakes Sailing Club with a nine-point total, with the Wilson Yacht Club's J. L. Progiff holding fourth spot with 17 points. Dan Owen of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club rounds out the top five with a total of 18 points.

First round leader Jack Langmaid of the Shadow Lake Sailing Club was swamped in the afternoon race and failed to complete the course.

A total of 42 boats are still in the competition which started with 46 entries. Three races are slated for today, weather permitting, with the final run to be held at 10 a.m. Sunday.

On Right Track

In opening activity at the North American Albacore races on the Bay of Quinte, fierce competition was the order of the day. Heeling over 'Captain Crunch,' owned by H. W. Snyders of Midland, Ont., the crew follows closely entries owned by S. F. Cerny, also of Midland, and another owned by David Wallerstein of Washington, D.C.

Ling's 74 Among Best

Gar Hamilton's even-par 72 topped 85 Ontario golfers who qualified Friday for the Ontario Amateur golf championships July 15-17 at Aurora.

The University of Indiana student playing out of Weston edged club-mate Ed Heakes, 17, and three Hamilton-area golfers for low honors.

Twenty-eight golfers qualified in Toronto for championship play from a field of 122, largest at Friday's seven qualifying sites.

Heakes finished with a 73 along with Glen Paterson of Hamilton, Greg Patterson of Brantford and Robert Jarvis of Lookout Point.

Another stroke back were Roger Ling of Oshawa, Jim Carr of Burlington, Steven Koncs of Hamilton and Tom Lavery of Toronto's Tam O'Shanter.

Four Northern Ontario golfers battled snow flurries and 35- to 40-degree temperatures with North Bay's Bill Morland carding a 79 to lead the area qualifiers. Since the district was allotted five places at Aurora, all four qualified for the main event.

At Hamilton where 11 qualified, Bruce Simchison, Hamilton, shot 75 but his eligibility was questioned when he was not entered until Friday morning because of a card mix-up.

The tournament committee of the Ontario Golf Association was to decide whether he would be permitted to play in the championship.

At Peterborough Bob James of Bowmanville and John Jinchley of Oshawa trailed Ling with 73s. Other qualifiers were Tom Henry Jr., Shayne Raddall and Bob Jamieson, all of Peterborough, and Bob Bradley of Oshawa. All shot 75.

The Niagara Falls Flyers will feature a Belleville brother act in their September OHA Junior A training camp.

Midget standout Rick Meagher has been invited to attend the camp, joining older brother Terry who was selected by the Flyers in Wednesday's annual league over-age midget draft.

Rick, who will be 17 in November, was a standout for the Blake Kerr Imperial midget all-stars this past winter. At five-seven, 140 pounds, he still stood out for the Belleville all-stars in tournament play against some of the best mid get hockey players in the province.

The speedy centre also played two games for the Ellis Junior B's.

Dolphins to Dip for Dollars

Olympic champions? Maybe not now but if their efforts work out the members of the Trenton Dolphin Swim Club will have a better opportunity to achieve this standard within the near future.

Their efforts next Saturday will be spent in transversing 250 lengths of the CFB Trenton outdoor pool with the purpose of gathering funds for the competitiveness.

Besides raising funds the Dolphin Swimathon is also attempting to assist the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association in the promotion of interprovincial swim meets and the training of coaches and officials all necessary for the improvement of Canada's world swimming position.

The Swimathon, commencing at 10 a.m. next Saturday is still open to any and all interested persons should contact Mr. Eldridge at 392-6979 or Mr. Pearson at 392-6722.

Any person wishing to pledge money or sponsor a swimmer should reach the same two people.

As far as Trenton Dolphins Swim Club members David Lowery, Mark Eldridge, Susan Robertson, and Lori O'Neil are concerned, Canada's current fifth place position in world amateur competitive swimming is going to improve in the not-too-distant future. This eager group of youngsters, together with their fellow club members, are now out in force to line up sponsors for their participation in Swimathon '70 to be held at the airbase Albatross Outdoor Pool on Saturday, June 27.

World Cup Consolation Match Promises Not to Be Friendly

MEXICO CITY (AP) — West Germany and Uruguay meet today to decide third place in the 1970 World Cup soccer tournament in a warmup for Sunday's Brazil-Italy final.

The third-place match is sometimes a lame affair. But Uruguay's coach Juan Hohberg promises:

"We've come to compete in a World Cup, not a friendly match."

Hohberg was hopping mad, as he often has been in the last, hectic week. Once again his anger was directed at the World Cup organizing committee.

The reason was that his team went to work out at the Mexican Soccer Federation Centre and was ordered to leave by the Azteca Club. There they found the pitch still being watered. Hohberg refused to wait five minutes and took his team away.

"It is the responsibility of the organizing committee to have a trailing pitch at our disposal.

"This most prejudice our chances, and we want to express our great displeasure."

Uruguay previously protested a change in referee amid charges of bribery, and at being sent to Guadalajara to play their semi-final against Brazil.

The Brazilians won 3-1 and the Uruguayan insist it was because they were forced to travel while Brazil played its fifth consecutive game at Jalisco Stadium.

Uruguay will again be without star forward Pedro Rocha, with a leg injury.

West Germany will be paraded by veteran striker Uwe Seeler for his 71st international, equaling the German record set before the Second World War by Helmut Rahn.

The Germans, with only two days to recover from their thrills-a-minute semi-final against Italy—the Italians won 4-3 in extra time—look only light training.

Franz Beckenbauer, hero of Germany's 4-2 quarter-final victory over England, will be out of action with a badly-bruised shoulder.

Sunday, the World Cup final between Brazil and Holland, the experts said should never be played toes off.

They predicted every kind of disaster, from riots to players expiring in Mexico City's heat and hog-searing altitude. Above all, they predicted that dour defensive football would turn soccer's greatest showpiece into a slow-motion bore.

The experts were wrong. The 1970 World Cup, most agree, has been the best organized, fairest and above all the most exciting in the history of the game.

It is to be capped by Sunday's final at Aztec Stadium, matching Brazil and Italy to decide whether Latin America or Europe makes the Jules Rimet Trophy its permanent property.

Wind Soars Scores

Jacklin Modest at Open

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — England's Tony Jacklin had opened a three-stroke lead after his today's third round of the U.S. Open Golf Championship, but he's keeping quiet about his chances.

Dave Hill shot his way in as the No. 1 challenger Friday and brashly predicted victory.

"I never think about my chances," said Jacklin after a two-under-par 70 Friday for a 54-hole total of 161. "I just start getting in trouble.

"I'm not thinking about playing conservatively, I will play as the situation demands."

Hill challenged to be par for an even-par 144, and said: "I'm going to win, but I won't enjoy it."

Jacklin and Hill, the tour's 1969 leading money winner, presented sharply contrasting views on the 7,151-yard Hazeltine National Golf Club course as they headed into the final rounds today and Sunday.

"They're not going to change this golf course just for me," said Jacklin, "no I might as well start liking it."

Hill, unhappy with the many doglegs and rolling greens, snapped: "The USGA is entitled to one mistake. They have played their open on some very fine courses. This course is not a test of golf. A monkey is as good as a man out there."

But Orville Moody, the 1969 Open champion at Houston, was among those who failed to make the nine-over-par cutoff of the low 73 players.

"I just didn't hack it," said Moody cleaned out his Hazeltine locker after shooting 79-77—156. Sam Snead, in his 27th Open, was out with two 78s.

Some of the other greats barely survived. Gary Player, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus squeezed in at 153. Player had 80-73. Palmer 79-74 and Nicklaus 81-72.

Al Balding of Canada had a four-over 76 for a total of 149. George Knudson of Toronto shot a one-under 71 to squeeze in under the cut with 153, but Winchon's Bob Panasiuk was out with a 76 for a total of 158.

Thirteen players broke par Friday, seven shot 71.

Second-year pro Randy Wolff was even par on the front nine and roared in with five birdies and tied the course record with a 67. Wolff and Richard Crawford, who shot 71, were tied for third at 145.

Guy Brewer carded a 71 for 146. Lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand and Howie Johnson tied at 147 and a large group at 148 included 18-year-old amateur Ben Crenshaw. Frank Beard, Bob Mickles and Bunky Henry, who shot 68. Don Sikes, among the 150s, fired 69.

Senators Give Orioles Helping Hand

The Senators, last in the American League East division, dropped a doubleheader to the Orioles Friday night, 13-10 and 3-2 in 13 innings. And for Baltimore, it couldn't have happened at a better time.

The Orioles' lead in the East division had shrunk from 7½ games to 1½ over the last few weeks as they dropped 10 of 16 games.

Baltimore has taken Washington four out of five times this season after going 13-5 last year and 14-4 in 1968. The record since the expansion Senators were born in 1961 stands 154-63 in favor of you-know-who.

Coupled with New York Yankees' 14-run slugfest on Saturday, the Orioles' doubleheader twin bill moved Baltimore back into first place.

Boyer, 34, who was rested for a couple of days recently, raised his average to .286 and his three runs batted in gave him 29.

"This ought to show them I can hit if I get some rest," Boyer said afterward. "I'm not going to hit .300 but I'm going to get some big hits. I'm not an out."

Boyer's runscoring hit in the opener snapped a 6-6 deadlock in the seventh inning and gave Reed the victory. In the second game, Boyer singled and scored Atlanta's first run before he was another with a fourth-inning single.

Rico Carty had a two-run homer, his 10th, in the opener while Hank Aaron drilled his 19th in the nightcap, a two-run shot as Pat Jarvis, 7-3 scattered eight hits, two of them solo homers by Doug Rader.

Reed had arrived earlier in the day from Texas Rangers, Tex., where he had been working out with the Braves' farm club.

Andy Messersmith drilled a solo homer and RBI single in the Dodgers' victory. Bill Singer, 2-6, making his second start since missing two months of the season with bepatitis, allowed the Reds only two hits in five innings.

Jose Pena relieved Singer and allowed a two-out eighth inning homer to the Reds' John Bench. It was the Cincinnati catcher's 22nd.

Clete Boyer's Bat Finally Speaks Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clete Boyer, Atlanta Braves' slick fielding third baseman whose bat has been silent most of June and teammate Ron Reed, who since spring training, came back strong Friday night as Atlanta swept a doubleheader from Houston Astros.

Boyer snapped a two-for-32 batting slump, delivering the winning run in the opener with a single and rapping a pair of key hits in the nightcap as the Braves won 7-6 and 4-2.

Reed, an 18-game winner last season but absent since he broke his collarbone March 16, picked up the first-game victory, stopping Houston on one run and three hits over the final five innings.

In other National League contests, Los Angeles Dodgers tripped Cincinnati Reds 6-1, New York Mets bested Philadelphia Phillies 13-3, St. Louis Cardinals downed Chicago Cubs 5-3 in 11 innings, San Diego Padres topped San Francisco Giants 6-3 and Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Montreal Expos 5-4.

Boyer, 34, who was rested for a couple of days recently, raised his average to .286 and his three runs batted in gave him 29.

"This ought to show them I can hit if I get some rest," Boyer said afterward. "I'm not going to hit .300 but I'm going to get some big hits. I'm not an out."

PROVIDENCE (CP-AP) — Larry Wilson, former National Hockey League player, was named coach Friday of Providence Reds of the American Hockey League. Wilson, who directed Dayton Gems to two consecutive International Hockey League championships as player-coach, succeeds Dave Creighton, Creighton, born in Port Arthur, remains as general manager of the AHL team. Wilson, a native of Kincardine, Ont., joined Detroit Red Wings as a centre at age 19 and played with Chicago Black Hawks before Buffalo Bisons of the AHL in 1955 — where he remained until 1968. Wilson became player-coach of the Gems in 1963.

The race meeting is being organized by members of the Motorsport Club of Ottawa, the Outaouais Valley Autosport Club and the Flat Auto Club of Ottawa.

National Skiers Cutting Back

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's national ski team is faced with cutting its operation by half next winter due to financial pressures.

The team program, budgeted for $500,000 for the coming season, is the principal victim of a new financial policy being discussed at the annual general meeting of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association this weekend.

"All programs must be drastically reduced on a national level," CASA president Scott Fennell of Vancouver said in an interview.

"We've been over-spending for years and that's too damn long.

"The public isn't going to give us money any more, so we have to restructure all our budgets. For instance, we can't keep sending teams of 45 people to race in Europe any more. In future we may only send five girls."

Commenting on the figure of $500,000 sought by team coach Al Raine for next season, Fennell said:

"I can't say how much he'll get, but if it's half that figure, it will be fantastic."

In his report to the meeting, Raine warned against the dangers of cutting the team program, which has grown over the past four years.

Raine saw the immediate effects of the financial squeeze as the reduction in size of the Canadian team overseas and the loss of the proposed women's A team.

Jerome Wins Heats, Pulls Up Lame

HAMILTON (CP) — Harry Jerome, once a world-class sprinter, came out of retirement Friday night—and pulled up lame, again.

Jerome was the fastest man in the 100-metre heats at the British Commonwealth Games track and field trials, with a time of 10.5 seconds.

Then he went into the semi-final and won again, turning in a time of 10.4, the Games qualifying standard. But when he left the track, he was favoring his right leg. His ailment was diagnosed as a pulled hamstring muscle.

Jerome withdrew from the final and watched with an ice pack on his leg as four men crossed the line in a cluster.

John Swainson of Toronto was given first, Ralston Johnson of Hamilton second, Ian Gordon of Vancouver third and Marcel Charland of Montreal fourth. They were all timed in at 10.6.

Jerome, who once shared world records in the 100- and 200-metre distances, is 30. He retired in 1960 after the Olympic Games in Mexico City.

"I really thought some of these young sprinters could do better," he said Friday night.

Jerome said he would like to make the Canadian team if he could help it, "maybe on a relay team."

"But I don't think I could do anything in the 100 metres at Scotland, even with rest. I'm over the hill, the old Three Musicateers are going to run it in 10.1 for sure."

Twice before, leg trouble ruined Jerome's international hopes—in the 1960 Rome Olympics and in the 1962 British Empire Games in Perth, Australia.

The first day of the two-day trials was chilly and events ran late, finishing in darkness.

Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., drew the biggest crowd. The 17-year-old holds the North American women's high-jump record of six feet, three-quarters of an inch and easily cleared 5-9 to win in her specialty.

"It started to get dark when we cleared five-foot-seven," she said. "After that, we were jumping in the vicinity of the bar. There were bright lights right behind it across the field —sort of making the bar waver."

Five native Canadian records were broken in 17 events held Friday.

Jerome Drayton of Toronto switched from the marathon to the 10,000 metres and slashed more than 40 seconds off his own record of 29:36.0. Drayton, who has been running marathons in world times, did the 10,000 in 28:25.8.

He was almost a full minute ahead of second-place Helmer Dave Ellis of Toronto.

Ernst McLaren of Guelph, Ont., did the 3,000-metre steeplechase in 8:43.3, breaking the former mark of 8:52.6, set by Ray Varey of Hamilton, who came second Friday.

Thelma Fynn of Vancouver won the women's 1,500 metres in 4:39.2, lowering the 4:39.6 established by Noreen Liepins of Vancouver, who finished third Friday, behind Penny Werthner of Ottawa.

George Nesland of Toronto equalled his own Canadian native record of 14.2 seconds in winning the 110-metre hurdles.

Wendy Taylor of Abbotsford, B.C., ran the 100 metres in 11.9, well under Penny May's 12.3 record. However, the Vancouver girl's mark still stands—judges ruled Miss Taylor was helped by a stronger wind than allowed.

Lj Dammaan of Kitchener, Ont., also with the benefit of a tail wind, did the distance in 14.2.

The trials end tonight, then selectors will try to pick a team of up to 60 athletes.

Team Chosen Before Trials?

OTTAWA (CP) — Sprinter Harry Jerome says the method of selecting Canadian athletes to compete in the British Commonwealth Games is ridiculous.

". . . The choosing of the team is a joke," Jerome said in an interview here just before the opening Friday of the Canadian games trials in Hamilton.

"I can tell you right now who the 40 people going to the games will be. This way of selecting a team is ridiculous."

At present, athletes are chosen from provincial teams and sent to a trial such as the one in Hamilton, where their performances are judged against games standards.

Canadians unable to make the Hamilton trial but competing in other current meets will have their times or distances assessed by officials who will make the selection for the Canadian team at the games in Scotland next month.

Jerome, co-holder of the 9.1-second world record set in 1960 for 100-yard sprint, suggested a new selection method.

He said there should be a two-week track-and-field training camp, open to any Canadian who wanted to take a whack at making the team. A meet would be held at the end of training and athletes with the best performances would be picked.

Jerome has entered the Hamilton meet as a member of the British Columbia team in the 100-metre and relay events.

United Taken to Cleaners by Parsons

Belleville United were "taken to the cleaners" in their inter-city Bay of Quinte Soccer Association rivalry with Parsons, dropping a 6-2 decision.

Both teams played hard tackling, fast - passing soccer, but Parsons had a clear edge in cashing in scoring opportunities.

Lloyd Rose gave the winners a 2-0 lead early in the first half, firing a pair of goals within five minutes.

United pulled to within one on a defensive lapse by Parsons, with George Del Grosso beating goalie Brent Gallupe. The remainder of the half featured tight defensive play, until the dying minutes when Bob Rutherford made it 3-1 from a goalmouth scramble.

Second - half goals by Peter Clinkard and Rutherford made it 5-1 before Allen Brown counted the second United goal on a penalty kick. John O'Neill finished off the scoring for the winners.

Standout performers were Lloyd Rose and Bill Lucas of Parsons and Joe Iasenza and Allan Brown of United.

Although the Eagles controlled much of the play they were unable to cash in a number of good scoring opportunities. Tony Gonsalves opened the scoring for Belleville in the first half, with Bommarito evening the match in the second.

Bob Hilcher was a standout on the Eagle defence controlling mid-field throughout the contest.

Artistic Girls Get Brush-off

The Cosy Grill Girls brushaside Artistic Ladies Thursday to the tune of 9-0 in Ladies Softball League action.

Sandra Claus fired a five-hitter and blazed third strikes past 13 opponents while only walking two batters.

Sue Morton gave up 15 hits on the Artistic mound, fanning three and walking two.

Length was the Cosy's battle plan as Sharon Francis hit a homer and a triple, Nancy Eggleton a home run, and Sandra Claus a triple, to demolish Artistic.

Cup Carried

Area soccer followers will be provided with the opportunity to hear the world soccer champions declared.

CJBQ Radio will be carrying Sunday's World Cup final between Brazil and Italy, beginning at 2.45 p.m. Sunday.

Belleville Juniors Flunk Defensive Test

The Belleville Junior Lacrosse team flunked its defensive test against the Bay of Quinte Lacrosse league leaders from Campbellford Thursday dropping a 15-1 decision.

Standout Belleville goalie, Paul Maddox, was unable to make the trip because of secondary school examinations, and the results were evident in the winners' 15-goal output.

Announcing the fastest beetle ever made.

You probably won't be able to spot the big change in this year's Volkswagen. If you just pass one on the highway but you might get an inkling when one passes you.

The 1970 VW has a bigger engine. (It's now 1600 cc.'s)

How we did it is interesting: we made the engine bigger, but we didn't add any weight. So while it pushes the Volkswagen harder, it doesn't push itself any harder.

One of the reasons why Volkswagen engines with 200,000 miles on them are not unheard of.

It'll just make sure you get there.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: When is an alcoholic? By that, I mean, when should he drink or — and his family — begin to worry that true alcoholism is on the way? — Mrs. Y.

Comment: You have touched a nerve. For years I have been saying that in hundreds of "thousands of cases" — the "safe" social drinkers the dividing line between social drinking and alcoholism is indeed a thin one.

Without realizing it, many trip and topple over into the deep valley of habitual heavy drinking. Many can be saved from themselves if they are warned in time and they cut down on their intake of alcohol.

According to a leaflet by the National Council of Alcoholism sent me by Mr. Frank R. McDowell, Director of Counseling of the Kansas City Area, there are warning signals. Both have seen them and so have I.

For example, a wife (or husband) says that her mate has been difficult to get along with lately. When he drinks he gets depressed. He drinks to calm his nerves. But he drinks heavier and more and the effect he wants."

I would tell those who says, "Lately he has been hiding his liquor. He has about his drinking. He neglects his family when he is drinking."

Of course, in many cases the characteristic of chronic alcoholism is evident. A wife says, "He gets dead drunk on weekends and misses going to work at least two Mondays out of every month."

Do you want a scientific definition of alcoholism? Here it is, from the Manual of the American Medical Association: "Alcoholism is an illness characterized by preoccupation with alcohol and loss of control over its consumption, the drinking usually leading to intoxication if drinking is begun; by chronicity; by progression; and by a tendency toward relapse. It is typically associated with physical disability and impaired emotional, occupational and social adjustments." Such a direct consequence of persistent and excessive use."

What it all adds up to, Mrs. Y., is: get help early before there has been time for alcoholism is a sickness. Contact your local Alcohol Information Center, or the AA or Alanon Family Group.

A note to (I hope) an interested mother: This is from your youngest daughter, to establish communication.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 21 - year - old child. My trouble is my mother. She always complains I do not do my work. When I start doing work she calls me and says; get me some water or go make up the bed or something. I asked her why should I drop my work and make up your bed. She says because I said so. Please tell me what I should do or say to her. — Miss D.

Comment: Perhaps Mother will see your note. Miss D., and from now on take the time to explain things.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Our daughter, aged 15, has a recurring sore throat and fever. The radiologist wrote: "There is a little enlargement of the left hilar border. There is possible low grade blood stream infection or rheumatic source."

But our doctor doesn't seem to be concerned. He says nothing is definite. She is not receiving anything except aspirin. What would you do? — Mrs. F.

Comment: I'd ask for consultation with a heart specialist right away.

Regional Aid Plans Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Regional development plans which aim to create industry in under-developed areas are a mistake, Robert Cliche, former mbec. New Democratic Party leader, told a conference on Quebec Friday.

During a panel discussion at Carleton University he said such areas are too far from markets.

Mr. Cliche described the impact of technological change on his home area, the counties of Frontenac, Beauce and Dorchester, south of Quebec City.

Industries there which manufacture such things as shoes and textiles are too small to interest labor unions and cannot compete in the Canadian market. Farmers who abandoned the soil when income decreased in the 1930s and went to the five towns and 40 villages could find only part-time work and were forced to go on welfare.

Of the young people who came into the labor market in the last 15 years, he said, "I will bet my shirt that 80 per cent . . . went to the United States."

TAKES SIX OTHERS

HYDERABAD, India (AP) — A man who committed suicide by burning himself alive in a village near here was responsible for the deaths of six others, officials reported. The flames spread and burned down 70 huts, they said.

Dull Market Scores Gains

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It was a grim time for stock brokers but some investors posted champagne glasses as the fortunate this week as Canadian stock markets made large advances.

Trading, however, remained at the listless crawl established last week.

At the Toronto Stock Exchange, the advance on the industrial index 4.17 points to 156.53, was the largest for a week since the first week of that ended Nov. 14, 1969.

The second-largest advance in 1970 was for the week ending Feb. 28, when the index jumped 2.49 points to 153.92.

Volume of trading at the Toronto exchange was up slightly from last week, with 3,432,000 shares changing hands, compared with 1,401,000 last week.

Last week was the lowest five-day trading period of 1970.

The Toronto exchange posted its slowest trading session Monday since April 18, 1960.

Observers say many investors are still leery of buying or selling shares after the frantic dips of a few weeks ago.

Others say that no Canadian news this week to spark sharp advances, the United States market was the main drive for markets up.

Anticipation built up in the early part of the week among investors who expected that President Nixon's speech would give words of encouragement in his economic address Wednesday.

Mr. Nixon failed to do so, say market.

ing today that the U.S. economy was the strongest in the world, but adding that the nation still faces serious problems.

Markets dipped slightly after Mr. Nixon's talk but began to rally late Thursday when it was announced that inflation in the U.S. was easing.

Many analysts and other market observers saw still cautious when commenting on short- or long-term trends.

Some say markets now have formed new bases after the slump session of the last few months but others maintain that this process is still to be completed.

The Toronto brokerage firm, J. H. Crang and Co., says in its June 17 newsletter:

"The 'process of forming a base could last quite a few months.

"This base-forming period could well be a protracted one, especially when one takes into account that there will be some psychological low points.

"The firm includes balance-of-payments figures, corporate profits and unemployment statistics among these low points.

Bongard Leslie and Co. of Toronto says in its June investment letter:

"A sustained reversal of the long bearish trend cannot be accomplished overnight.

"It is our opinion that (the) floating dollar and reduction in the bank rate might well prove to be the catalytic agents required to spark . . . more positive attitudes toward the stock market."

Many Factors Enter Adjusted Job Figures

OTTAWA (CP) — More than a dozen major factors, and many minor ones, are employed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' computers in adjusting monthly unemployment figures to show their economic impact on the country.

Thursday's employment report showed that while unemployment actually declined between mid-April and mid-May, the rate on a seasonally-adjusted basis shot up to 6.2 per cent of the labor force from 5.8. It was the highest unemployment rate recorded since February, 1963.

A DBS official said the adjustment is made to take into account the fact that Canada's industrial activity is highly seasonal, swinging from peak unemployment in the winter months to peak activity in the summer months.

But not all industries are affected at the same time, or to the same degree.

All of these factors are recurring, and yearly patterns have been established that have been converted to mathematical formulas. When so-called "raw" employment and unemployment statistics are gathered by the DBS door-to-door canvass of 36,000 households, they are fed into the DBS computers along with the adjusting formulas.

From October to March, the resulting adjusted rate of unemployment is usually lower than the actual rate reported in the survey. During other months of the year, the seasonally-adjusted rate runs higher than the actual rate.

What is significant, the statisticians say, is the degree to which each month's employment figure in an industry deviates from what can normally be expected.

For June 21

Your birthday today: The sun leaves Gemini behind and enters Cancer at 10:30 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time. Babies born today before this minute are Geminian, while those born later are Cancerians. In other years the hour and minute of changing signs is different. Both Gemini and Cancer natives will find definite chances this year to make money, or at so much in new ventures as in streamlined, more effective versions of what is already started. Today's natives are shrewd observers, sympathetic, usually at ease in public places.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Matters of personal relationships are not favored. Aside from this one sensitive area, this will be a pleasant Sunday. Pause for prayer this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): People do things contrary to your planning. Pick up the pieces and go on in good humor. Reject soft future work plans.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Take part in the community expression of faith. Be a tourist in your own neighborhood so that you see it from a new viewpoint. Let your loved ones know your feelings.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Home life brightens up the Sunday. Don't expect too much from anybody; give everybody on a good word or something constructive to do.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your ideas run into conflict with your situation. If you concentrate on things that can be done in solitude, aware of the tension is avoided.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This should be an average sort of Sunday. Do what is expected of you with casual humor. Do nothing, however, to the point that it becomes fatiguing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This generally happy Sunday at home enjoyment has a brief spiral due to somebody's contrary feelings. A small surprise is in store, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): The entire day is more worthy than planned. Start early to allow for unsought opportunities and last minute changes of direction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There are many people to meet. Related errands are also part of the agenda. Bad habits are subject to ready change for the better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This is a multifaceted Sunday in which you can do both pleasant socializing and something that helps goodwill for your favorite charity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Somebody near you resists your plans. You might be a little doubter along to join in the fun. Many interesting acquaintances are met en route.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Spend a quiet day as early alone as you can. Whatever activities you do engage in should be kept impersonal. Retire early.

For June 22

Your birthday today: An event - filled year opens in which every conscientious move must be balanced by some saying in time and money. By year's end your habits will have changed a little at a time into entirely different forms. Today's natives are usually rather cautious, acquisitive people who hold their own in the glare of public attention.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Money is a serious concern. Do not gamble or speculate with anything belonging to somebody else. Have the courage to differ — you don't lose real friends by taking a stance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The week opens slowly, and it may seem there's more to do than can be handled. Do the important things first and don't fret over things left undone.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Count your blessings; concentrate on the good things. Make alternate plans for the future — this breaks the circular pattern.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You are troubled by family matters, yet there really is little you can do. Accept matters as they are, those things you can do something about.

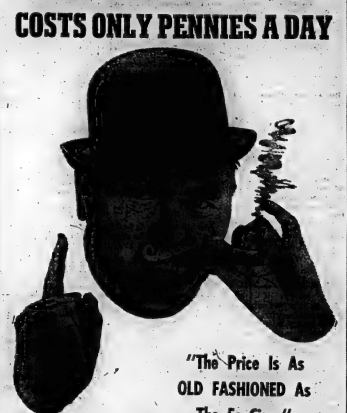
LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Consultations with experts show you something helpful but inconvenient. You can attract financial support for big projects. Take little for granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today promises to be fairly productive but unexciting. Relatives and in-laws have problems. Advise, but don't involve yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Purchases should be restricted to necessities. Money you share with others can be a puzzle. Shocking stories arise from questionable sources. Let kindness lead the way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Things begun today are likely to take a long time to complete. Stick to unfinished work. Property transactions are not favored, may encounter delays.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Prepare for a long uphill day. Face yourself to avoid undue fatigue. Offer few comments, as most of what you say will be taken in ways you don't intend.



CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Higher outlays occur than you had planned for. Bring your plans into effect step by step. You can attract important collaboration later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Personal wishes conflict with family affairs — taking time you had allocated to something else. Keep in mind your longer-range goals.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Abandon some neglected projects, get something else finished. There are plenty of bids for your charity. Give no more than you can comfortably manage.

One Plate Trainer Not Predicting Win

TORONTO (CP) — If the 111th running of the Queen's Plate could be postponed for a month, trainer Jim Bentley thinks he has the horse that could win it.

But with post time at 4:47 p.m. EDT today, Bentley is almost alone among the dozen trainers saddling horses for the Plate because he doesn't expect his colt to finish in front.

"I'd be tickled if he finished fourth," said Bentley, nodding toward the stall where Mrs. A. W. Stollery's Mildenhall chewed a mouthful of hay.

But even fourth place would be worth $4,415 to Mrs. Stollery, which accounts for entries such as Mildenhall pushing the total field to 15, largest since 1963 when 19 Canadian-bred three-year-olds battled for a winner's purse of $55,098.

The winner's purse this year is a record $87,395, second is $17,680 and third $8,830, making this one richly thoroughbred event in Canada.

Victoria Park, Mildenhall's sire, set the Woodbine track record of 2:02 over the Plate distance of 1¼ miles in 1960. The closest any horse has come since was a 2:02 1-5 time set by Northern Dancer in 1964.

Bentley said Mildenhall has good blood lines and the ability to beat any horse in today's field, but just isn't ready.

"We had him down in Florida for the winter and he came back with a fever. He was ailing and bores, completely run down.

"He looks good now, but he still needs another month before he reaches his peak. Then, he'll be able to beat anything in this race."

The 1¼-mile distance could prove the downfall of beaten-rated horses such as Dance to Market and Bees Wax.

Dance to Market, the 5-3 favorite, and Bees Wax are expected to lead the pack out of the starting gate because both like to be in front.

With Gardiner Farm's Two Violins eliminated by a leg injury, it now appears Ivy Tenney's Top Call or Malcolm Scobie's Almoner are the favorites to overtake the front runners in the stretch run.

"And I wouldn't overlook Mary of Scotland," said Bentley, "She finished third in the Oaks last Saturday, but she was closing fast at the finish. She looks like she can go the distance."

Mary of Scotland, part of the Gardiner Farm entry, is one of only two fillies in the race, both of whom will carry 121 pounds.

The other filly is Frenchcache, along with Crozamanbaise, the entry of J. Louis Levesque of Montreal.

Frenchcache also is a top contender after she finished second to South Ocean in the Oaks, 1¼ lengths ahead of Mary of Scotland. South Ocean was not eligible for the Plate.

The Queen's Plate is the premier event, culminating what is often termed Canada's royal week of racing that began with the Oaks last Saturday.

Ontario's LL-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald will ride in an open landau to trackside, escorted by a mounted squadron of the Governor-General's Horse Guard. He presents the Plate trophy, a gold cup, to the winner amid the show of pageantry.

The race and ceremonies will be televised by the CBC national network beginning at 4:30 p.m. EDT.

SAVE LOTS OF MONEY
BE SURE TO COMPARE
BEFORE YOU BUY

Our prices are far below all competition. In most cases not just a few hundred dollars but many hundreds of dollars. When checking value, determine the size of the respective houses in relation to price.

We have 4 bedroom 2 bathroom houses for the unheard of downpayment of $2,700.00. See if you can equal that any place in town.

Try and find a 3 bedroom ranch split with stone facing on a finished street in town for less than $22,000.00. We have one.

Investigate the chances of getting a 3 bedroom ranch split level with finished family room on main level. You will find the price to be far above our $25,000.00 range.

Check interest rates. Most of ours are under 10%.

For a real eye opener compare our prices for 6 and 12 unit buildings. You can save thousands of dollars dealing directly with us.

Recommendations on Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the LeDain commission interim report on non-medical use of drugs:

Sharply-reduced penalties for marijuana use are recommended, plus shifting of control to the Food and Drugs Act from the Narcotics Control Act.

Possession of drugs such as marijuana and LSD should remain an offence, pending further investigation.

Maximum penalty for possession of any drug, including heroin, should be a $1000 fine rather than jail sentences.

Definition of drug trafficking should be amended to exclude passing marijuana around at a party, for instance.

Police should avoid entrapment and violence in gaining evidence in drug cases.

Cost of enforcing drug laws appears "out of all proportion to the relative effectiveness of the law."

Extent of non-medical drug use in Canada is widespread.

Drug education should be more realistic because "we can no longer rely on the appeal to a negative morality."

Certain antihistamines, cough and cold remedies and analgesics — painkillers — containing phenacetin should be available only on doctor prescription — not over the counter as at present.

Amphetamines and barbiturates should be subject to closer production, import and prescription controls.

There is little evidence that "speed kills" and heavy users of speed, or amphetamines, usually quit or go to hospital before mortal damage is done.

Short-term physical effects of marijuana appear relatively insignificant. Long-term effects demand more research.

LSD use appears dangerous, especially during pregnancy.

The commission will investigate further the RCMP contention of drug contagion — that is, that marijuana leads to harder drugs.

Evidence, except for heroin, is inadequate on the contention that non-medical drug use leads to criminal behavior.

Need for research is urgent because the public won't tolerate "an indefinite reliance on inadequate knowledge" to justify current policy.

Present public policy on research is "too heavily influenced by the attitude of law enforcement authorities."

The commission is pursuing a major research project on drug use.

Research on effects, extent, causes, prevention and treatment of non-medical drug use should be pursued "with all possible vigor."

Federal government should promote and aid research.

Stimulation of research and evaluation of data should be done by an "independent agency "that has no connection with the responsibility for law enforcement."

Canada should initiate an independent research program into marijuana, with government-controlled cultivation, production and standardization for research purposes.

A national system for data on non-medical drug use should be established.

Analysis of drug samples should be decentralized. Regional laboratories should be established.

The news media should be kept as fully informed as possible by the federal government on non-medical drug use.

It is a grave error to "base a program of drug education upon a strategy of fear."

Drug use might be made an aspect of general education but teachers should have specialized training.

"Serious consideration should be given to training young people for participation in drug education."

"Intimate association of the law enforcement and scientific functions has prejudiced research and the credibility of scientific performance."

Physicians and hospital staff often show impatience and hostility to drug users in trouble and "all too often" don't know how to treat drug crises.

The medical profession and the provinces should get together to provide special treatment facilities.

"Street clinics" should be encouraged for youths afraid to use existing medical facilities.

Provinces should be urged to "examine the problems arising from the rigid interpretation and enforcement of existing child protection statutes," as applied to dropouts and other such places sheltering runaway youngsters.

Municipalities should aid such centres, once satisfied they are providing a necessary service.

Physical dependence on drugs can be cured in two to six weeks.

Many dependents either don't seek help or relapse into excessive use after treatment.

The commission will examine proposals for compulsory treatment of heavy chronic drug users.

Physicians should be required to record medical licence numbers, the patient's social insurance number, on all prescriptions to discourage drug abuse.

Thatcher Calls Legislature to Curb Strike

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan legislature has been called into emergency session to sharpen the teeth of a controversial labor law which many people say already has too many bites.

Premier Ross Thatcher announced Friday after a 7½-hour meeting with his Liberal caucus that the legislature will be asked to expand the Essential Services Emergency Act, in order 800 striking plumbers and pipefitters back to work.

The premier said the session will start Monday, June 28, three days before the New Democratic Party opposition meets to chose a successor for retiring leader Woodrow S. Lloyd.

"The government will ask legislation to be brought under Bill 2," Mr. Thatcher told reporters.

"If the strike is settled and an agreement reached by June 28, the emergency session might be called off."

Although the government is most interested in settling the two-month-old strike by members of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of Plumbers and Pipefitters, Mr. Thatcher said an expanded Bill 2 would cover all construction unions for two or three years.

Following the announcement, labor officials began making plans to oppose the government action and Mr. Lloyd said the NDP caucus will meet today.

Court to Rule on Insurance Surplus

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court will be asked to decide if Confederation Life Association and members of Windsor Medical Services have the exclusive right to dispose of their approximately $1,000,000 in insurance funds as they see fit.

Commercial Affairs Minister Bert Lawrence said in an interview the public trustee has applied to the court for a decision. He said he expects the case to be heard in the fall.

Mr. Lawrence said the government contends the public has an interest in the fund and how it is used.

The Windsor insurance plan went out of business when the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan came into effect.

Government members made the decision with regret, said the premier, but they consider the strike has reached emergency proportions.

"The fact is that unless many public buildings are commenced soon, there will be very little winter work for wage earners."

The province has a $30,000,000 public works program that can't start without the plumbers and pipefitters.

Mr. Thatcher has said that any contractor who signs for more than a six-per-cent wage increase this year will not be given any government work.

The plumbers and pipefitters have asked for 17 per cent over two years and the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors' Association has offered six per cent.

Labor leaders say it is likely other trade union agreements will be based on a contract signed by the plumbers. Electricians have been on strike in Regina for almost two months and carpenters, painters and laborers have agreements up for renewal.

New Student-loan Program Is Proposed by Provinces

TORONTO (CP) — Proposals for a new Canadian student-loan program have been presented to the federal government by the country's 10 provincial education ministers.

Lin Peebles, information officer for the Ontario department of university affairs, said Friday the new program, if accepted would be nationwide and standardize the system of giving student loans.

Canada student loans now are available across the country except in Quebec, Mr. Peebles said. "But they are integrated in varying degrees with provincial assistance schemes."

In Ontario, a student award is partially a loan from a bank and partially grant from the government. The federal government guarantees the loan and pays the interest while the student is in university. Six months after the student graduates or discontinues his studies, he is responsible for the interest as well as repaying the loan.

The main recommendation of the submission is a new loan system tied in with the college students' future earnings, with repayments and interest bound in with income tax returns.

But Mr. Peebles emphasized the proposals are "still in the talking stage and further studies now are underway."

The proposals were drawn up by a sub-committee of the Council of Ministers of Education.

The committee's report proposes that financial assistance be in the form of interest-bearing loans which would replace the smaller number of free grants available under the present assistance program.

Repayment would begin at the end of the first year in which the university graduate pays income taxes and the rate of repayment would be geared to the amount of income.

Other proposals of the committee report:

—Repayment with interest at a prevailing rate spread over 15 years following graduation, or in a better time at the option of the graduate.

—Loans for educational costs to include living expenses as well as tuition and books.

—Loans available to adults returning to university for part-time credit courses as well as to students coming out of high school.

—The program be financed by and through the federal government and be a national program.

—All applicants must satisfy the lending authority that they have no private financial resources available to them.

Constable Says Chief Tried to Intimidate Him

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An Amherstburg constable testified Friday his police chief threatened to dismiss him from the force if he testified at the chief's trial on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Constable Wilfred Fryer told Provincial Judge C. E. Perkins of Chatham, because he liked his job and had a wife and two children to support he signed an original statement following the Feb. 21 incident saying Chief Ronald Seney was kicked first by Frederick Brown, 23, of Amherstburg, who has charged the chief with the assault.

Constable Fryer said the chief "sort of reminded me that Brown kicked him first and I was on probation (a probationary constable on the force) and I could be let go at any time. It was either do it or lose your job."

Constable Fryer testified Friday that Chief Seney kicked Mr. Brown in the face and groin. He said the first time he told the true story was some time after the incident, to Eugene Duchesne, Essex County crown attorney.

Stirling

STIRLING — The Hastings County Riders held their third Club Show on Sunday, June 14 at the Stirling Fairgrounds.

The judge was Mowrie Parks of Belleville. An unexpected highlight of the day was a visit from Mr. Bill Weston who drove his horse and red buggie all the way to the fair grounds from his home eight miles northwest of Frankford.

Nurses Postpone Abortion Motion

FREDERICTON (CP) — The Canadian Nurses' Association postponed Friday a move to urge the federal government to remove sections relating to abortion from the Criminal Code.

A resolution, which said "the question of abortion would seem to be a medical rather than a legal con," was referred to the CNA board of directors for further study.

Delegates to the group's biennial general meeting also passed 17 resolutions during closing sessions Friday. They included:

—The CNA give serious consideration to the appointment of a well-qualified nurse to assume the role of CNA lobbyist."

—The federal government call a national conference to study Canada's health matters.

—The production of nursing textbooks in French be encouraged.

Heath Picks Top Team

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Edward Heath buckled down today to choosing a second line of ministers and thinking about a legislative program for the July 2 opening of Parliament after forming a stream-lined post-election cabinet of 18 members.

The new government head has called his first cabinet meeting for Tuesday and is expected to announce then or Wednesday many of the junior ministers who can number in the dozens under the British system.

Since he cut three from the number in Harold Wilson's decision-making Labor cabinet, observers looked for him to slim down the number of lesser portfolios and miscellaneous salaried jobs of MPs which the Wilson swelled the "payroll vote" to well over 100 of the 630 Commons members.

For the central cabinet he announced Saturday, Heath built

Three More Banks Cut Prime Rate

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three major Canadian chartered banks announced today reductions in prime lending rates to eight per cent from 8½, effective July 1.

Announcements came in separate statements from Royal Bank of Canada headquarters in Montreal and Toronto Dominion Bank head offices in Toronto at about the time banks opened. About 1½ hours later, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, based in Toronto, announced its reduction.

The banks also announced they will decrease the rate on premium savings accounts—non-chequing accounts—to six per cent from 6½, also effective July 1.

The Bank of Montreal announced the same rate changes two weeks ago. Its reduced lending rate went into effect June 15 and its lower savings rate goes into effect July 1.

W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank, said the bank will be selective in its lending.

Mr. McLaughlin said the bank will reduce its mortgage rate by one-half per cent. Rates on conventional mortgages were 10½ per cent and they were 10¾ per cent on National Housing Act mortgages.

The Toronto Dominion Bank also announced a one-half-per-cent reduction in mortgage rates to 10 per cent on conventional mortgages and 9¾ on National Housing Act Mortgages.

U. S. Smashes Narcotics Ring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General John N. Mitchell, elated by mass arrests in what he called "the biggest operation of its kind," hints that United States agents are planning more attacks on organized trafficking in narcotics.

Mitchell announced Sunday that 190 persons, mostly Cuban refugees, had been named in complaints or warrants as part of what officials said was a ring controlling most of the cocaine and a large share of the heroin traffic in the United States.

The justice department said early today 127 persons have been arrested in 10 cities as part of Operation Eagle, the code name for a six-month undercover investigation that culminated in weekend raids across the U.S.

Two of those arrested were critically wounded by federal agents—one in New York, the other in Miami.

While disclosing developments at a news conference Sunday, Mitchell gave much of the credit for Operation Eagle to legal wire/tap provisions.

He also pointed to the shooting incidents as fresh support for his stand that Congress should pass President Nixon's anti-crime proposal providing no-knock entry. "It would have been a great help to us," he said.

The attorney-general said the two wounded men were among three men who "resisted when agents announced their presence." Agents shot one man in his home after they said he aimed a gun at them. The other man was shot in a car by an agent who reported being dragged about 75 feet as the car pulled away.

Meanwhile, Mitchell told reporters "quite a few" operations of the scope of the one eliminated during the weekend can be launched within a year.

Asked if there are more coming, he replied with one word: "Undoubtedly." Asked whether they would be coming soon, he responded: "Hopefully."

He said Operation Eagle was aimed at cutting "the flow of hard narcotics into and within the United States." Mitchell insisted Operation Eagle "would have been impossible" without the provisions for court-approved wiretapping as contained in the 1968 Crime Control Act.

Officials said the alleged ring handled about 75 to 80 per cent

Big U.S. Railroad Bankrupt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Railroad, largest in the United States, has received court permission to reorganize under federal bankruptcy laws because it is unable to pay its bills. Meanwhile, it continues normal operations.

Directors of the railway, part of a giant company with assets of more than $6,500,000,000, said they went into court Sunday because the line was caught in a "severe cash squeeze" and unable to borrow new funds "from any source." A last-ditch plea for a $200,000,000 governmental-guaranteed loan fell through last week.

Bomb Parts Seized

"If we're hijacked to Cuba will it cost extra?"

MONTREAL (CP) — Six persons were arrested and more than $50 pounds of dynamite was discovered Sunday in two raids police described as a major break against terrorist activities.

Four persons, one a woman, were arrested in the first raid Sunday morning at Prevost, Que., about 30 miles north of Montreal. Police seized more than 300 pounds of dynamite.

The other two arrests came after police found 350 pounds of dynamite in a suburban Laval home. One person was arrested in the raid and another was picked up later on a Montreal street.

Marcel St. Aubin, head of the Montreal police department, said the Prevost raid occurred about 9 a.m. when 30 members of the combined anti-terrorist squad—Montreal police, RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police—swarmed out of woods and moved in on a chalet.

In addition to the dynamite, he said, police seized $24,300 in cash, believed from holdups, three sawed-off rifles, revolvers, handcuffs and "material usually used in bomb fabrication"—detonators, clocks, batteries and wires.

The Laval raid was made Sunday evening by members of the anti-terrorist squad.

Police said the cache found in the Prevost chalet indicated those taken into custody are members of the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecoi, which has claimed responsibility for bombings this year and in 1969.

They said the FLQ was responsible for a series of armed robberies in Montreal, including a $7,000 holdup at the University of Montreal May 28.

The May 28 holdup, carried out with military-style precision, took place about the same time that two dynamite bombs rocked a nearby hospital and company warehouse.

During the last two months, 12 pre-dawn bombings have rocks Montreal and police disarmed seven more bombs, including four described as among the largest ever reported in North America.

The owner of the Prevost chalet said he had rented it for the summer to a man who said he was a professor.

"He rented it for the summer season but he hadn't moved in as yet," the owner said.

Deadline Nixon Set Only 8 Days Away

SAIGON (AP) — United States and South Vietnamese today reported their heaviest weekend of fighting in Vietnam in more than two months, but Viet Cong and North Vietnamese pressure eased across Cambodia and U.S. troops began their major withdrawal from border areas.

The U.S. command said portions of two battalions of the 1st Air Cavalry Division's 2nd Brigade began moving back across the border into South Vietnamese today, with more expected to move Tuesday.

The movement, involving several hundred troops, marked the beginning of American pullout from Cambodia that is scheduled to be completed by a week from Tuesday, the June 30 deadline set by President Nixon. Some 9,700 Americans were still across the border when the withdrawal began, military sources said.

South Vietnamese forces claimed a Mekong Delta victory Saturday in which 79 Viet Cong were killed, and said 40 more were slain in two battles Sunday in the same region.

Action involving American units tapered off after an upsurge of sharp fighting which helped to push the Communist toll for the weekend past 220.

Further west in Cambodia, Communist forces relaxed their pressure on the long-embattled provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh.

North Vietnamese troops captured about half the battered town Saturday. A Cambodian spokesman in Phnom Penh said the fighting had died down today, and most of the North Vietnamese had pulled out of the town.

Kompong Thom has been isolated for more than a month, and the Communist force there apparently is being reinforced and resupplied. Other Communist units in Cambodia also are believed awaiting replacements and supplies to come down through Laos.

Kompong Thom is in the centre of what Cambodian officials now describe as a military front stretching from Kompong Cham on the Mekong River, northwest to Siem Reap and the historic temples of Angkor.

The spokesman say two North Vietnamese divisions are deployed along this 130-mile line, which stretches from 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh to 186 miles to the northwest.

U. S. Marine Given Life For Murder

DA NANG (AP) — A 21-year-old U.S. marine was convicted of premeditated murder Sunday in the fatal shooting of 12 South Vietnamese civilians during a patrol last Feb. 19. He was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor.

A seven-man military court also ordered Pfc. Michael A. Schwarz to forfeit all pay and allowances. He will be given a dishonorable discharge.

Before the sentence was pronounced Schwarz told the court: "I had no intention of killing anyone. It was unavoidable, I'm sorry."

Schwarz and three other marines on the patrol were charged in the slaying of 16 Vietnamese — five women and 11 children in the Viet Cong-infested village of Son Thang, 27 miles south of Da Nang.

The court found Schwarz guilty of 12 counts of premeditated murder, but declared him not guilty of four other identical charges.

Guerrilla Activity Discussed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab leaders met in Libya Sunday and apparently discussed ways of co-operating or coordinating activities of the numerous Palestinian guerrilla groups who use their countries as springboards for raids against Israel.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt was among the heads of state who assembled in Tripoli, ostensibly to celebrate evacuation of United States and British military bases in the North African desert country.

The Libyan news agency said the Palestinian question and the great number of commando organizations" were discussed. Representatives of the joint committee of the Palestinian Guerrilla Organization attended.

Yasir Arafat, the chief guerrilla leader, did not attend but he sent a message urging the leaders to intervene to prevent new fighting between the guerrillas and the Jordanian army.

Hamilton Skipper Proves the Family That Sails Together Wins

The 1970 North American Albacore Racing Championships in the Bay of Quinte over the weekend turned out to be a family affair. Winning skipper Donald Barnes of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club alternated 14-year-old daughter Susan, wife Mary, and Don Jr., 13, as his crew members to win the seven-race series in a breeze. The victorious Barnes combination is seen, at right, with some of the spoils of their sailing success, carefully laid out on the deck of the boat that beat 43 others, left, in the overall point standing. Campsite Problem

Algonquin Park Water Should Be Treated Before Drinking

TWEED — Canoeists are being advised to treat drinking water in Algonquin Park — a popular canoeing area for Quinte district vacationers.

The advice has been issued by the lands and forests department, announcing new sanitary measures after problems that down on Algonquin lake last year.

Camping sites may also be in short supply as the department moves to prevent a recurrence of the pollution problems.

Meantime, no sanitary problems are foreseen for the Quinte area's two other major parks — The Outlet and Sandbanks in Prince Edward County, a lands and forests official confirmed.

The warning will involve many who spend long periods in the park on its portages and camping trails.

The possibility of sewage pollution in the interior of the park is unlikely," says the department. It is, however, unwise.

"But, as a large number of persons travel these areas, canoeists are advised to treat drinking water either by boiling, or the use of water purification tablets."

Meantime, Lake of Two Rivers, closed last year because of a sanitary threat, will be re-opened this year, says the report.

The lake was sealed to swimming after pollution tests revealed water near a beach-area campground was below recognized health standards.

During the past winter "major steps have been taken to improve sanitary facilities"

The department says improved sanitary facilities are being considered in all Algonquin playgrounds.

A department official at Outlet Park said camp sites at both the park and the nearby Sandbanks had no sanitary problems last year. None is anticipated this summer.

Like Algonquin, both parks saw camping grounds overtaxed last year and visitors were turned away to seek accommodation from private operators.

Algonquin's superintendent F. W. Houston says the threat last year convinced the department that Two Rivers campsite was overcrowded.

"We decided to take out approximately 100 sites of the total of about 300 in the belief there were too many people in that small area," he said.

The sanitary improvement program — estimated to cost $500,000 throughout the park — preceded work on a new campground on the Madawaska River.

The result is that we'll certainly have a crowding problem, because we won't be able to accommodate everybody," he says.

"We anticipate a difficult summer," he added.

Chief ranger Harold Haines believes the pollution problem may have been caused by campers not bothering to bury their waste, which has poor circulation.

"Maybe the only way we'll prevent the pollution will be to chlorinate the lake itself. It could happen."

Brief Seeks School Aid For Catholics

A group of "prominent Catholics and Protestants" has recommended that the Ontario government regard extension of public support of the separate schools to include grades 11 through 13 as "a debt of honor."

The separate school board here is shrouded the brief from the surrounded study commission of religion in education among separate school supporters.

The commission is composed of laymen and clergy, some of them from the Canadian Council of Churches and the Toronto archdiocese.

The commission says that the separate school system is a right guaranteed by the British North America Act, and whether regarded with favor, is not the issue at stake in discussion of extension of separate schools.

As long as Grades 11 through 13 are excluded from the separate school system, its rights are deberred from the advantages of continuous education and equality with the public system.

"We do not dispute that to continue the separate schools through to Garde 13 would be a burden for the public money spent on education," the brief reads.

But it goes on to state that the extra cost would result from a fairer share of public money than spent on separate schools than is the case at present.

"There is a strong case for regarding any resultant increase in the total educational bill as an act of justice toward those Roman Catholic citizens of the province who have so far carried on their own shoulders the cost of educating 16,000 pupils who might have been charges on public funds," the brief reads.

Writers of the brief admit "it is going to be difficult to allay public financing of the complete separate school system with stimulating requests for similar privileges in private schools."

But they say there are three answers to this problem. The Roman Catholics alone are assessed level by the RSA and as having specific educational rights, the separate school system would bring with it a decency of many buildings and it is doubtful if private schools would wish to surrender their sovereignty by accepting public support.

To the argument that the province cannot support two separate but parallel high school systems the brief counters with the suggestion that facilities and services can be shared in some areas.

School sites, computers, educational televisions, heating plants, surplus accommodation and athletic facilities are cited as some of the areas where sharing could be effected.

Others are transportation, health services, maintenance and repairs, libraries and audio-visual aids, in-service training of teachers, special education for the mentally and physically handicapped, vocational education and adult education.

The brief strongly urges establishment of joint campuses in places where new separate high schools are to be built.

A "changed religious climate" of "unprecedented ecumenical spirit" is the factor that would make extension of the separate schools to sharing of facilities basis a practical partnership between "free self - respecting sovereign systems," the brief concludes.

New Face on Paper Money Circulating in City This Week

For the first time in 10 years, the Bank of Canada has released a new $20 bill.

The new bill has been made available in chartered banks at Bank of Canada Agencies across the country. Most of the banks across Canada will have these notes in the course of the week.

A spokesman for the main branch of the Bank of Montreal in Belleville this morning disclosed that orders of the new notes should arrive in town on Wednesday.

"The Brinks armored cars bring all our money supplies to town from Toronto and they don't arrive until Wednesday," she said.

"I have put in an order for a supply of the new currency and these should be available at our wickets."

In 1967, the Bank of Canada issued a special commemorative one dollar bill for Centennial year, but has not issued any regular notes since 1954.

Last year it was announced that a completely new series would be prepared for release beginning in 1970. One of the greatest changes to be featured or the new series is the replacement of the Queen's head on the $5, the $10, the $50 and the $100 bills.

These will be replaced respectively by portraits of Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir John A. Macdonald, William Lyon Mackenzie King and Sir Robert Borden.

Both Laurier and Macdonald have appeared on large value notes in the 1890's.

The new $20 bills feature, like the $1 and $2 notes to be released later, a new portrait of the Queen engraved from a contemporary photograph and makes use of a greater range of color on both the front and back than does the present note.

Canadian money is printed using an engraved steel plate. The steel engraving involves the cutting of lines into the surface of a special steel plate. These lines are then filled with a very thick ink and the paper is then forced into the lines by very heavy pressure. When the paper is removed it pulls out the thick ink which then 'stands up' above the surface of the note.

Engraved business cards, wedding invitations and the like, have a similar look and feel.

The engraved lines on the new notes and in the paper than previous issues so that they will hold more ink and thus stand up more prominently.

The denominational color of the $20 bill green is used on the new note but there are more colors on the front and back than before which create the "rainbow" appearance particularly noticeable in the main background on the front.

The paper is made for the exclusive use of the Bank of Canada.

As in the printing of Canada's postage stamps, every scrap of paper is weighed so that the printed result plus the scrap equals the total delivered paper. The slightest difference signifying the possible misplacement of paper results in the tripping of alarms which brings barred doors throughout the buildings of the Canadian Bank Note Company and the British American Bank Note Company crashing to a close.

The $20 bill notes will not be withdrawn but will continue to circulate in the normal way until they are judged to be unfit for further use.

At present 370 million notes of all denominations with a face value of approximately $3.4 billion are outstanding. This includes 67 million $20 notes with a face value of approximately $1.340 million

Shriners On Tour To Cities

Belleville Shriners were featured in a giant Shrine parade in Watertown, N.Y. on Saturday. The local lodge had 30 members participating, together with the club's camel float.

The club, active as it is in the parade circuit, will go to Perth Day on June 27, for another colorful display of Arabian splendor. Over 60 people will turn out for the northern event and the ever - popular camel float will be going to Bay City as well.

On Wednesday, a plane trip has been arranged from CFB Trenton for over 60 local crippled children whom the local shrine sponsor. The children will get a better than bird's eye view of both Toronto and Niagara Falls as well as an escorted tour of the busy Trenton airport.

Howard Hart Named As VP

Howard Hart, 40, of Beaconsfield, Quebec, educated in Belleville, has been appointed executive vice president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Hart received his bachelor of commerce degree from Queen's University in 1953.

Married in 1956 to Elinor Diane Goodwin of Picton, they have four children, William, Peter, Suzanne and Caroline.

He joined the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in Montreal in 1954. In 1962 he was appointed secretary of the association and assistant to the president. In 1967 he was made a vice-president.

Trailer Registration Could Reach 350

Travel trailers are due to converge on Trenton Friday as members of the Ontario Travel Trailer Clubs' Association hold their fifth annual rally in the Quinte town.

Hosts for the event, lasting from Friday through next Tuesday, are the 50 Trailer Association members families in the Quinte district.

About 350 trailer enthusiasts are expected to bring their mobile vacation homes to Trenton for the event, which includes inter-club entertainment, a performance by the CFB Trenton Sing Out group and a treasure hunt organized through the co-operation of local merchants who will display clue cards in their store windows.

The trailers will be accommodated in Trenton's Centennial Park at the junction of the Trent River and the Bay of Quinte.

Northern Voting On Contract

More than 800 production workers at Northern Electric were expected to vote today on a conciliator's contract recommendation.

The vote involves members of Northern's Employees Association, who already have approved strike action if necessary to support contract demands.

Negotiations have been in progress for the past two months. Last week, after a meeting with both sides, a conciliator in the Northern plant. It closes at six p.m.

Hydro Now Has Eleven Helicopters

The Ontario Hydro Commission now has one of the largest fleets of helicopters in Canada, according to Eastern Region public relations officer, Norman Manning.

In a report tabled recently in Hydro shareof it is at present using 11 helicopters in its operations in Ontario. The commission now has Bell helicopters, one jet ranger and five Sylvaire 47G3's.

The vehicles are used for line patrols, survey work and for moving men and materials on construction jobs. The helicopters are also used for brush control work.

The hydro commission which once used fixed wing aircraft, has slowly replaced helicopters into its operation since 1946. There are no fixed wing aircraft now.

Last year the helicopters spent 7,667 hours in flight. Staff for the aircraft includes 13 pilots and five trained observers for the patrols.

YMCA Voyageurs Reach Brockville

The Belleville Family YMCA's voyageurs are nearing the half-way mark in their canoe trip to Montreal. Leigh Westwell and Donald Carr are shown above during a stop-over in Brockville yesterday, the pair are expected in Prescott this evening and at Montreal's Man and His World on Saturday. The canoe left Belleville on Wednesday, June 17, and has faced periodic storms on the Quinte - St. Lawrence waterway since its departure. In a phone call this weekend, the crew reported that they were getting soaked from time to time but their quipment was keeping dry. They had only one complaint: their own cooking had not been as good as they had hoped.

CN Yardmen Go Back to Work

Operations at the Canadian National Railways Rideau Area terminal here are back to normal today with the settlement of the internal union dispute between yardmen and trainmen.

A compromise solution was reached by the yardmen, The United Transportation Union and the company Saturday, ending the three-day walkout.

The union promised to review the yardmen's protest over seniority rights with the trainmen through normal constitutional channels.

The yardmen, most of whom are three months delinquent in their union dues, agreed to pay the dues by post-dated cheque pending the review.

The railway agreed to consider the dues paid by post-dated cheque as being paid up to date and to restore the yardmen to preference of assignment.

Withdrawal of preference of an assignment, according to the company's contract with the union, was the issue that sparked the walkout last Wednesday, when the 54 yardmen at the Belleville terminal booked sick.

Yardmen in Capreol and Ottawa followed suit, but returned to work after one day, pending action by yardmen at the decisive Montreal terminal.

Lack of communication was blamed by men here for the lack of firm support for the issue by Montreal terminal yardmen.

Special security patrols, placed on tracks here following three incidents of sabotage in the Belleville area early last Thursday morning, shortly after the yardmen agreed to go back to work about 2:15 p.m. Saturday

George Van de Water, acting general manager of the Rideau Area said this morning that in the absence of eye - witnesses to the incidents, he doubted that responsibility for the sabotage would ever be determined.

Elzevir Taxes Jump

TWEED — The 1970 mill rate for Elzevir Township set as a recent meeting of Elzevir Township Council, has shown an average increase of 29 mills.

The rate jumped from 85 mills for residential ratepayers in 1969 to 108 mills this year. The commercial and industrial rate rose to 122.1 mills, an increase of 29.1 mills over 1969's rate of 93 mills.

Township clerk - treasurer Lloyd Price, told The Intelligencer that the increase was due to the fact the township did not receive a Dev...ings School District grant. The district has been ...ed by the Ontario Government.

The township received 19 mills of money from the surplus. Due ... for last year's low mill rate.

This y... er, because the district has been closed, the township did not receive more money, the result being an increase in the mill rate.

The due date for taxes has been officially set in Elzevir at Sept. 1 Penalty for late payment will be one per cent of the taxable amount per month of tardiness.

Youthful Mischief

Much as the recreational picture in Belleville has improved there remain gaps, not so much in the facilities but rather in getting the young people interested in their usage.

Not long ago for example we drew attention to street hockey games and the fact that participants may act as if they are doing the passing motorist a favor as they saunter out of his path.

There is another aspect of this problem which bears mentioning — and that is youthful mischievousness which sometimes escalates into damage to other people's property, if not acts of outright vandalism. We received a call the other day from a woman on the west hill complaining of youngsters who invaded her property and tore up a portion of her carefully-tended flower garden. When challenged, the kids said they had just been playing tag.

Well, playing tag is all very well, but it should not be on other people's property and it should not involve damage to the property. Parents should know where their youngsters go after school hours — and they should also teach them to respect the rights and property of others.

The Arts

There was a time when Art as a subject involved only drawing and painting. Today it includes many disciplines, like photography, television, crafts, drama and a host of other creative endeavors.

Art moreover is losing is isolationist status, coming out of its shell as the public becomes more conscious of its value in the educational process. As J. M. Porter, president of the Sheridan College of Applied Arts and Technology, put it the other day, education and the arts are becoming increasingly linked in contemporary thought.

In Belleville for the Quinte Arts Council's annual meeting Mr. Porter called for the support of businessmen and industrialists, a reminder of the fact that in many parts of the world such support has proved vital to propagation of the arts and of mutual benefit to all concerned.

The first dawning of creative endeavor in children, as they work in kindergarten with crayons and cutouts is indicative of the importance of developing these talents. Their value to psychologists in assessing intellectual activity is also well established. No longer then can the arts be relegated to a secondary status; rather they are needed as the key factor in turning toward the centre of education and away from the eriphery. In short they are a vital adjunct of learning, of personal fulfillment and of mental health.

Try Walking

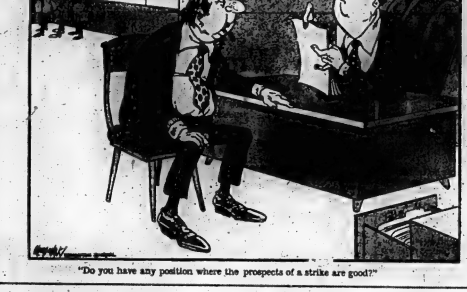
Those young people slouching lackadaisically at the side of the road hitching their way to Trenton, Tweed, Picton or wherever — there is really nothing wrong with them that a good walk would not cure.

They seem more numerous this year and while it is admittedly difficult for the kids to get from A to B without a car or more frequent bus schedules, a lot of them are out for the proverbial — something-for-nothing anyway. Quite apart from that their generally insipid and disinterested appearance and the occasional grimace when one drives past — as if a free ride were their divine right — discourages even the motorist with room to spare in his car.

As for walking, some observations of South African-Born Dr. W. Harding le Riche are significant. He is from the University of Toronto, told a recent symposium at the city's rehabilitation centre that this is an age of self-induced disease when people are overdoctored, over pilled, and over-fed.

Advocating the simple life, with lots of exercise, he said that when he lived in South Africa many small African children walked five miles to school and five miles back, without breakfast. While he was not recommending such a spartan routine, tests showed they were "in far better physical shape than the rich white kid taken to school by motor."



Beyond this little need be said. Fresh air and exercise as ever are the best means of keeping fit.

Swift Retort

Prime Minister Trudeau is often stilted in his prepared speeches — but in casual conversation and extemporaneous talk he can be a man of sharp wit and ready response. Like that occasion in British Columbia recently when he bumped into three hippies on a lonely trail near Tofino. Asked by one of the trio when he was going to legalize marijuana, the Prime Minister marvelled at the question and countered with one of his own: "Do you mean you need grass to get high in this magnificent area?" And that was that!

Susanna Moodie's Complex Personality

Ottawa Journal

To many of us the name Susanna Moodie brings back the discovery and thrill we got from Alan Sullivan's "Roughing It in the Bush" and other great and perhaps near-classic accounts of her life as a young woman who emigrated from England in 1832 to Upper Canada where she and her husband settled on a "farm" — if rocks and trees and dreary labor can be so called.

The name comes back now because Margaret Atwood, already a winner of a Governor-General's Award for poetry (''The Circle Game''), has done a small book or a long poem called "The Journals of Susanna Moodie" (Oxford University Press). It is in effect a poet's distillation of the journals, not pretending always to be accurate or precisely related; her own thoughts have the "detached themselves," writes Margaret Atwood. Reading them is an eerie experience.

We speak of the book here not to review the poems but to present a portion of what Margaret Atwood calls an "Afterword". It seems to us to be a "message" of great sensitivity and challenge.

"If the national mental illness of the United States is paranoia, that of Canada is paranoid schizophrenia. Mrs. Moodie is divided down the middle: she praises the Canadian landscape but accuses it of destroying her; she dislikes the people already in Canada but finds in people her only refuge from the land itself; she preaches progress and the march of civilization while brooding elegiacally upon the destruction of the wilderness; she delivers optimistic sermons while showing herself to be fascinated with deaths, murders, the criminals in Kingston Penitentiary and the incurably insane in the Toronto lunatic asylum. She claims to be an ardent Canadian patriot while all the time she is standing back from the country and criticizing it as though she were a detached observer, a stranger. Perhaps that is the way we still live. We are all immigrants to this place even if we were born here: the country is too big for anyone to inhabit completely, and in the parts unknown to us we move in fear, exiles and invaders. This country is a thing that must be chosen — it is so easy to leave — and if we do choose it we are still choosing a violent duality."

Expulsion From Olympics Shadow Over Performances In Non-White Athletics

Johannesburg Star

The Non-White Games, which ended in Soweto recently, made only the tiniest dent in the South African record book — a contrast with White athletic championships held earlier this year.

No all - race South African records were broken. There was only one non-White record — G. Ndlovu's 45-ft. 10-in. throw in the shot-put.

Asked how he accounted for the apparently poor performances by the non-White athletes, Mr. Frank Braun, president of the South African Olympic and National Games Association, said he did not agree the performances were poor.

He argued that they were fairly good if allowance was made for three factors: the cold weather, the lack of incentive now South Africa has been expelled from the Olympic Games and the shortage of expert coaching in the field events.

If an all-race team were to be selected for the Olympic Games, would any non-White athletes make the team?

Mr. Braun thought so. He estimated at least two athletes and three cyclists would have a chance and that three boxers would be certain of selection.

Did the performances point in any way to a need for improved and increased facilities for non-White athletes?

"They have better facilities, virtually, than we have. You know, our facilities are in private clubs. Facilities are not supplied for the Whites by the authorities. That's what everybody forgets."

Mr. Braun felt that the enthusiasm of the non-White athletes and their superb sportsmanship augured well.

Mr. Jan Barnard, national athletics organizer for the Sports Foundation and a former Springbok marathon, cross-country and track runner, was similarly not perturbed by the absence of spectacular performances.

"The standard of records in the non-White running events are not bad at all. They've reached the same stage as us — when a record goes, it's got to be a top-class performance."

In comparing, say, times at the Non - White Games with those of the White South African championships one had to remember the different tracks used for the two events.

Mr. Barnard said he did not know what the Soweto Stadium track was like compared with the Pilditch Stadium track in Pretoria, but comparisons in performances should not be made solely at the level of time and distance.

Mr. Barnard conceded that there was a need for coaching in the field events, where non-White performances, because of lack of technique, were poor.

Dundurn Castle's Appeal

Hamilton Spectator

Alderman Bethune was right the other night in challenging Dundurn Castle's advertising budget increase — from $15,000 to $17,000 — but wrong in opposing it on the grounds that the castle loses money. Any civic spending should be justified and, in Dundurn's case, it has been.

As Controller MacDonald explained Dundurn Castle probably is Hamilton's biggest tourist magnet. Visitors who come to see the castle stay to see the city's other attractions and thousands of them pump money into the Hamilton economy.

Tourist spending in city stores, restaurants, hotels and taverns never registers on Dundurn Castle's books but it surfaces in business taxes, employment and trade that, directly or indirectly benefits every taxpayer.

And if Dundurn brings people to Hamilton — as it certainly does — then council is wise in advertising the castle far and wide.

It's also worth talking about locally. Hamiltonians who haven't yet explored the castle ought to take a look inside and see what all those tourists find so fascinating.

Relations Strained

Swedish Premier Got Cold Shoulder in U. S.

Christian Science Monitor

No red carpet was laid down for Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme on his recent visit to Washington. If he had hoped to go to the White House he was not invited. The most he was given was a four-hour interview with Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Why this coolness?

Relations between the two countries have been strained for some time. There are a number of reasons. Leaders of the left-wing spoken critic of the American role in Vietnam (and now Cambodia). It shelters many American military deserters. It has recognized North Vietnam and provided to give food aid. Stockholm in reconciliation acted as the war in Vietnam. And there have been anti-American demonstrations by radical leftists almost every time Swedish States Ambassador in Stockholm, the distinguished black American Jerome H. Holland.

Mr. Palme himself has vigorously disavowed the ugly incidents involving Mr. Holland. Surprisingly Sweden has a racial problem. It is now battling from the recent arrival in the country of 100,000 foreign workers apparently determined to make it undrinkable and unswimmable, and unlovable save from a distance!

A good back-reader returns, not as he came. It can be Westport and Perth instead of Smiths Falls, North Gower instead of Richmond. A knowing backreader does not leave this to luck. Loading up two or three gallons every so often opens easy communication with people, enabling one to stroll a block or two to buy still another packet of cigarettes and see what's on the counter and on the mind of that old heart of Canada — the region's village store.

And so the day passes — and despite all of that driving you drained them. The places you have been and the people you have passed the time of day with have reminded you about living.

United States forces landed in Cuba 72 years ago today — in 1898 — after the sinking of the Maine in Havana harbor and consequent declaration of war on Spain. There had been bloody civil war in the island for 30 years and, while the inhabitants had made some gains (slavery was abolished in 1886), Spain had again suspended constitutional guarantees in 1895. After the short war, the United States took over all Spain's Pacific and Caribbean colonies and withdrew from Cuba in 1902, retaining the right of intervention.

around an experienced nucleus of four. These are former prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 66, foreign and Commonwealth secretary; Iain Macleod, 56, chancellor of the Exchequer; Deputy Party Leader Reginald Maudling, 53, home secretary dealing with the touchy law-and-order problem, and William Whitelaw, 51, former Opposition chief whip who will be leader of the Commons in charge of getting the legislative program through the House.

Though not designated as deputy prime minister—there is no such office—Maudling will be No. 2 man in the government and will fill in as cabinet chairman when Heath is away. His concerns include the delicate question of immigration, racial issues and damping down the Northern Ireland troubles.

Heath who wasted no time setting up his ministry after his upset victory over the seemingly impregnable socialists in Thursday's voting, chose mostly colleagues with ministerial experience in former Tory governments.

Carl D. Brant School Trustee

Carl D. Brant, a councillor of the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte Band of the Tyendinaga Reserve, will become the first Indian trustee on the Hastings county board of education.

His appointment was recommended by the band council at its June 17 meeting.

The county board had decided unanimously two days earlier to appoint an Indian to represent the 150 pupils from the reserve now being educated in Belleville elementary and secondary schools.

Under the terms of the provincial legislation governing appointment of an Indian trustee he will have "all the powers and duties of a member of the boards as though he were eligible and duly elected as a member of the boards."

As well as being a band councillor, Mr. Brant is council representative on the reserve's five - member school committee which supervises operation of the elementary schools at Tyendinaga.

He is also a director of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians.

This morning, board chairman James Clarke said he welcomed the announcement of Mr. Brant as Indian trustee.

"We look forward to his joining us at our next meeting, June 29," he said.

of the flow and distribution of cocaine in the United States and 30 per cent of the heroin movement. They said the Miami-based ring obtained the heroin from the Middle East and the cocaine from Latin America.

About 33 pounds of cocaine and heroin—which Mitchell said is valued at $250,000 on the wholesale level and worth at least 10 times that in prices charged addicts—plus 14 weapons, 23 cars and about $30,000 in cash were seized during simultaneous raids Saturday night and Sunday.

The force of more than 250 agents of the justice department's bureau of narcotics made arrests in Hartford, Conn., Washington, Los Angeles, San Juan, Puerto Rico, Newark, Pittsburgh, and Las Vegas. Mitchell said none of those arrested is known as a member of the Mafia.

Intercultural Education Program Set Up

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadians as a whole are not aware of "what it must be like to be an Indian or a newly arrived Italian kid in an all-white Canadian school," says David Wangler of the University of Alberta's intercultural education program.

"There are no great amounts of money expended, no special programs for teachers, and little research being done into the problem."

Dr. Wangler gives these reasons for the intercultural education program on the Alberta campus. He's an assistant professor in the education department and co-ordinator of the intercultural program.

The program is a "sort of offshoot" of the education department, but it offers no special credits. Students who sign up for it must be registered in the department of education, but also work in other required courses and spend two summers in intercultural field work.

They are required to take special courses, including the study of other cultures and other languages, and a course on teaching English when it is a second language.

"But there's no special credit for the intercultural program. At the end of the year, all the students get is a letter from the dean."

Dr. Wangler said the letter is getting to be known in government departments of education and Indian affairs, however, and so it helps some graduates in job-hunting.

"Of course, it doesn't matter to a lot of them. They're idealists. They want to see improvements in relations with Indians, with peoples of other races."

But Dr. Wangler said he would like to see the course get more recognition, because a credit course and be offered to a lot more students.

"More students who are going into the educational field should take the same background these students are getting."

UCW MEETINGS

MARMORA — Some 30 members of the UCW of St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, registered for the guild and fellowship offered at the potluck supper held prior to the monthly meeting, June 8, in the church hall.

Following supper, the women moved to the common of the lounge where Mrs. J. Davidson and women from Dolcro unit took charge of the program for the evening.

Mrs. Davidson's opening thought was on the theme "Stewardship". Mrs. Charles Arhart led the Call to Worship assisted in the devotions.

It was explained "Stewardship is using the qualities of time, opportunity, talent and personality which God uniquely and individually entrusts to each of us: what we do after we say, I believe". Several capsule sermons were heard about the theme, each one pin-pointing the need for total involvement of those working for Christ in the church.

Another question asked was, "How high is my giving level? The tip level, give small change to God; the entertainment level, give when I go to church; the Bible level, give regularly and according to my ability." Mrs. Davidson reminded the group that each person has some gift or talent that can be used in God's service and that as stewards of Christ, we are obliged to use each to the best of our ability.

Mrs. Doug Vilneff chaired the brief business session. Reports, correspondence and short resumes from portfolio chairmen were heard. Final details of the UCW cookbook were attended to and it has now been sent to press. The committee was appointed re organization of the sale of these books, Mrs. Grant Airhart, Mrs. Eileen Bell and Mrs. Jamie Cole.

Members voted to accept the invitation of the Marmora Business Men's Association to have a booth at their sidewalk sale.

Executive members were asked to attend a meeting with the board of stewardship and Hi-C on Wednesday to discuss plans for a church succon sometime during the summer.

The next UCW monthly meeting will be held September 8, an ecumenical meeting of all church women, when the film "That All May Be One" will be shown.

Much More Economical To Make Own Clothes

NEW YORK (AP) — The best thing about making your own clothes is that it's cheaper. That's no small consideration these days.

What's more—if you're healthy and skinny enough—you can sew your own and experiment.

The fall patterns look great, but part of the trick is choosing the right color and fabric.

You can't beat black for day. One spunky group includes a round-necked small-waisted midi jumper over pants —red tunic and pants with dark red sleeveless midicoat.

Colors in the same family are combined in different fashion: dark orange suede skirt, brown and orange patterned sweater and shiny orange polka dot blouse.

The western feeling is still big: brown gaucho pants with sleeveless fake fur vest-hampster midiskirt and draw-string blouse.

Skinny fake fur have an evening magic, but they look hard to sew—as if they'd slink off from under the machine needle.

Ponchos, capes and triangular stoles aren't difficult, and they are romantic anytime—like the way matching an Oscar de la Renta zip dress.

Designer patterns are just part of Vogue-Butterick Patterns fall fashions shown Wednesday during the New York Couture Business Council Inc.'s National Press Week.

Trimming can do wonders. Trace a new bold plaid cape in white. Run glitter up the sides of wide satin evening pants by Yves St. Laurent. Make criss-cross hip belts from ribbons. Or sew them into little circles to wear high on the throat with wide-necked blouses.

Glitters and velvets share the spotlight in designer collections. Whip up a midcalf or patterned jaguar velveteen from the Crompton Richmond Co., Inc. Ribless corduroy is a winner, and Gayle Kirkpatrick uses it beautifully in the softest, fullest brown cape.

Black velvet is strong for evening. In prim jumpers and pants suits, it states the separates message loud and clear.

Legs will still show this fall —through skirt slits. Burlington has designed a perfect-fit line of panty-hose for 13-19 year olds, in colors like mad mushroom and grape popsicle.

Boots will go everywhere. A new line of stockings dyed in fall shoe colors will give women the boot look—without boots.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Meagher, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Marie, to Bobbi Gerald Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Johnston, also of Belleville. The marriage will take place Saturday, July 25, 1978, at 11 a.m. in Holy Rosary Church.

Guild Enjoys Picnic Luncheon

The weatherman was not co-operative but the picnic luncheon was planned last Wednesday by Christ Church ACW Guild, to be held at the country home of Mrs. J. M. Cousins at Marmora. However, stormy skies outwitted us, so a hastily arranged supper met in the parish hall for a bountiful luncheon and an interesting final meeting.

Special guest for the occasion included the rector, Canon R. B. Bell. Wright, Reverend David Bracewell and a number of the members' husbands.

Following luncheon the men enjoyed a social time together with some of the more energetic ones adding to the pile of soiled dishes.

Mrs. Fred Lazier, president was in charge of the business portion of the program and welcomed the large gathering.

MORE

Reports were given by the executive members and the various convenors, among them a most comprehensive one by Mrs. Livingston on the recent vestry council meeting. Members were brought up to date on the various activities in the church and in the diocese.

Mrs. Vesterfelt reported that new tea pots and kettles had been purchased for the kitchen and that new coffee pots were next on the list.

Mrs. Boyd, for the sent-a-meal project announced a healthy sum collected in May. Work of the stewardship committee has been completed and the parish records are now in an up-to-date condition, letter from the new Bishop of the diocese, Most Reverend J. S. Creeggan.

A vote of thanks was tendered president Mrs. Lazier for the competent way in which marathon had been conducted and it was announced that a new marathon would begin September 1. A few more coupled are needed to make up the required number and anyone interested should call Mrs. Lazier at 962-0638.

Reporting on the recent Blossom Tea and Sale, convenor Mrs. F. A. Beeby said that the event had been an outstanding success, both financially and socially and she thanked the many people who had contributed to making it such a happy occasion.

A large cheque will be forwarded to the church wardens and another to the headquarters of the A.C.W.

Rev. Hawkins, in his devotional talk, likened Crowe Lake, (where the picnic had been planned), to the Sea of Galilee and told a number of stories of events that had taken place on or near this Sea. These stories are as applicable in this modern age as one looks for the true meaning in them.

Only One Woman Chosen For Britain's New Cabinet

LONDON (AP) — The only woman in bachelor Edward Heath's new Conservative cabinet in Britain is a plump blonde lawyer known for her unruffled temperament and razor - edged mind.

Margaret Thatcher, 44, was chosen by the prime minister Saturday as his Minister of education and science. She piled 17 men into the cabinet.

Mrs. Thatcher, who dislikes her middle name, Hilda, is a graduate of Oxford University with a science degree.

In the last Conservative government of Sir Alec Douglas-Home six years ago, she was parliamentary undersecretary for the ministry of pensions and National Insurance.

Two years later, with the Conservatives in opposition, Heath appointed her to his shadow cabinet to watch economics affairs.

Mrs. Thatcher, who became a grandmother at the age of 29, kept rising in Heath's estimation and finally was appointed Conservative spokesman on education a year ago.

She has never courted publicity and keeps to herself in private life. In the House of Commons, she represents the Finchley district of Finchley, a Tory stronghold.

She is married to Denis Thatcher, a director of oil companies. They have twin children, a boy and a girl.

Sources of Quotations Desired

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: Could you please forward to me the sources of the following quotation:

(1) "That hate, how beautiful. If beauty had not made serving love beautiful then beauty's not."

(2) "Crowd eternity into an hour, or stretch an hour into eternity."

(3) "Where, beyond these voices, there is peace."

(4) "His place, in all the pomp that fills the circuit of the summer hills is that his grave is green." — Ruth.

Dear Ruth: We made an exhaustive search of all available quotation books and encyclopedias, found none that you asked for, but these:

Readers, do any of these poetic lines ring a bell?

• • •

Dear Doris: I have never danced, and would like to learn. I just won't go to a dance because I'm scared that people will laugh.

The girls are very encouraging with modern dancing. They just say move with the music; is that all there is to it? — Flat Feet.

Dear All Feet: Almost all. You do need to be able to pick out the rhythm of the music, and move gracefully with it. But this comes with practice.

In a music shop you will find records complete with instructions about the modern dance steps. I'll send you the names of some books about it.

Invite a couple of girls over to bounce around with you for a night or two and you won't be nearly so scared when you get on a dance floor.

Dear Doris: My daughter (22), has asked that I accompany her on her vacation to Trinidad. Neither of us has ever been out of the country, nor have I been anywhere without my husband.

I must admit the thought of a holiday like that does appeal to me. But can you wear? What will we need to take with us? Would it be safer to have the agency arrange all travel, hotel and sightseeing for us? — Flying High.

Dear Flying: My own travel agent has supplied me with a sheet of travel tips; and I will also send you my Air Canada booklet, "How Women Who're Going Places."

When you are going to a fur - off place, travel agent can prevent a lot of headaches and will help you make the most of your visit. In Trinidad, you will need cool things, sportswear, drip dry lingerie, comfortable shoes. It is a good rule to take more money and fewer clothes than you thought you were going to need.

Go prepared to find and enjoy strange people, strange customs, and everything different from home. This is why it's fun.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large stamped, self- addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.)

Friendship Endangered With Labor Dispute

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll call her Mrs. A. We grew up in the same town — went to school together, were good friends. When we married we went our separate ways but kept in touch.

ANN LANDERS

Three years ago we moved to the city, bought the same model house and her husband had settled. They helped me find a home in their neighborhood. Our babies were born the same month. We helped each other out by sitting for one another in emergencies.

Problem: Mrs. A's husband is a factory employee. My husband is in management. The factory workers went on strike. Last week My husband had to cross the picket line to go to work. The union men call people who cross picket lines "scabs." I felt sorry about this but there was nothing I could do.

That same week I sent an invitation to their little girl to come to our daughter's birthday party. (Three years old.) The invitation was returned with the following message scrawled across it.:

I am deeply hurt. My husband feels terrible. Should I remain silent and let a lovely friendship die? We need your balanced counsel. — STRUCK DOWN.

DEAR S.D.: Do nothing. Any move to restore the friendship should be made by them, not you. During labor disputes, nerves become frayed and tensions run high. Personal vindictiveness has no place in the ugly mood between labor and management should not sink to the level of 3-year-olds. Let's hope that when the dust settles your friends will see that they behaved foolishly and give you a call.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since I am only a husband, a father, and the sole support of this family, I realize I am not entitled to much consideration. My job is to pay the bills, provide transportation and keep my mouth shut.

I don't ask for many privileges, Ann. All I want is a little consideration. Is it asking too much to expect the newspaper to be in readable condition after everyone else has finished with it?

Tonight there was a large hole in the part where your column should have been. My daughter had ripped it out to mail to her boyfriend in the service. When I looked for the stock market reports, I found another hole. My wife had torn out a recipe for a chocolate sponge cake which happened to be on the opposite page. When I turned to the crossword puzzle, it was half worked. My son had been there first. Then I looked for the sports page and was bemused that it was already on the bottom of the bird cage. Being only human, I blew my top. They all looked at me as if I had lost my mind. Please tell me, Ann Landers. What is the solution to my problems? — SECOND CLASS CITIZEN.

• • •

DEAR SEC: The solution is simple. Stop on your way home and buy a paper for yourself. It's cheaper than apoplexy.

• • •

Confidential to CAN'T FACE IT: I would not presume to answer your question. Face-lifting has been extremely satisfactory for some and disastrous for others. It depends on your tissue, your bone structure, your age, the skill of the doctor and what you hope to achieve. The best way to select a plastic surgeon is by talking to some of his patients and viewing the results for yourself.

FREE METHODIST WMS

MARMORA — Annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Free Methodist Church of Marmora and District was held in the church auditorium. Theme song for the new conference year "The Spacious Firmament on High" opened the meeting.

A reading by Mrs. Ritchie Wells seemed appropriate for the occasion of the election of officers.

The nominating committee which had met at the home of Mrs. Harry Mavers, presented the new slate of officers for the coming year as follows: president, Mrs. Ritchie Wells; 1st vice-president and director of programming, Mrs. Alex McFall; 2nd vice-president and director of Outreach, new minister's wife (to be named); recording and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harry Mavers; treasurer, Mrs. Everett Derry; director of mission education and "Missionary Tidings", Mrs. Carl Bird; director of stewardship, Mrs. Everett Barrons; J&S superintendent, Mrs. Stewart Hardy; "penny-a-day" director, Mrs. Gladys Jones. Mrs. Hardy is the official conference delegate and Mrs. Ritchie Wells, reserve delegate.

Mrs. Ron Brown gave an interesting talk on the re-painting of the mission study book, and account was taken of the number of Christian books read by members of the WMS.

Vice-president, Mrs. McFaul, gave a resume of one of the lessons on the Omega plan being studied by the Free Methodist youth.

The next meeting the women gathered in the parsonage, where the pastor's wife, Mrs. W. A. McMillan, served refreshments.

When you want to stuff pork chops, you can buy the rib variety about one inch thick; have the butchers cut a pocket in each chop.

New Underwear Fashions More Like Beachwear

EDMONTON (CP) — "That's underwear?" asked the man as the model posed for the camera.

The newest line of bikini bras and panties might pass for brief swimsuits, mainly because the traditional white, pinks and blues are out.

Lipstick red, sun gold, mossy green and plum purple are in as high-fashion colors make the scene. In some lines, the co-ordinated sets come in softer shades such as butter yellow, apple green or mild mauve.

And the bikini brief's come in patterns or zig-zag stripes, with navy and red on champagne or mint green on hot pink.

The most popular shades for bras right now are the nude colors—champagne, beige, summer tan—because they can be worn under sheer summer dresses and see-through blouses.

"But it's a bikini world in the lingerie business right now," said Robert Young, head buyer for Woodward's stores in northern Alberta. "The hottest-selling item in the bikini brief to be worn with panty-hose."

"The whole lingerie look is changing," said Jack Greenberg, president of the Canadian Lingerie and Underwear Manufacturers' Association. Mr. Greenberg, who also is president of Molyclaire of Montreal, was in Edmonton to show the newest in lingerie fashions to buyers in Western Canada.

His new line in panties is called the Moly-kini. These are made of a new, knitted stretch fabric created in Spain, and are completely full-fashioned, with no seams.

But the bras, also of the stretch fabric, are definitely only for the young, firm figure. More amply endowed women will have to look for lines with more support.

"The fabrics for lingerie are better," Mr., Greenberg said. "They'll give clean and exciting lines under the clothes of the 70s."

The new Spanish fabric is only one of many that are coming this fall. Almost all are stretch, so that one size fits everyone. Most are also anti-static, so that dresses will have that perfect drape.

Many of the new slips have a stretch lace camisole top to give the molded body lines that are predicted for fall fashions.

And the manufacturers are showing mid-length slips, another indication that the longer look is definite for fall.

Quick Chick Casserole Recipe

By MARY HOOKE

Today's column is for those quick chicken cook on the fly.

I made two casseroles at once and cooked and served one and from the other.

You will notice that by four weeks including the present one I have given you four chicken recipes. The reason is obvious: low cost and popular flavor. Readers constantly remind me to keep the chicken recipes coming. Add shoe commands to the requests from working girls for meals prepared in advance and I think this column will appeal to a large section of our audience.

QUICK CHICK CASSEROLE
(One is serve for current meal; one is freeze; each will serve three)

3 cups medium egg noodles (measured in 3-cup measuring cup but not packed)
6 cups boiling water
2 tbsp. chicken bouillon cubes
2 cups fresh or frozen mixed vegetables (about ¾ of 2-lb. 12 oz. pkg.)
1 tsp. salt — divided (see below)
1 single chicken breasts (boned-out if desired)
1 cup shredded Gouda cheese (optional)
1 cup buttered crumbs

Boil noodles in water about 15 min.; then drain but reserve 3 cups of the water. In these 3 cups hot liquid dissolve the chicken bouillon cubes.

Divide the noodles equally into medium casseroles and pour half of the broth over each. Divide the fresh frozen mixed vegetables over both in an even layer. Sprinkle each with ½ tsp. salt. Cover each with three chicken breasts, skin side up. Divide cheese over each and finish each off with crumbs. Cool one and cover and freeze wrap and freeze. Cover and bake the other at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ hrs. uncovering during last 15 min. to brown top until golden.

NOTE: Test the chicken breasts with a skewer to be sure they are cooked through before they are removed from oven for this is a rather deep dish for the heat to penetrate to the meat. In the same breath I must caution you not to overbake it.

NOTE: To cook frozen casserole you will have to bake it 2½ hrs. at least, if it goes into the oven frozen.

NOTE: Those of you who have automatically controlled ovens could put the frozen casserole in the oven when you leave the house in the morning and set the switch to turn on at 4 p.m. at 325 deg. Fahr. to have dipper at about 6 p.m.

Points for Parents

By MARY HEYDON

Mother: "If you come out here again, I'm going to spank you. Lie down and be quiet and you'll go to sleep. You need a nap every day and I have to get the house cleaned up."

Child: "I want to get up."

A child may outgrow the need for sleeping in the daytime at 3 or 4 years, but she still needs a lull in her physical activities and so does her mother. Put the emphasis on resting and being quiet, not on sleep.

Mother: "You don't have to go to sleep, but this is rest time and we'll both lie down in our beds and be very quiet for awhile. You may look at your books or play with your dolly on the bed. I'll come in when it's time to get up."

Boy, 12, Helps Hijack Plane Carrying Prince

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters) — Iraq returned a hijacked Iranian jetliner, whose passengers included the Shah of Iran's nephew, after granting political asylum Sunday to three youths who seized the plane.

Three Iranian youths, one of them only about 12 years old, hijacked the rear-engined Boeing 727 earlier Sunday. They were armed with pistols and bottles filled with gasoline, one of the passengers said on returning here.

The Boeing, with 91 passengers aboard, was seized about noon Sunday as it flew between Tehran and Abadan.

Arthur Kemp, an Australian passenger, said the three hijackers entered the pilot's cabin from the economy class section of the aircraft.

Two of them, aged about 19 or 20, were armed with pistols.

The 12-year-old boy was carrying two bottles of gas which he sprayed all over the cabin.

The three men threatened to set the plane on fire if the pilot did not change course immediately for Baghdad.

Russia Says Jews Foiled in Hijacking

MOSCOW (CP) — Twelve persons, including some Jews seeking to emigrate to Israel, attempted to hijack a Soviet airliner in Leningrad last week but failed and were placed under arrest, informants reported Sunday.

It marked the first known attempt at plane hijacking in the Soviet Union, and Moscow sources said the incident set off a wave of searches and several arrests of Jews in Moscow, Leningrad and Riga.

The hijack attempt was confirmed by a report in the newspaper Leningradskaya Pravda. Its entire account said: "On May 15, a group of criminals trying to seize a scheduled plane was detained. An investigation is being conducted."

Jewish informants said 12 persons were detained at Leningrad's Smolny Airport before they actually boarded the plane.

Moscow sources said the would-be hijackers included Jews who had unsuccessfully sought permission to emigrate to Israel and non-Jewish persons trying to flee to the West.

Check Shows Time Report Accurate

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau maintained in the Commons last week that Time magazine's cover story on the LaDain commission report on non-medical drug use contained "a great many false words."

But a comparison shows that, the comprehensive Time story, published five days before the report was tabled in the Commons Friday, contains a summary of the commission's major recommendations and six accurate quotes from the body of the report.

All the quotes are from the report's sixth chapter, where the recommendations also are located.

One key LaDain recommendation was that no one should go to jail for simple possession of any drug — marijuana, LSD, opium or heroin. Time either missed or ignored the full import of the proposal, saying only that the commission proposed fines rather than jail terms for possession of marijuana and hashish.

While Time relied heavily on the report's key sixth chapter, it apparently had a good grasp of whole body of the report, a check of the Time story against the report indicates.

Boy Shot in Head

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Police continued their investigation today into the fatal shooting of a Negro boy which touched off firebombing and brick-throwing on Pittsburgh's northside.

The homicide division said no arrests had been made in the slaying of Ernest K. Caldwell, 12, shot in the head as he played in a vacant lot.

Sukarno Dies Sunday

JAKARTA (AP) — The body of Sukarno, Indonesia's founder and first president who spent the final years of his life in isolated house arrest, was flown today to his birthplace in East Java for a state funeral.

An estimated 10,000 Indonesians, many of them weeping after an all-night vigil, lined the 12½ miles from Sukarno's mansion on the outskirts of Jakarta to Halim air force base.

Another 20,000 persons swarmed around the base for a last glimpse of the wooden casket containing the remains of the man they knew as Bung Karno, Brother Karno, whose spell-binding oratory cemented their archipelago into a nation and led the fight that brought them independence from the Dutch.

A police band played the national anthem as the onlookers climbed into trees, clambered over roofs, jammed upper-story windows and pressed close to the plane that was to carry Sukarno's body to the final rites in Blitar.

"I am satisfied," an aged Javanese woman sobbed gently. "I have touched the coffin."

Sukarno died Sunday at 69, after years of kidney trouble and other ailments had left him a crippled, voiceless shell of the leader who for more than 19 years ruled as a virtual dictator.

Wilson Faces Bitter Critics Inside Party

LONDON (CP) — A humiliated Harold Wilson, expelled from power in one of the century's biggest election upsets, is facing some harsh criticism from within his defeated Labor party as he starts the job of reviving that battered organization's morale.

But despite Labor's history of bitter internal dissensions during periods in opposition, Wilson's position as party leader seemed secure, at least for the moment, in the absence of any plausible successor.

Already the ex-prime minister and members of his former cabinet are preparing to settle into what amounts to a new era for their party after almost six years in control in Britain.

Yet even in the short time since Thursday's balloting, events have indicated that Labor over the next few years will be involved in a thorough overhaul of both its ideology and party machinery.

"No leader of the Labor party should ever again be allowed to build up the kind of personal power that Mr. Wilson has had," insisted Bernard Crick, a professor of politics at Sheffield University, in one of the post-election blasts aimed at the former prime minister.

But political observers suggest that any jockeying among Labor's top personalities will show in competition for the post of deputy leader of the parliamentary party—a job previously performed by defeated MP George Brown—rather than efforts to unseat Wilson himself.

Richard Crossman, social services minister in the Wilson cabinet, believes that Labor in defeat is desperately in need of fresh ideas.

At 62, he is taking over as editor of the left-wing New Statesman, aiming to put that weekly into the forefront of Labor's ideological housecleaning while also seeking to put across the lessons learned by the party in its recent period of power.

Candidates for Brown's old post as deputy leader may include James Callaghan, Roy Jenkins and Denis Healey.

Student Revolt Brings Ecuador Dictatorship

QUITO (AP) — President Jose Velasco Ibarra of Ecuador took dictatorial powers Sunday night after a week of street fighting between students of Quito's Central University and police. Some fighting was reported on the campus early today, and shooting could be heard there through the night.

The official reason for the takeover was an imminent Supreme Court ruling declaring presidential tax decrees unconstitutional. But observers believed the real reason was the student "rebellion" against the government.

Velasco Ibarra's assumption of dictatorial powers was said to have the full support of the military, and it was believed the real strongman in the new dictatorial regime is the president's nephew, Defence Minister Jorge Acosta Velasco.

The army launched a roundup of leftist leaders, and paratroops occupied the college campuses throughout the country at 5:00 P.M., five of the leftist leaders ordered arrested was Vice-President Jorse Zavala Baquerizo, whose whereabouts were not known.

Among those arrested was Manuel Aguirre, the rector of the Central University. Two days ago, Aguirre led 15,000 students in a protest meeting at the university following the terrorist bombing of the university printing shop. They maintained that paratroops were responsible.

Velasco Ibarra was elected to a four-year term in 1968. He had been president four times before but had completed only one of those terms. He returned from exile in 1968 to campaign for his fifth term.

Two weeks ago, the president issued four economic decrees levying new taxes. He learned during the weekend that the Supreme Court was preparing to rule the decrees unconstitutional on the ground that only Congress could levy taxes.

Sunday night the president resigned, saying in view of the impending court decree he did not wish to continue in office. But the High Command refused to accept the resignation and instead urged him to take full powers.

Smooth Sailing on Choppy Course Brings Barnes Family Albacore Win

by
Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Choppy water and a smoothflowing family life is Donald Barnes' winning combination.

The 43 - year - old Burlington businessman got the rough weather he hoped for and used an all - family crew to win the 1979 North American Albacore Racing Championships Sunday.

Barnes' two worst finishes in the seven - race Bay of Quinte series were a seventh and eighth, in Sunday's final two heats competed under such calm conditions the eight - mile course was drastically shortened.

"I was hoping for that heavy going," Barnes beamed following Saturday's three races in which he breezed to a pair of plus two-minute wins over the 44-boat field.

In all, the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club entry won three of the seven - race series, including one Friday in which a dozen of the 15-foot craft capsized in a hasty Bay gale.

Barnes also recorded second and third - place finishes in the three - day program, which provided the field with a sampling of every kind of sailing weather. Friday's big blow forced the postponement of one of three scheduled races until Sunday, when entries were treated to the first under-sunshine competition.

Saturday's "in - between" conditions, Barnes piled up an insurmountable edge in the point standings, which award ¾ of a point for a win, two for second, three for third, etc. Lowest total points - win, with competitors being scored on their best six of the seven races.

Barnes had accumulated an incredible 7½ points after the first five races, and literally coasted home with a 14½ - point winning total after Sunday's final two abbreviated heats.

An eighteenth-place finish in Friday's opening race and a tenth Saturday morning left Peterborough's Tony Griffin out of Barnes' calibre. Griffin sailed better as the weather mellowed, but even his 3-2-3-4 finish in the last four races couldn't dip his total below 24.

Failure to finish one of Saturday's races was costly to Geoffrey Revett, one of a handful of United States entries in the field. The Washington, DC sailor who won last year's Canadian Albacore race regatta, had started with two seconds and a first, but had to count 7-6-9 for his other three finishes.

Defending North American champion Dan Owen was another fair - weather sailer. "I just don't like this heavy wind," he complained after a 17th - place finish in Saturday's fifth race that put him out of the running. The Royal Canadian Yacht Club member was involved in a spate of protests that wrote out of Saturday's heavy-going. He finished eighth overall with a 58-point total.

Winner Barnes admitted he much prefers the latter grade if the heavy weather he had banked on hadn't materialized.

Barnes was one of the few skippers who exercised his pre-regatta option to go with a two - man crew, instead of the more popular single-crewformat.

"That bit of extra weight is a big help. I was really hoping the wind wouldn't go down. In light winds, we'd be at sort of a disadvantage."

Barnes competed with 14-year-old daughter Susan and Dpt. Jr., 13, as crew during the Friday and Saturday racing, then replaced Susan with wife Mary for Sunday's final two heats.

Strategy?

"No," he chuckled, "we just wanted everyone to have a chance to sail. The family decided beforehand that each would get into at least two races."

There was more than just togetherness behind Barnes' decision, however. Mrs. Barnes had crewed with her husband for many of the 25 years he has been racing dinghies, and Susan and Don Jr. are both three - year veteran racers who graduate from junior sailing as skippers this year.

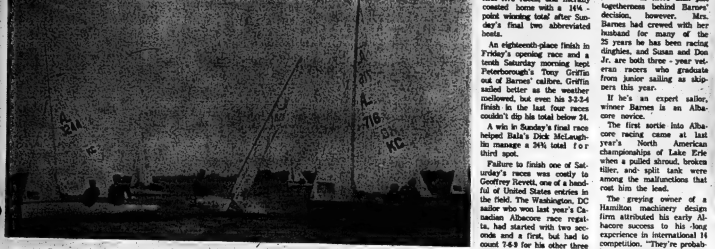
The first sortie into Albacore racing came at last year's North American championships of Lake Erie when a pulled shroud, broken tiller, and- split tank were among the malfunctions that rost him the lead.



The greying owner of a Hamilton machinery design firm attributed his early Albacore success to his -long experience in international 14 competition. "They're probably more difficult to handle than Albacores," he added modestly.

North American Albacore racing champion Donald Barnes and crew-member Don Jr., prepare mast for trip home to Hamilton after taking top honors over 43 other entries in the three-day regatta held in the Bay of Quinte.

Filling the Gap

Keen competition in the North American Albacore Racing Championships often produced this type of tight squeeze in the Bay of Quinte over the weekend. Here a late-comer to a marker buoy tried to sneak in between Oakville's Donald Long and Muskoka's Dick McLaughlin. In all, 44 boats, including several United States entries, contested the seven-race series.

Yacht Club Starts Something

The North American Albacore Racing championships weren't so much a competition as a demonstration, as far as the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club executive is concerned.

Club directors hoped the event, which drew 44 of the 15 - foot dinghy - type boats to the Bay of Quinte course site, would capture the imagination of local sailing enthusiasts looking for an inexpensive, yet highly competitive pastime.

"You couldn't possibly sink more than $1,500 into any of these boats here," director Ray Day gestured at the Yacht Club lawn, where the entries were hauled up nightly during the three-day racing program.

"We'd like to see local people get interested in one type of boat and form the basis of some real good competition here.

"As it stands now, we've got all different kinds of sailboats, with the most expensive ones usually winning our club races.

"Albacores could be the answer."

Lightning Hits Kinsmen Twice

Seven proved to be anything, but a lucky number, for the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors as they dropped a pair of Eastern Ontario Baseball Association decisions, 7-6 on the weekend.

The Kinsmen lost a real heartbreaker Sunday, scoring once in the final inning and filling the bases against Kendal, only to see three consecutive men set down on strikes.

A single by Brian Coughlin and Dale Duvall's two-base hit accounted for one Belleville run in the ninth. Walks to Glenn Carleton and Doug Geen loaded the bases with none out before Reid got the final three outs for Kendal.

Terry McTaggert started for the Juniors pitching four innings of no-hit ball before the winners reached him for six hits. Garnie Adams took over and fired two-hit ball for the remainder of the game. They walked one batter and struck out four.

West and Reid survived 14 hits on the winners' mound, while walking three and fanning eight.

Terry Meagher was the big gun for Belleville slamming three singles. Rick Meagher followed with a double and single and Brian Coughlin and Kevin Allen each added a pair of singles.

Oshawa came through with four runs in the final two innings to wipe out a 6-2 Belleville lead and force the contest into extra / innings. They tallied the winner in the bottom of the tenth.

After Oshawa had opened the scoring, Brian Coughlin gave Belleville the lead with a two-run homer in the fourth inning. A two-run double by Kevin Allen was another key blow, as the Kinsmen built their early lead.

Garnie Adams went the distance for the Juniors, allowing 14 hits, fanning 11 and walking three batters.

Randy Rogers picked up the win in relief of Vahemeskyn. They gave up 11 hits and two walks, while getting seven men on strikes.

Brian Coughlin banged out a homer and single for the Kinsmen with Kevin Allen doubling and singling. Randy Burke and Glenn Carleton each had doubles, while Rick Meagher, Craig Rump, Warren Hay, Bob Luffman and Dale Duvall were good for singles.

Wins In Breeze

Winning three of the seven-race series helped the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club's Donald Barnes new top the 1979 North American Albacore championships.

The race point system awarded ¾ of a point for a win, two for a second, three for a third, etc., with a competitor's best six races counting towards his official total.

Barnes' poorest finish was an eighth, and his other six races earned him a 14½ - point total, well below that of runner - up Tony Griffin of Peterborough.

The top 10 finishers:

1. Donald Barnes, Royal Hamilton Yacht Club — 14½.
2. Tony Griffin, Balsam Lake Sailing Club — 24.
3. Dick McLaughlin, Muskoka Lake Sailing Club — 34½.
4. Geoff Revett, Potomac River Sailing Club — 36½.
5. Jack Langrudd, Shadow Lake Sailing Club — 36½.
6. Nick Hancock, Toronto Sailing and Canoe Club — 38.
7. Donald Long, Oakville Yacht Squadron — 53.
8. Dan Owen, Royal Canadian Yacht Club — 58.
9. J. L. Progebhot, Wilson (Niagara) Yacht Club — 63½.
10. Paul Schelling, Peterborough Sailing Club — 78.

Into Dry-dock

The 1970 North American Albacore championship races are over, and winning crew Donald Barnes, Jr., Mrs. Mary Barnes, and Donald Sr. get some help in hauling their winning entry up onto the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club lawn. The Hamilton family emerged as winners of the 44-boat competition, which featured seven races in the Bay of Quinte this weekend.

Only Five Provinces Represented on Canadian Track Team

HAMILTON (CP) — Ontario and British Columbia athletes dominated the weekend trials to select a 68-member Canadian track and field team for the British Commonwealth Games.

Ontario placed 32 men and women on the team that goes to Edinburgh for the July 16-25 Games and the B.C. contingent took 21 places.

Alberta has three members on the team, Saskatchewan and Manitoba one each. The rest of the country is not represented. The team carries 21 women and 37 men.

Among the surprises in the two-day meet where the lack of serious contenders for the men's 100-metre dash and the defeat of veteran Abby Hoffman in the 1,500-metre.

Veteran Harry Jerome, former world record holder, was the only survivor Friday and Saturday to meet the 10.4-second standard in the 100 metres when he won the semi-final. But he went lame and did not contest the final in which the four leading runners recorded a time of 10.8.

Doug Chapman of Vancouver, earlier hit the 10.4 standard but passed up the trials to attend the United States Amateur Athletic Association meet in Des Moines, Iowa. He has been named to the Games team for the 200 metres but may also run in the 100.

Miss Hoffman, the Torontonian who won a gold medal in the 1966 British Empire Games, was beaten Saturday in the 800 by Noreen Llepins of Vancouver.

Mrs. Llepins, a 26-year-old mother of two said she had trained for two years to beat Abby.

"I concentrated so hard on the 800 that I lost the 1,500. But now that I've accomplished what I was after, I can go back and concentrate on my specialty again."

Another beaten veteran was Irene Pickrorall of Vancouver, fourth in the 200 metres. She lost to Patti Lowerock and Stephanie Berto, both of Vancouver, and Jan Madill of Winnipeg.

Jerome Drayton of Toronto, with his Canadian record of 28:25.8 in the 10,000 metres, made the team as a marathoner along with Andy Boychuk of Sarnia, Ont., and Bob Moore of Toronto, Dave Ellis and Bob Finlay, both of Toronto, join Drayton on the 10,000-metre crew.

Ian Hume, president of the Canadian Track and Field Association, was particularly happy with the women's team selections.

"We've got three good ones in every event except the javelin," he said. The long javelin thrower is Jay Dahlgren of Vancouver, considered a strong gold medal threat by herself.

The selections must still go to the Commonwealth Games Association of Canada for official ratification and two Vancouver runners, Joyce Sadoski and Larry Barton, are still under review and could yet be named to the team.

Some of those named to the team, such as 200-metre runner Chapman, were selected on the basis of their past performances.

Nye Shows Gratitude for Expo Recall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new pitcher, a single by the catcher and an error by the opposition all combined to give Montreal Expos a 3-2 win Sunday, salvaging the last of a three-game series with Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rich Nye, making his first start since he was recalled from the minors last Wednesday, stopped the Pirates on seven hits and John Bateman singled to break a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning.

A single by Adolfo Phillips, a sacrifice and an error by shortstop Fred Patek set up Bateman's run-scoring single.

In other National League games Sunday, Hank Aaron drilled two homers to lead Atlanta Braves to 6-4 victory over Houston Astros, while St. Louis Cardinals swept a doubleheader from Chicago Cubs 3-0 and 3-2, Cincinnati Breves split two 9-3 decisions with Los Angeles Dodgers, San Francisco Giants beat San Diego Padres 7-3 and the Philadelphia Phillies at New York Mets' game was rained out.

Saturday, the Pirates downed the Expos 4-2, Chicago belted St. Louis 8-3, Cincinnati edged Los Angeles 5-4, Houston whipped Atlanta 9-6, Philadelphia beat New York 2-1 and San Francisco defeated San Diego 7-1.

Aaron's two home runs gave him a total of 1,191 extra-base blows—one more than Lou Gehrig amassed in his legendary career with New York Yankees. Aaron is now fourth on the lifetime list, behind Stan Musial, Babe Ruth and Willie Mays.

Aaron's 21st and 22nd homers of the season and Rico Carty's 17th helped Jim Nash, 5-2, subdue the Astros with last-out help from Bob Priddy.

Steve Carlton fired a six-hit shutout in the opener and Bob Gibson checked the Cubs on seven hits in the second game as the Cardinals climbed within 4½ games of the East Division lead.

"You don't get tired of catching a couple of pitchers like that," said Joe Torre, who worked 18 innings behind the plate and won the nightcap with an eighth-inning homer. "They were right in there all day. I hardly had to move at all."

Rookie Wayne Simpson breezed to his 10th victory against one loss as the Reds rebounded after the Dodgers handed Jim Merritt, 11-6, his third straight loss in the opener.

Johnny Bench led Cincinnati's second-game assault with a two-run double and a two-run homer that tied him with teammate Tony Perez for the major league lead at 24. Wes Parker and Jim Lefebvre had three hits each for the Dodgers in the opener.

The Giants broke a 2-2 tie on Hal Lanier's run-scoring infield single in the sixth and went on to tip San Diego behind Don McMahon's hitless relief pitching over the last four innings.

Tiger Strokes 7 Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cesar Gutierrez wrote himself into the baseball record books Sunday when he became the first player in modern major league history to get seven consecutive hits in a game—six singles and a double—as Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 8-7 in the 12-inning nightcap of a doubleheader.

Gutierrez set out the opener, won by the Tigers 7-2.

"When I got the sixth hit," said Gutierrez, "coach (Wally) Moses said I had some kind of record. I said I'll try for seven, but never in my life did I ever think of a record."

He got it in the 12th after Mickey Stanley homered to break an 8-8 tie—an infield single off the glove of pitcher Phil Hentgan. The only other player ever to get seven consecutive hits in one game was Wilbert Robinson of the Baltimore National League club on June 19, 1892. He also had six singles and a double.

John Burnett of Cleveland set the record of nine hits in one game July 10, 1932. He had seven singles and two doubles out of 11 trips to bat in an 18-inning contest, but the hits weren't consecutive.

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Baltimore Orioles beat Washington Senators 4-2, New York Yankees outslugged Boston Red Sox 14-10 in 11 innings, Minnesota Twins trounced Kansas City Royals 11-2, California Angels shaded Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 in 10 innings and Oakland Athletics took two from the Chicago White Sox 8-3 and 5-4.

Saturday, New York downed Boston 8-3, Cleveland edged Detroit 2-1, Oakland whipped Chicago 8-5, Baltimore beat Washington 5-4, Kansas City defeated Minnesota 5-3 and California blanked Milwaukee 4-0.

Gutierrez, a 155-pounder who was sold by San Francisco Giants to Detroit last September, raised his average to .255 from .226 as he looped a single to centre in the first inning, singled to left in the third, singled to deep short in the fifth, doubled to left in the seventh, singled to right in the eighth and beat out a hit behind second base in the 10th before his record-breaker.

Gutierrez's eighth-inning single tied the score and enabled him to come back twice more add earn a niche in baseball history.

Jim Northrup hit a pair of two-run homers and Al Kaline hit one as the Tigers rallied from an early 6-1 deficit. Tony Horton belted a grand slam and Chuck Hinton and Ken Harrelson der hit solo shots for the Indians.

The Tigers snapped Cleveland's seven-game winning streak in the opener as Norm Cash homered, Elliott Maddox, Dick McAuliffe and Stanley each drove in two runs.

Dave McNally needed relief from Pete Richert in the ninth but regained his fifth career victory as the Orioles completed a four-game sweep of the Senators.

Laver Chasing Fifth All-England Title

LONDON (Reuters) — The All-England Tennis championships open Monday with Australian Rod Laver and Margaret Court solid favorites for singles titles after a week of impressive performances that gave them victories in the London open championships Saturday.

Laver will be chasing his fifth men's singles title and his third in a row. He did not lose a set in six matches last week and won the London tournament with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over John Newcombe of Australia, the man he beat to win here a year ago.

All players dream of catching Margaret Court on an off day. Winnie Shaw of Scotland did Saturday and came close to sending the tall, two-time Wimbledon winner down to her worst defeat in years.

Mrs. Court was shockingly bad for most of two sets, dropping the opener 6-2 and falling behind 5-0 in the second. Then she suddenly managed to put everything together, Miss Shaw hit a bad patch when she saw her margin begin to disintegrate and the final score had Mrs. Court on top 2-6, 8-6, 6-2.

Her main competition and the only real threat to her chances is expected to be Billie Jean King of the U.S. who skipped the singles last week but who was in her best form in two years when she led the Americans to a 4-3 Wightman Cup victory over Britain two weeks ago.

The women will not begin until Tuesday. Today belongs to the men.

Tour for Tennis
Worth $200,000
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Details of a $200,000 year-long tennis Grand Prix, with a Masters' tournament at the end, were announced Sunday on the eve of the all-England tennis championships.
The prize money gave new interest to the Wimbledon tournament, starting today, which is one of 17 events counting in the Grand Prix series.
The ultimate winner, on a cumulative points basis, will pick up a cheque for $35,000. There will be a further prize of $50,000 for the winner of the Masters, in which the top six — or eight — points winners will compete.

Jacklin Wins Open Without Money Worry

The 25-year-old Englishman said the absence of financial pressure helped him win the 70th U.S. Open golf championship Sunday with his fourth straight sub-par round, a two-under 70 for a 72-hole score of 281.

"In the 1967 Canadian Open," said Jacklin, "I was two strokes behind Billy Casper and started thinking about $30,000. I got 20, thinking dollars on every shot. I lost."

Jacklin did not have money on his mind when he went into the U.S. Open final round over the par-72, 7,151-yard Hazeltine National golf course with a four-stroke lead over countryman Dave Hill.

"When I won the British Open last year," said the dark-haired Briton, "I became financially secure for life. I didn't think much about money this week. I know this might be worth a million dollars to me.

"I might go out and buy a new car and a television set."

The Open title was worth $30,000 in prize money and Mark McCormack, Jacklin's manager, estimates the championship is worth $1,000,000 in endorsement fees and the like.

Jacklin, the first Englishman to win the U.S. Open since Ted Ray in 1920, credited his putter with settling him down on the ninth hole of Sunday's round after going over par on seven and eight. He made a birdie on No. 9 with a 25-foot putt.

Bob Dunn and Jerry Bob Charles tied for third with 289, winning $9,000 each. Ken Still took fifth with 291, winning $7,000.

Toronto's Al Balding finished in a tie for 17th with 296—carding a 73 Sunday—to win $1,675. George Knudson of Toronto won $805 with a 77 for a total of 306.

Jacklin, the son of a lorry driver in Scunthorpe, Lincolnshire, laid his championship foundation in the first round with the day's only sub-par round, 71, from a wind-disturbed field of 150. Ben Hogan was the last player, in 1953, to lead every round.

World Cup Win Gives Brazil Holiday

MEXICO CITY (AP) — World soccer champions Brazil prepared to return home today to a triumphant reception and national holiday after reining the Jules Rimet Trophy for keeps in Sunday's final game against Italy.

Italian coach Ferruccio Valcareggi, glumly paled Brazil the best conglomerate he'd ever seen, room after Italy's 4-1 defeat.

"The Brazilians played as if they had wings," Valcareggi said.

Since Brazil began the long road in the World Cup last August, the team never dropped its attacking brand of soccer. They trounced Paraguay, Colombia and Venezuela to reach the final round.

They walloped Czechoslovakia 4-1, edged England 1-0 and beat Romania 3-2. In the quarter-finals, Peru succumbed 4-2, and Uruguay fell 3-1 in the semi-finals. Twelve straight victories —without a single tie—gave the Brazilians possession of the golden cup which they had won twice before.

Overabundance of talent rather than lack of it was the problem.

Even the great Edson Arantes do Nascimento, known to all as simply Pele, had his place on the team threatened because of alleged incompatibility with Tostao.

But Pele, playing his third winning World Cup finals, proved the prophets wrong as he scored the first Brazilian goal of the game, a header from six yards.

There was talk that Brazil had too many forwards and not enough talented backs.

The controversy culminated in the firing of coach Joo Saldanis and his replacement by Mario Jorge Lobo Zagalo, one of the men who won the World Cup for Brazil in 1958 and 1962.

Zagalo kept to a methodical plan which provided 130 days of pre-World Cup training for the players. The Brazilians were the first of the 16 finalists teams to arrive in Mexico, on May 1.

Their $1,000,000 training plan was meticulously arranged, down to the last black bean, which was imported specially from Brazil.

More than 250 crates of equipment, medicine and food were shipped to Mexico. One here, the players were rigidly protected by private guards and a strict training routine.

But organization did not win the Brazilians the World Cup. It was the brilliant spurring and dribbling of such players as Jairzinho, who scored a goal in every game. It was the solidified tactics of Gerson and Rivellino, which opened gaps in Italy's defence, the tightest in the world.

Until the first half, the game looked like a tossup despite constant Brazilian attacks.

But in the second half, drained by tension and effort, the Italian defence crumbled. Gerson, Jairzinho and right back Carlos Alberto came through with three quick goals to make the Brazilian triumph total.

And, of course, there was Pele, playing what he said would be his last World Cup. He stayed farther back than usual. He came to the fore with piercing bursts of speed, smiling wryly when he missed a shot at goal. As usual he was closely guarded, and as usual he engaged in his protesting hysterics, trying to convince the referee to call fouls or penalties.

When it was over, the Brazilians, crowd favorites from the start, received the cheers of the 112,000 fans as they ran around the pitch. Others were carried on fans' shoulders and escorted by harried police. Tostao was nearly stripped nude by wild fans grabbing his jersey, shorts, socks and shoes as souvenirs.

In the centre of the field 16 sailors carried the flags of the 16 finalist countries.

They were: Brazil, Italy, West Germany, Uruguay, England, Peru, Mexico, Soviet Union, Sweden, Israel, Bulgaria, El Salvador, Belgium, Morocco, Romania, and Czechoslovakia.

West Germany won third place in the final standing Saturday by edging Uruguay 1-0.

Thousands of Mexicans, seizing the occasion for celebrations similar to those which marked Mexico's qualification for the quarter-finals, spilled out into the street in pouring rain Sunday night to celebrate a Latin American victory.

Drivers blew their horns, Mexican flags were waved, and the shout was "Me-xi-co, Me-xico, Fra-zil, Bra-zil."

"Brazil, thanks all the same," headlined the Rome daily newspaper, Il Messaggero in a salute to the Italian eleven.

In Mexico City, experts noted that the 32 matches in the final round made history. Not one player was sent off and the champion went into the record books as the most disciplined and fairest in history.

The International Football Federation (FIFA) gave the 20 referees in charge of the matches strict instructions to deal firmly with any misdemeanors.

Players and coaches were told the referees would stand no nonsense.

The World Cup usually is marred by such incidents.

A total of 800,000 people in more than 20 countries watched the games on television.

New Trophy Donated

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — The new trophy for winners of the World Cup Soccer tournament will be named the World Cup of Association Football and will be donated by the International Football Federation (FIFA), it was announced here Saturday.

The cup replaces the Jules Rimet Trophy which Sunday become the permanent possession of Brazil who last won the tournament three times.

The FIFA announcement said the replicas of the new cup, which will go to future winners of the trophy, will have the name of any person that FIFA wants to honor "for extraordinary services" engraved on its face.

The Jules Rimet trophy has been the glittering symbol of world soccer supremacy for 40 years and was named in honor of Jules Rimet of France, prime mover-inventor of the competition.

Almoner Finishes Strong To Win Queen's Guineas

TORONTO (CP) — Almost everyone concerned with Almoner's victory seemed ready to pass along the praise and that left most of it resting on the dark bay gelding which Saturday won the 11th running of the Queen's Plate.

Owner Malcolm Smith of Toronto gave credit to trainer Jerry Levigne who bought the Victoria Park-bred gelding from breeder Phil Sherwood for "He deserves the credit," Smith said of his trainer after Almoner won an exciting stretch duel with the filly Frantreluche and Top Call in the premier event for Canadian-bred three-year-old thoroughbreds.

"I had a feeling we were going to win," said the Toronto merchant. "The horse was ready; we had a good jockey and a good trainer. Jerry gets the credit for the horse being ready."

The jockey was last year's Canadian champion rider, Sandy Hawley, who also passed on the glory to his mount.

"He's the strongest finisher I've ever ridden," said Hawley, who last year had 726 winners but missed the Queen's Plate while sitting out a five-day suspension.

"At the top of the stretch I knew I could win it."

Acting on Levigne's instructions to hold Almoner back until the three-eighths pole, Hawley raised the horse sixth in the 15-horse field on the 1¼ miles of fast dirt track.

Then when Top Call made his move on the backstretch, Hawley went after him and the two went around the field on the far turn, with Almoner passing Top Call at the top of the stretch.

Meanwhile, Frantreluche, owned by J. Louis Levesque of Montreal, and Dance to Market, the pre-race favorite, continued their front-runners' duel along the rail.

Dance to Market ran out of wind with about 50 yards to go and Almoner sped to a three-quarter-length victory over Frantreluche who had a half-length on Top Call.

The winner's share of the record $86,200 purse was $57,340, also a record. Second was worth $17,000, third $8,630 and fourth $4,415.

Almoner went to post as the 5-2 favorite and returned $7.70, $3.80 and $3.10 in the mutuels betting. Frantreluche, off at 7-2, returned $3.90 and $3.10 and Top Call paid $3.80.

Smith also received a gold cup trophy, presented by Lt.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald, and the traditional gift of 50 guineas from The Queen.

Courage Killed in Crash

ZANDVOORT (Reuters) — Jochen Rindt of Austria, driving a Lotus 73 Ford, led all the way Sunday to win the Dutch Grand Prix in a formula one motor race marred by the death of Piers Courage of Britain.

Rindt finished ahead of Jackie Stewart of Scotland in a March Ford and Jackie Ickx of Belgium in a Ferrari.

Courage was killed in the 23rd lap of the 90-lap race when his Tomaso Ford left the road, rolled over and burst into flames. The fire was so fierce that adjoining woodland was set ablaze.

Courage was the second formula one driver killed this month. On June 1, Bruce Maclaren of New Zealand died when he crashed during a test drive at Goodwood, England.

Skiers Admit Not Amateurs

MONTREAL (CP) — Slashed budgets, a new name and curtailment of programs for next season were the highlights of the annual three-day meeting of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association which ended Sunday.

The meeting adopted a proposal to drop the word amateur from the group's title, and forwarded letters of patent to make it simply the Canadian Ski Association to the federal government.

All three facets of the national ski program — alpine, jumping and cross country — found their proposed budgets drastically reduced by the national executive.

Probably hardest hit was the alpine program with administrative head coach Al Raine watching his proposed budget for the 1978-71 season slashed to $202,000 from a proposed $303,000.

Raine is responsible for fielding Canada's national alpine teams for international competition.

The jumping program, which had actual expenses of $35,402 for the 1969-70 will be cut to $20,141 next year, while cross country expenses will be reduced to $20,048 from the $61,216 proposed cost in 1969-70 season.

The general administration wound up with $61,389 as its budget instead of the $82,100 it had originally hoped for.

As a result of these slashed budgets, both the cross country and jumping programs at a national level will be confined to Canada in the coming season.

The alpine competition structure for the next winter will find 15 men and 10 women tentatively scheduled as our national team available for international events.

The executive remained undecided as to whether or not to accept an offer by the federal government to move its headquarters to Ottawa.

Six Per Cent Limit for All or for None Trudeau Intimates

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau hardened the government line on wage restraint during the weekend, raising the likelihood of wage controls if the government doesn't get a two-year's anti-inflation co-operation from labor.

In Sarnia Saturday he told a news conference that it would be unfair to restrict federal employees to six-per-cent raises if employees of the province and private industry were getting bigger increases.

If this situation occurred, he said, "we will make sure others of us we do by some type of controls or give up the fight on inflation."

In Tuliobville the day before he had told members of the United Auto Workers employed at a Ford Motor Co. of Canada plant that if they didn't accept the voluntary six-per-cent wage increase guideline "the government will have to slap on controls."

Inflation was the prime minister's main topic during his three-day tour of Southwestern Ontario, which ended in Strathroy Sunday.

Speaking to reporters hours after the Tuliobville visit he said he is confident that the back of inflation can be broken by the end of this year.

The co-operation of organized labor is needed for from six months to a year to do it, he said, "we will make sure others get sizable contracts during that period should sign for only that brief a period, so they would not be trapped in long-term contracts if the economic situation changed."

Mr. Trudeau said Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey has been negotiating directly with Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, to set up an anti-inflation meeting among representatives of governments, labor and business.

September seemed to be the earliest such a meeting could be convened.

Asked how he could say inflation could be beaten by the end of December when a conference wouldn't be held until September, Mr. Trudeau said three months was time enough to do a lot of things.

Long enough, he said, to hold a federal-provincial conference, or to pass legislation.

His statement was interpreted as suggesting that if the government did not get labor's co-operation on voluntary wage restraint at such a conference, Ottawa might ask for the provinces' approval of legislation enacting controls.

A federal-provincial conference is tentatively scheduled for mid-September.

Despite his references to controls, Mr. Trudeau also restated the government's reluctance to impose them.

Agreement Breaks Guideline

VANCOUVER (CP) — Teslaw agreement was reached Sunday on a two-year contract providing a 30 per cent wage increase for about 150 members of the Cereal Workers Union employed by five grain elevator companies.

Negotiators for both sides said they agreed to recommend acceptance of the contract—which calls for an increase above Prime Minister Trudeau's six per cent yearly guideline.

The agreement, reached after seven months of talks and two weeks of conciliation efforts, provides a 76-cent hourly increase on the base rate of $3.64 an hour plus better overtime pay and other fringe benefits.

The men had demanded an increase of 35 cents an hour in a one-year contract at the start of negotiations.

Companies involved were Alberta Wheat Pool, Burrard Terminals, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Pacific Elevators and United Grain Growers.

At a dinner in Hanover Saturday he had reminders of the Bruce County Liberal Association that they should "think over" the implications of prices and incomes controls.

If enacted, he said, they would lead to a centralized and dictatorial economy for sentia.

Although Mr. Trudeau pushed hard for wage restraints during the three-day, helicopter tour, most of his time was spent doing gentler things—shaking hands, signing autographs, applying a bar cold slide, and sounding out the area in low-key question-and-answer sessions.

He attracted enthusiastic crowds—there were more than 4,000 people on hand to greet him in Strathroy Sunday—and the tour was marked by only minor hecklers.

About 60 postal workers and other union members protested against such a proposal. Mr. Trudeau was dragged away by Sarnia police after shouting that Mr. Trudeau would be killed by the Canadian people as an "imperialist lacker."

The prime minister offered cubs of humor during the tour in dealing with proposals for reducing penalties for possession of marijuana.

While visiting United Breweries Ltd. near Guelph Mr. Trudeau was presented with a chalk-like cube covered in cork, with an empty caption balloon above it.

Would he write something to show what the cow was saying, he was asked.

Without hesitating he took chalk and wrote "I like grass."

"Grass" is a popular term for marijuana.

Levesque Says Effort Made To Turn Business from Quebec

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of Le Parti Quebecois, said Sunday the federal government, mass media and the English-speaking business community have made a concentrated effort to divert business from Quebec since 1968.

The effort, which he called scare propaganda to keep investment away, was designed to push Quebecers into an economic panic.

He said a conference on Quebec at York University the campaign included:

—French Canadians to Quebec from the Bay Street market in Toronto.

—Attacks in editorials in the Toronto Telegram and the Montreal Star and a distorted article in the Toronto Globe and Mail.

—"The Brinks affair" in which Brinks trucks moved securities held by some clients of the Royal Trust Co. out of Quebec two days before the April 29 Quebec election.

He said the campaign was partly reaction to the success of Quebec Hydro's giant Manic project, which had been built "by ourselves in French," disproving theories that French Canadians are not successful in economics.

He said at a news conference later that the English business community had been able to divert some capital from Quebec insofar as it controlled branch plants from head offices outside Quebec.

"Apart from that, . . . Americans are not all that nervous. While all this propaganda was going on Americans were investing as never before."

In addition, funds were readily available from the Wall Street and European money markets, he said.

Asked whether he believed there was a conspiracy between Ottawa and the English-speaking business community to inhibit the Quebec economy, he replied:

"I'm not trying to write a detective story, but politically, financially and economically, this is more and more of a put-up operation."

He said the government, English-banking financiers and the mass media arrived at the idea simultaneously "by talking to each other."

In his speech he said the financial squeeze, when tied to Ontario Premier John Robarts' recent statement that Quebec would never be allowed by the rest of Canada to secede, made quite a few French Canadians feel that bombs were the only solution.

"They're more respectable as a tool . . . than what I have been describing now."

The Canadian Dream Is Over Says Youngest Quebec MPP

TORONTO (CP) — Organizers said before a weekend conference on Quebec today that they felt it "should not primarily focus on whether Quebec should or could secede."

Titled The Other Solitude, it was to examine industrialization, the trade union movement, youth and education, the artist in a changing society and changes in elite structure during the last 20 years.

But during each forum questions from the audience—about 160 teachers and students from Ontario and Quebec—showed an overriding interest in Quebec independence.

Claude Charron, at 24 the youngest member ever elected to the Quebec national assembly and member of Montreal riding for the separatist Parti Quebecois, said the conference he joined the PQ not for its nationalism but for its commitment to social change.

Many English-speaking people seem to think the independence movement is a form of revenge for the French defeat on the Plains of Abraham, he said.

But for him it was a concern for the future.

"I want to know if I will still be French-speaking in 1975, if I will be still be living in a capitalist society, if Trudeau will still be making answers for a majority which is not mine."

Tim Reid, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough East, asked whether he thought an independent Quebec was the best way of getting rid of poverty.

"I think it is perfectly possible," Mr. Charron said. For one thing independence would end the constant hassles between governments in Ottawa, Quebec and the city of Montreal for funds.

Marion Demers, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Nickel Belt, a challenge Mr. Charron to abandon his separatism and help build a greater Canada.

He said his grandparents came to Ontario from Quebec but he has been able to preserve his native tongue. At 26, he was elected to the legislature where he is able to make speeches in French.

He asked Mr. Charron whether, with the help of others in Quebec's assembly, other Quebecers and Canadians, he could build in Quebec a society such as he sees in his dreams.

Mr. Charron said the next four years in Quebec under the Liberal government will be the test for Quebec within Confederation. He would try to help the government build such a society.

If Quebec people do not want to choose democratically he will leave the country.

"The Canadian dream is over. If the Quebec dream is over I will find another. I will never go back."

"Come on! Last one in is a dirty bird!"

Dief Says Trudeau Offended Japanese

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Saturday night a remark by Prime Minister Trudeau on his recent Asia trip roused antagonism toward Canada among the Japanese people.

"Generally speaking, the people were deeply aroused, even made antagonistic to Canada, as a result of an observation of the prime minister of the danger of Japan becoming a military power," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "That had a very detrimental effect."

The former prime minister referred to a press conference Mr. Trudeau gave in Hong Kong in which he referred to the anxieties felt by Asians at the rise of China on the one hand and of Japan on the other.

Mr. Diefenbaker subsequently made his own trip to some of the countries visited by Mr. Trudeau, including Japan, as well as to Taiwan and South Vietnam.

Interviewed on the CBC TV program Encounter, Mr. Diefenbaker argued that Japanese military power cannot be brought about because of constitutional limitations. Japan was not taking its proper share of responsibility in providing forces to stand against communism.

Mr. Diefenbaker said prime ministers should not make statements of the kind made by Mr. Trudeau.

Edward Broadbent Seeks NDP Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) Sunday became the first announced candidate to succeed T. C. Douglas as New Democratic Party leader in 1971.

Mr. Broadbent, a 36-year-old bachelor with a doctorate in political science from the London School of Economics and Political Science, made the announcement at an afternoon news conference.

The leadership convention will be held April 21-24 in the Ottawa Civic Centre. Where the Liberals picked Pierre Trudeau in April, 1968.

Mr. Broadbent was accompanied by four other New Democrat MPs—John Gilbert (Toronto Broadview), Arnold Peters (Timiskaming), Mark Rose (Fraser Valley West) and Rod Thomson (Battleford - Kindersley).

Mr. Broadbent said he has received firm assurance of support from two other members of the caucus.

Mr. Rose said Canadians "deserve someone with the image and style that provides an alternative to Prime Minister Trudeau."

Observers say that while it still is too early to estimate Mr. Broadbent's following, he likely will be well received in academic circles, slightly less so by labor unions and will have the backing of about one-third of the caucus.

Mr. Broadbent was elected to Parliament in the Oshawa riding in the June, 1968, general election, defeating Michael Starr, former Conservative labor minister.

A former assistant professor in the political science department at York University, Toronto, Mr. Broadbent said he plans to have his campaign as soon as the Commons adjourns for the summer.

Some observers had urged him not to begin so soon, Mr. Broadbent said, in case he would "peak too soon."

But he planned to spend as much time as possible travelling across Canada and "testing the people decide."

He said he would be surprised if David Lewis, deputy party leader, and John Harney, the Ontario party secretary, do not become candidates.

Charles Taylor, a McGill professor, had decided not to run, Mr. Broadbent said.

Melville Watkins, an economist at the University of Toronto, was likely emerge as the candidate of a radical, hardline socialist section of the party, Mr. Broadbent said.

Anti-pollution Moves Cut Camping in Park

ALGONQUIN PARK, Ont. (CP) — Anti-pollution measures at Algonquin Park campsites will cut the park's camping capacity this summer, the park superintendent said in an interview Sunday.

T. W. Huston said most of the measures were taken at the park's most popular campsite on Lake of Two Rivers, where swimming had to be banned last summer because of high bacteria counts.

"We decided to take out approximately 100 sites of the total of about 300 in the belief there were too many people in that small area," he said.

In addition, the Lake of Two Rivers camp has two large new washrooms with flush toilets, while all 300 have lumber facilities plus several vault privies along the edge of the campground. A $500,000 program is under way to improve washroom facilities at all the park's campsites.

He said park officials intend to work closely with tourist organization and radio stations to warn the public in advance of full campgrounds.

Thistle Should 'Stick' as Harness Driver

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

If anyone should see a tall, pretty, slightly green - red-head looking around the barns at the Belleville Fairgrounds, get used to her. She'll be a common sight at the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's weekly harness racing programs.

Irene Thistle has embarked on a racing career which she hopes to continue for many years to come.

Last November she bought half - interest in a horse and recently decided to apply for her harness license with she achieved just last Wednesday. Only three days later she was driving No Doubt to a sixth - place finish at the latest of the Belleville harness racing meets.

Although new to harness racing she isn't by no means new to racing horses as she raced all winter at Greenacres — on the ice. But even after that relatively dangerous pastime she exclaimed before her first race Saturday night "I was so nervous I was turning green."

But she threw like a pro and promises to be even better at Kingston on Wednesday. Irene's venture into the harness world.

Cool weather kept Saturday night's Belleville attendance down.

For the sparse crowd that did turn out record payoffs, photo-finishes, spills, a record time, and generally the most exciting night of the year blessed the Quinte Harness Races.

Only 861 fans turned out but were part of the highest.

Midgets Avenge Orono Loss

The Belleville Lions Midgets got their revenge Sunday with a 12-1 shellacking of Orono after a 13-11 extra inning loss to the same opponents Saturday.

Sunday, Lions hurler Stan Brooks fired one hit ball for six innings striking out 14 batters and hosting no walks to pick up the victory. Carman McCaffery followed the only Orono run and six hits after relieving Brooks in the seventh.

Paul Wolfe had a perfect four - for - four day and Barry Cobbin had a homer, a triple and a single to pace the Belleville 12-hit attack. Smith with a triple and three singles, Lapenette with two doubles and a single, Cousins with a double and three singles and Kinkham with a solo homer rounded out the assault.

At Orono on Saturday 16 Belleville errors and a lack of playing personnel combined to defeat the Lions.

Bill Kirkham, Carman McCaffery, Dave Smith and Dale Bandorf saw service and although only for Belleville but errors cost the game in the bottom of the 10th.

Barry Cobbin again provided the power for the Lions with a triple and two singles. Dale Bember with three singles, and Doug Dersnah with two singles were the other Belleville hitters.

Also Sunday afternoon the Belleville CHIC Peewees ran into a tough Peterborough squad and were reinvoked 9-3.

Mark Coombes and Dan Eastman limited the Belleville team to three runs by picking up six strikeouts and walking only four batters.

Mike McClelland led Belleville at bat with three singles followed by Brian Turner and Tugg Meagher with two singles apiece.

The Turbos downed the Fire Department 13-6 in a Friday night contest, outhitting the losers 11-7.

Rode Bennett went the distance walking five and getting three hits on strikes. Perry Soule and Paul Stevenson worked for the Firemen, leasing eight bases on balls and striking out three batters.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE STANDINGS

Trenton racing driver Jerry Daca has proved that you do not have to win to finish first as he moved to the top of the standings in the Ontario Region Class A Sedan Racing Championship.

A second-place finish at the Harewood 100 Race Saturday was good enough to give him a total of 18 points, five ahead of Peterborough's Gil Stuart.

Daca is attempting to find a full sponsor for his Camaro, has failed to win a race this season, but has piled up enough second and third place finishes to lead the competition.

Plane's Flex Pitching Muscles

Plane's Concrete continued to flex their pitching muscles as they blanked Latta 4-0 Saturday night to move into a first-place tie with Read in the South Hastings League.

They received a helping hand from Shannonville, Sunday, as the loop's fourth place team stopped Read 3-2.

Bob Chappell threw six-hit ball for Plane's, who have given up only two runs in their last four games. He struck out eight batters and didn't walk a man.

A four - run outburst in the third inning was enough to hand Latta hurler Doug Geen his first defeat of the season. Geen gave up six hits and walked three batters, while recording seven whiffs.

Ted Abrams blasted a double for the winners, with base hits going to Ron Urch, Warren Day, Eric Emerson, Larry Adams and Bob Neilson.

Scott McLaren had a double and single for Latta with Bob Smith, Doug Chisholm, Harrison and Duncan Richardson matching the other safeties.

Shannonville recorded their first win of the year over Read as they came up with a 3-2 win.

Dave Lewis hurled a five-hit, 11-strikeout effort for the winners. He issued three walks. Harold Pascoe was reached for eight hits in absorbing the loss. He fanned only a pair but was equal to the number.

Bill Barberstock clubbed three singles for Shannonville with Larry Marshall adding a double. Larry Lewis, Clint Green, Wayne Sager and Dave Lewis all had single.

Rollins Flounder After Fast Start

Belleville's Rollins Construction entry in the Campbellford Softball Tournament, this weekend, floundered badly after a flying start.

Rollins won their first game easily as they clobbered Brighton 15-1 in a Friday night game. Wayne McConnell pitched a two - hitter, while centre fielder Ralph Plane banged out four hits.

The Belleville team was stymied on only one hit Sunday during a 5-0 decision to the finalists from Campbellford. A second inning single by Wes May was the only safety for Rollins. Wayne McConnell started for Rollins, giving way to Scott Reid in the first inning. They gave up a total of seven hits.

Carm's Cleaners of Trenton captured the Consolation round by blanking Alderville 3-0. Paul Wannamaker pitched a two - hitter for Trenton.

Car Fan Is A Simple Device But It Can Prove Dangerous

By RAY STAPLEY

The conventional cooling fan is a simple device requiring little or no maintenance — provided, of course, that it is not damaged by a collision or mishandled.

Its function is to draw cool outside air through the radiator core. It also controls the temperature of the various components in the engine compartment.

Since the fan is really not needed at high speeds and its operation steals horsepower from the engine, some cars are fitted with thermostatic or centrifugally controlled fans. At high speeds, natural forces drive air through the radiator and into the engine compartment, and the need for a fan is reduced considerably.

To minimize the annoying fan noise and conserve horsepower, these automatically or centrifugally - controlled units reduce fan speed at a pre - determined number of revolutions.

The number of blades on a fan varies depending on the make of vehicle. Don't be concerned if you find some of the blades grouped together or spaced unevenly in your car. This is done to minimize fan noise.

While relatively simple, it should be a fan most trustworthy. One of the most dangerous practices when working on an engine is attempting to rotate the crankshaft by pulling on the fan blades.

This practice can bend the metal at the base of the blades beyond its elastic point and, at the least, result in imbalance and vibration. At the worst, it can lead to that dread plague of all types of machinery — metal fatigue, and in time a weakened fan blade will break loose and fly off with the speed of a bullet.

I know of a mechanic who was instantly killed when a blade broke away and buried itself in his head as he revved up the engine. Never stand in line of a rotating fan when the hood is open. I have also seen holes in car hoods where fan blades have sliced clean through the metal.

On some vehicles there is a shield mounted just above the the top section of the fan, which sometimes bears this warning: "Caution — beware of fan." Never place fingers on, under or anywhere near this shield while the engine is running — they can be sliced off in a split second. Keep children away from the front of the car when the hood is open and the engine is running. Remove tools and loose objects from upper pockets before leaning over a running engine.

I once had a young apprentice who placed an extension light on top of a radiator. The vibration of the running engine caused the light to drop between the fan and the radiator core. Luckily, the lad was not hurt — but the radiator, fan and waterpump were ripped to shreds and it cost me $35 to repair the damage. The fan can be lethal. Stay away from it.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Tobacco's Effects Often Reversible

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Suppose a person has smoked for over 20 years. Hasn't the damage already been done? What's the use of quitting? — Mrs. I.

COMMENT: The following profile of a former smoker will partially answer your question. In many cases, we doctors believe, the bad effects of tobacco are reversible — even after many years of smoking. Let's see what the facts tobacco are reversible — even after many years of smoking. Let's see what the facts tobacco are reversible has to say:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please let me add my voice to those of you who are trying to show the error of their ways to smokers. As a cured, heavy smoker I know and have used every excuse in the book. The only real excuse is "no guts."

This much I would like to say to those well-meaning doctors who warn of the consequences: It is possible for me to be writing this. When he drove me to the emergency hospital I saw the color of St. Peter's eyes. Now, months later, except for already younger with they could keep up with me.

Cost? Yes. I quickly put on 23 pounds, starting from 117, which with my height and build was acrobatic but attractive. Then a settling down and easy control.

Reward? I was on tranquilizers half the time while I smoked. Now that the nicotine is out of my system I don't have a nerve in my body.

My only regret is that I didn't see the light many years before. My breath is sweeter, my teeth stay cleaner, and I perspire, but do not have those nasty brown stains under the arms of my white garments.

No more cigarette burns in my clothes. No more going out at my hour of the day or night to purchase the supply. No more worrying all day if I left one burning and will go home to a pile of ashes, say, nothing of the financial saving.

If adults want to kill themselves I'm inclined to let them make their own choice. If I could influence just one youngster, all my suffering would have been worthwhile. If anyone thinks he won't suffer with emphysema, just let him try it for a while. — Mrs. K.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My six - year - old son has a problem that I hope you can answer. Most of the time we punish him by spanking him with our hand a couple of times. But when he is very bad we use a thick strap to him.

Every time we use the strap, and give him a good beating, he becomes very ill. He vomits, has fever and shakes. The times we used the strap on him are few and I planned how we would punish him. He hit him between three to 10 times.

Why does he get sick, is the strap too severe? — Mrs. B.

Comment: I look forward to most letters from readers, but this one has made me sick. The mother (!) writes "my 6 - year - old has a problem" is the understatement of the year.

I wish I could help this child. Unfortunately (and understandably) the writer did not sign her name nor address. I hope she reads this. Perhaps she can see herself truly, as in a mirror. Some parents are so overcome by the need for discipline, that they unknowingly brutalize their children.

For pity sakes, Mr. and Mrs. B., take a good, long look at yourselves. Show some compassion. Give your child a break, or you'll actually break him.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Population Curbs Are Not Simple

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Next to "pollution," the big word is "population" these days. The experts seem to agree that the human population growth has to be curbed. But the problem is not as simple as some enthusiasts like to believe.

Actually, we don't know as much about populations — human or animal — as we should know, in order to make rational decisions. Our experience in control of animal populations should give us pause.

As one example, among rats, when the population goes up, food becomes relatively scarce, there is less opportunity for resting or breeding, the mating-rate falls, litters fail to survive and the rat population tumbles precipitously.

But when there is a systematic destruction of rats (such as the communal "Rat-a-Weeks" once popular in England and now abandoned), the much smaller rat population that has been reared, more successful mating and breeding, and so their numbers were quickly restored. (My authority for this, and for the following example, is taken from Burton's Mammals of the World.)

Some years ago, when it was decided that the lions in Kruger Park were too numerous for the game present, the herd was thinned out by shooting.

But the balance of nature was soon restored, for a curious reason. When several lionesses are together with their cubs, it is the mothers that feed first on the entrails containing vitamin-rich material. The cubs are starved for vitamins, which leads to a low survival - rate.

However, when a single lioness has cubs, she allows them to feed first from the kill, with a resulting high survival-rate of young. So "thinning out" the lionesses leads, paradoxically, to an increase in numbers of the species.

What has all this got to do with people? Well, the most effective way to bring down the birth rate in under-developed countries anywhere, it is highest, is by raising standard of living. People have the most children when they are least afford it, and affluence goes hand in hand with a declining birthrate.

On the other hand, when we raise the standard of living, we decrease the infant mortality rate. Fewer children are born, but of these many more survive, requiring more living space, more food, more energy — and thus producing far more pollution of the environment.

It is good that we are so concerned about the problem of population, but is is far more than we imagine. Not only in the moral sphere, but in the practical mechanics of regulating a process we have barely begun to understand even with rats.

Heath Must Pick Companion

LONDON (AP) — It's a bit early to worry about it, but sooner or later bachelor Prime Minister Edward Heath is going to have to come to grips with a delicate problem in protocol.

The problem is whom to choose as his female escort in formal affairs. It used to be the big heads of government and other dignitaries from around the globe.

This never bothered the last bachelor prime minister, Arthur Balfour at the turn of the century.

In those days it was a man's world.

Now, almost nothing of any account happens in the social-diplomatic world without couples in tandem.

Heath, a man who does his homework ahead of time, may well have worked this out in advance but at 53, he clearly has been married only to politics with no romance in sight.

Current thinking is that Heath's top cabinet officers will spell the boss on a rotation basis.

That means that the wives of Sir Alec Douglas Home, Anthony Barber, Reginald Maudling and William Whitelaw are likely to take turns at the prime minister's elbow.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 23

Your birthday today: Sometime in the coming year you will be able to make a change for a fresh start. If you are now in a down-spiral, it will increase until you make sweeping changes. If you are prayerfully seeking the way upward, this year will bring self-fulfillment. Material matters are of no secondary concern. Today's natives approach life with equanimity. Most are very nice people to know.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your mind is open, and big ideas come to you. Use them. You have a rare opportunity to do something unusual that impressed others favorably.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Delay and confusion — result of your spirit and your will to achieve. Your performance goes well and calls for a bit of a celebration tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Look for more information during the morning. If the time is wasted, it's still no loss. The afternoon and evening can be successful and interesting.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Something you learned some time ago from someone now far away crops up in discussions and is very helpful. Make important decisions later in the day.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your projects now attract attention and perhaps active support from important people. Give everybody plenty of time, close your desk late in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The less you say today the less you have to remember their understandings. What you do say should be to the point, in the right place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Find out more details before you accept the glowing reports of the morning. The story is quite different and more truthful by the time evening arrives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your domestic family affairs do not turn out to be very practical because of change and growth within your expectations. Stick with that which proves useful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Family matters are turbulent, perhaps noisy. By the end of the day things should be settled. The latter part of the day is best spent in trouble-shooting, error-correction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Watch and learn today rather than plunge into experimental activities. Your friends are all on the move now — try not to let contacts lapse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): At the present your tendency is to jump to conclusions. By evaluated this morning. Be systematic and thorough.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The day is full of current deals which are likely to defeat themselves. Stay away from needless involvement, disrupted gossip. You have plenty to say later.

Britons May Never Again Put Trust in Opinion Polls

LONDON (CP) — Britain's opinion polls may take years to recover from the general election fiasco. Some Britons wonder whether the pollsters will ever again be trusted as a reliable indicator of voter trends in a national election.

The polls, whose main yearround job is doing market research, predicted a big Labor victory. Day after day, their reports, published in the national press, cast doubts on Edward Heath's campaign.

In the Harold Wilson camp, the talk was mainly about the makeup of his cabinet after the uneven fight was over.

Near the end, only one poll came falsely near the mark in estimating a tiny lead for Conservative Leader Heath. But no one could give him any real hope that his campaign battle for Thursday's election was making any real impact on the electorate.

With Heath now firmly installed as prime minister with a 30-seat majority in the 630-seat Commons, the postmortem takes the form of a polls' lament that they made one fatal mistake—they didn't keep pressing their surveys until the last minute.

They had expected a big turnout in the many June 18 voting days; perhaps even higher than the 75.85 per cent in 1966.

In fact the turnout, at 72 per cent, was the lowest percentage since 1935.

Some analysts take an opposite view. They suggest that if more voters had turned up at the booths, they would have increased the Tory margin. One commentator bases the argument on trends in constituencies with tiny majorities. In some, the turnout drop was small, but support for Labor still lagged far behind.

Huyck's Point Possible Site for Huge Kraft Paper Mill

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

Huyck's Point, just opposite Northern Talent in the southwest portion of Prince Edward County, has been named as a possible site for a huge new kraft paper mill.

A spokesman for the Canadian International Paper Company, which is currently negotiating with both the federal and provincial governments, admitted today that "Huyck's Point and other sites in the region are under active consideration."

However he stressed that plans for the $75-million kraft paper mill and satellite operations on the verges of the Quinte district are still under study and that nothing specific could be announced yet.

"A decision will have to be made in a few months but there are many unanswered questions at this point," he emphasized.

George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings, said this morning that he presumed Huyck's Point was one of the sites involved, but that there are others outside this area under consideration.

The MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox, Dan Whitney, told the Intelligencer: "I think Huyck's Point is definitely being considered but as to whether it will be selected I haven't any idea."

"I understand that somebody has optioned quite a bit of land in that area west of Wellington," he added, revealing that Hillier reeve Gordon Lloyd had informed him that 900 acres had been optioned in his township.

Labor Act Revision Toughens Penalties

Labor Chief Dislikes Move

TORONTO (CP) — New amendments to the Ontario Labor Relations Act will "strengthen the hand of management against the unions in the construction industry," David Archer, president of the 500,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, said Monday.

The OFL president commented shortly after Labor Minister Dalton Bales presented the series of amendments in the legislature, saying the changes will help reduce industrial strife while providing more freedom for workers.

The amendments include a provision that will allow employers in the construction industry to band together into accredited groups and bargain jointly with construction unions.

Mr. Archer said this was the only major change in the proposed legislation and it was "an apparent attempt to reduce the power of unions in the construction industry."

He also objected to another amendment which guarantees a worker his job back at any time during the first six months after the start of a strike. He said that employers will have rights to their job under the present act.

The amendment, hailed as a North American first by Mr. Bales, means that any striker who wants to go back to work during the first six months may demand his old job even if another employee has since been hired in his place.

Mr. Archer said he could see no reason for the six-month provision since Ontario labor law now is based on a Supreme Court decision which ruled an employee does not cease to be an employee simply because he exercises his legal right to strike.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party labor critic, said in a statement that the amendment on the right to return to work "is simply designed to intensify industrial conflict by raising the tension between groups of striking workers."

It would formally encourage some striking unionists to break labor solidarity and enter into special arrangements with the employer, he said.

Mr. Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) also criticized Mr. Bales for not including new provisions to prevent strike-breaking, "one of the single greatest causes of industrial tension."

"Troublemaker!"

Strikers Get Job Guarantee

TORONTO (CP) — New labor legislation proposed for Ontario will guarantee the jobs of individual strikers who want to return to work within six months of a walkout, but will impose stiff penalties on union leaders who so much as threaten an illegal strike.

The new amendments to the Labor Relations Act were introduced Monday by Labor Minister Dalton Bales, who said they represent a two-pronged attack to promote industrial peace and guarantee more freedom for individual union members.

He proposed higher fines—up to $10,000—for employers, unions and unions found guilty by provincial court of breeches of the act, including threatening, or carrying out, illegal strikes or lockouts.

While some amendments will give greater freedom for unions to organize on company property or to obtain accreditation votes, other changes provide greater freedom for religious objectors, or other employees within a union to opt out of unless security provisions.

Separate proposals for the construction industry will permit construction contractors to band together in accredited employer groups empowered to negotiate jointly with construction trade unions.

The amendments, to come before the legislature for discussion this fall, brought angry reactions from opposition labor critics who said the changes fail to touch on issues of major concern to unions and will simply promote industrial unrest.

Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) argued that the provision guaranteeing a striking worker the right to get his job back within the first six months of a strike will "increase industrial conflict by

Muscular Dystrophy Reversed in Hens

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientific accident has led to a discovery that may help the cause of crippling muscular dystrophy, so far an incurable disease.

Dr. Ade T. Milhorat, a New York medical researcher, reported in the White House Monday that chemicals derived from vegetable oils have reversed the muscle-disintegrating process in chickens, the first such reversal in any living creature.

Dr. Milhorat, however, cautioned against premature hopes the chicken experiments would assure a new treatment for humans.

"We believe that these observations will lead to a more complete understanding of the cause and nature of muscular dystrophy," he said in a letter to Mrs. Richard Nixon, honorary chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America."

"We hope, but cannot predict, their role in the treatment of the disease in other species, including man."

But he also told the president's wife the chicken-test results were so promising that human trials of at least some of the compounds are envisaged.

North Vietnamese Seize River Towns

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam troops drove a Cambodian battalion from two villages on the Mekong River about 11 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The retreating battalion commander said his men had discovered a Soviet rocket that could hit the capital.

As the battalion commander, Maj. Ros Preung, stood on the river bank at Mouk Khampoul, four Cambodian T-28 planes attacked the occupied villages with napalm, setting most of the thatch and wood building afire.

Preung said his battalion of 400 men was hit from three sides and forced into the river. They retreated by fishing boats to the west bank.

U. S. Planes Hunt Targets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has extended the Indochina air war deep into Cambodia for the first time with U.S. pilots ranging far and wide in search of targets.

In making the disclosure Monday, the defence department said U.S. planes have been striking at troop and supply lines nearly every day for almost a week.

Officials indicated the bombing missions are likely to continue—probably on a daily basis if weather permits—long past the June 30 pullout deadline for American troops. The White House declined to say whether any limitations have been placed on the aircraft.

One official conceded the flights could indirectly help Cambodian forces. If American planes bombed routes used to supply Communist forces fighting Cambodians, the official said, the Cambodians would benefit from the attacks.

However, he insisted, the chief purpose of the attacks is to interdict supply lines and not provide air support for Cambodian forces.

Postmen's Walkouts Halt Mail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tons of mail piled up across Canada today as thousands of postal workers stayed off the job or held sit-ins to protest a deadlock in contract talks with the federal government.

Nearly 8,000 postal employees were off work in Toronto, Hamilton, Burlington, Ont., Calgary, Vancouver, Charlottetown and Summerside, P.E.I. Montreal workers, meanwhile, began a series of sit-ins to protest the hiring of casual help by the post offices.

The combination of strikes and sit-ins in Toronto and Montreal meant mail was tied up in the two key distribution centres in Canada, affecting routing across the country and air mail delivery.

In Toronto, Hamilton and Burlington, the situation appeared more serious as officials warned the men could stay off their jobs until a contract agreement is reached.

The 500 Hamilton-Burlington workers went on strike Sunday and spokesmen indicated they had no intention of returning to their jobs by following the previous procedure of a 24-hour strike.

Israelis Raid Egyptian Base

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli commandos crossed into Egypt Monday night to shell an army base 90 miles southeast of Cairo.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the Israeli raiders attacked barracks and warehouses with mortars and destroyed two Egyptian troop carriers full of soldiers hurrying to the defence of the centre. He added that the commandos returned safely.

Education of Disturbed Children in Regular Schools Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A report released today by the Committee on Emotional and Learning Disorders in Children calls for a radical re-organization of services to help about 1,000,000 young Canadians.

The report, called One Million Children, is based on a national, three-year study by an 11-member committee of educationists, psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers. Its co-chairmen are Charles A. Roberts, chairman of the psychiatry department at the University of Ottawa, and Denis Lazure, executive director of the Riviere-des-Prairies Hospital in Montreal.

Its work was sponsored by seven organizations, including the Canadian Mental Health Association and the Canadian Welfare Council. Its 144 recommendations amount to a new deal for children who are neurotic, retarded, have specific learning difficulties, are judged to be delinquent, are culturally or emotionally deprived or who have sensory or physical handicaps likely to lead to an emotional or learning problem.

"Conservative estimates tell us that one child in eight, or around one million Canadians under 20 years of age, have an emotional or learning disorder that will prevent optimal development unless some intervention takes place," the report says.

"Canada has neither the manpower nor the financial resources to handle a problem of this magnitude outside the regular systems of child care. . . ."

The child had to be kept within the regular school system and all the helping resources of the community should be mobilized to support the school and reinforce the classroom teacher's work in developing the child.

In keeping with this, the committee recommended a reorganization of special education for children with emotional or learning disorders so that it is carried on in the regular classroom rather than in separate, segregated classes and schools.

Traffic Committee Against Festival

At yesterday's Traffic and Light committee meeting held at 3 p.m. in the council chambers of city hall, a motion passed without bias was forwarded to the next council meeting recommending that the peace festival to be held at the Belleville fair grounds not be taken on.

Alderman Art Keegan explained this morning that we're worried about the traffic situation which would arise if this festival was held here."

"When you get approximately 13,000 cars travelling down Front Street every day, already congesting traffic, an additional 4,000 or more cars would present a hopeless situation."

"After all, advertisements are being circulated all over cities in New York state, Chicago like Rochester and Utica and there are going to be thousands of people responding.

"Don't get me wrong, I want to stress that we have nothing against the festival, but we feel that from strictly a traffic viewpoint, larger centres such as Toronto would be better suited to handle the traffic," he explained.

Concluding, Mr. Keegan added, "we're simply worried about the safety problem, that's all."

Kinsmen, Kinettes Elect Officers

Cottage Burns

BANCROFT (Staff) — An unoccupied cottage on Big Valley Bay on Baptiste Lake burned to the ground this morning, but a Lands and Forests crew and pumper on the scene prevented the fire from spreading to adjoining woods.

Conditions in the forest district are reported to be dry, with forest fire hazard high.

The McAffry family, owners of the cottage, are believed to have spent the week-end there and to have left last night. The cottage burned to the ground, but no other cottages were affected by the fire.

Bill MacLeod is the new Kinsmen president and Gayle Burroughs will lead the Kinette Club.

The executive committee of the Kinsmen is composed of the following new officers: vice - president Don Larson, secretary; Rick Mahan, treasurer Bill Smith, registrar Bob Thomas and Ron Watson and Norm Thomas.

Elected to the executive of the Kinettes are Peggy McNevin (secretary), Marg Jackson (treasurer), Dot Watson (registrar), Liz MacLeod and Peg Johnson (directors).

The two clubs, which sponsor the Kinsmen swimming pool on Dundas St. East, report that the pool will open to the public on Friday afternoon.

The pool is now painted white and has been provided with over $15,000 in new equipment for this season.

Winning Portrait

Brian Cook's last-minute entry in a Fathers' Day contest netted him dinner with hockey star Gordie Howe and his father a personalized and unique beer stein. His winning portrait of his father was transferred to a stein — the one his proud father, Robert Cook, is hoisting.

Draws Dad, Wins Prize

Brian Cook is a 10-year-old who draws faces and now he's drawn a winner — his dad's.

As a result both of them get to have dinner with a favorite hero — Gordie Howe.

It all started some time ago when Brian entered a Father's Day contest sponsored by a major national department store.

Rules of the competition called for each entrant to submit a personally-penned portrait of dad.

For Brian this was a snap.

The second eldest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook's seven children, he spends much of his home time at 56 Jarvis Crescent polishing his artistic ability.

So much so, for a youngster he now possesses an advanced artistic style.

Mr. Cook, a public works employee and president of the city department's CUPE local, gives the credit to Brian's teacher at Bayview school.

He entered the contest and last Saturday — just in time for Father's Day — back came the announcement of his win. It was accompanied by his dad's portrait which had been transferred to the side of a prize beer stein.

Main award comes July 6 when Brian and his father travel to the Royal York to dine with hockey star Gordie Howe.

This is an ideal bonus. The Cooks are a family of hockey players. To Brian, a novice B goaltender Howe is a "real

Tweed School Sale Awaits Queen's Park

Conditions is near zero for completion of the Tweed Hastings District High School sale, but the department of education is still aware of final approval.

The separate school board has already paid $1,000 to secure its agreement to buy the building. It must hand over the remaining $227,000 to the Hastings County board by June 30 to complete the deal.

But so far the government has remained silent, refusing to give any indication of whether or not it intends to jump in at the last minute and schotch the deal.

The Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board has decided to go ahead on its own to complete the sale, putting up the money itself if the government no longer grants it.

In the absence of a government veto, the Hastings county board of education and the separate school board can proceed with closure of the deal June 30. But the separate school board would like some indication that Queen's Park won't step in and withhold its vital approval.

The situation was termed "ridiculous" last week by several school trustees, who expected some official word from Queen's Park by last Thursday.

They charged that the provincial government, by its determined silence, was giving the separate school board "the runaround".

The sale, first agreed to in 1968, then delayed for a year by the provincial government and finally confirmed last June by the two boards concerned, has been the subject of bitter controversy.

While a Tweed ratepayer's group fought to retain the RSS pupil high school, the separate school board proceeded with plans to renovate the building for a senior elementary school extending through grade 10 and the county board maintained its intention of ceasing to offer secondary education in the building this June, whether or not the sale was completed.

Social Service Project Available to Students

There may be a lot of young people out of work but there are still a few things that they may do to have an interesting and rewarding summer.

One of these options open to young people 15 years of age and over is the training program and summer of social service sponsored by a group known as Project Christopher.

Project Christopher is North America's first teenage peace corps; formed in 1965, the organization is non-denominational and receives an annual grant from the Canada Council.

The corps operates in four countries at this time — Canada, the United States, Mexico and Guyana — and will expand in the future.

Participants pay a share of the cost involved; this amounts to about $125 per individual to go toward the cost of transportation, accommodation and food, for the period from July 5 to August 14 while the teenagers are serving in posts throughout the four countries.

Also included in a summer with Project Christopher is a week of re-evaluation at a Wisconsin resort spot; at this get-together in mid-August participants will exchange ideas and compare results.

Usually those who participat roll up their sleeves to build new buildings or paint old ones in poor areas. Additionally, recreation and craft programs for the very aged are now.

Some groups have gone to the Northwest Territories, others to Chicago's east side. One group even operated a daycare centre in El Paso, Texas. More than 85 Canadians participated in the program last year and this year about 100 are being sent.

Two of the supervisors of the program are in Belleville now; they are John Ireland of the University of Southern Illinois and Steve Turner of the University of British Columbia.

The two students have slated a public meeting in St. Thomas parish hall at 8 p.m. this Wednesday evening to explain the project to other interested youth.

The training centre for Project Christopher this summer will be in Ontario Fathers' camp on Waupoos Island off Prince Edward County. Local youth may participate in the week-long training program whether or not they wish to enter the Project Christopher work.

Cost for the training week is $22 including food and accommodation at the Island resort. During the week, participants will be briefed by other young people who have been involved in the project during past years as well as a number of competent lecturers, one being an American university professor.

ANAF News

Blood for Peace, Thursday, June 25th is the date and the Canara Club is the place. Remember, the blood you can give will help others to live. Be a blood donor, the need is always great — always.

There was a very good turnout for the initiation ceremony last Thursday evening with President R. G. Burns acting as chairman. A good number of initiates were on hand and were warmly welcomed into the ANAF and the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 as the ritual ended. The meeting adjourned to the lower lounge where the members were entertained with varied organ selections by Cam Walsh on his electric organ. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening for ended with the members hoping for another one like it in the near future.

Anyone wishing to continue to receive the Veteran Advocate can get in touch with Archie Jordan or Art Hobbs. Subscriptions are now due.

The Quinte Highland Weekend, sponsored by the Kinsmen Club, should be a stellar attraction for those of Scottish extraction and others who enjoy the pipes and dances. Scheduled for July 3rd, whose outfit were lucky enough to have a pipe band on strength. How the skirl of the pipes and the beat of the drums would make them lift their heads and straighten their shoulders under the heavy packs as they neared camp after a twenty mille route march. Anyhow, there is something in that wild music that makes one forget fatigue and sore feet. On Saturday June 27, a Tartan Dance will be held on the Armory floor with dress optional and on Sunday, June 28 the big Tattoo of the massed pipe bands and Scottish dancers will be at the Belleville Fairgrounds with the finest entertainment for young and old alike. Don't miss the colorful spectacle of these bonnie lassies and laddies doing what they like best.

The only comrade in hospital at this time is H. Wright who is in the Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Trenton Sells Debentures

TRENTON (Staff) — At its last regular session before the summer recess, town council sold Trenton's 1970 debentures totalling $180,000.

Burgess Graham Company tendered the high bid of $98.277 on the hundred, which council approved, noting that it was a sizable increase over last year when the town got less than $97 on the hundred.

The debentures were sold at a 9¼ per cent interest rate, payable annually for both the $96,321 five-year sum and the $123,679 figure.

After considerable discussion, council left unchanged the eight per cent charge for tax arrears, but council authorized the administrative board to conduct research to see if the rate should be raised to 12 per cent for commercial property.

Youth Theatre For Church Hall

Despite the fact that summer is upon us, theatre is still in the air.

Several Belleville young people have gotten together to organize a summer theatre at St. Thomas' Parish Hall the site of the old Forum.

Called The Experimental Youththeatre, the organization was formed to enable young people in Belleville to continue or to become involved in theatre.

"One of the reasons for the summer theatre was the fact that the Belleville Theatre Guild closes up for the summer," explained Bob Reynolds, one of the organizers of the project.

Of the theatre's 45 to 50 members, many of them have been members of the guild.

Mr. Reynolds added that membership fees would be charged to pay for royalties and such necessities as a makeup kit.

The plays will be directed by young amateurs. Although most of them have experience in theatre.

Members who have decided to direct have got together and picked out some plays.

Many of them will be theatre in the round — plays with the audience almost completely around the players with the aisles serving as entranceways and exits.

The theatre organization hopes to present its first production within a month. All the plays will be one act length and will be staggered so that there is something happening every three weeks.

For intermission, a coffeehouse atmosphere will be set up in the parish hall.

Unsung Artists Hard at It

Painting is for canvas, right?

The deft strokes of the brush dipped in paint bring the scene magically to life with skill and art.

There are a group of 'artists' in Belleville who use concrete instead of conventional canvas and paint as seen by more people in the city than at any art gallery.

The concrete is, of course, our city streets and the artists are members of the Belleville Public Works Department who annually renew the traffic lines on the streets.

From early spring, the men have been painting solid lines, crosswalks, broken lines, curb sides and directional arrows.

Last year, the department painted a total of 143,614 feet of white lines on the streets.

Years ago this job had to be done by hand, but today there is a special machine that emits the paint in an even line. All the men have to do is follow the instructions previously put down by the road crews.

There is only one problem: in putting down fresh paint on the streets in daytime and that is the lack of 'wet paint' signs.

Motorists beware, Your tires may be the next to be made completely whitewall.

That Artistic Touch

Belleville Public Works department employee Glenn McDonald applies a thick band of paint to a crosswalk on Bridge Street East at Charles Street. The annual renewal of crosswalk and traffic line paint extends from May to October and last year totalled 143,614 feet of white paint.

Unified Health Services Big Step Forward: Potter

LAKE COUCHICHING — All medical training should be placed under the department of education and a greater health - care role given auxiliary medical personnel, Dr. Richard Potter said here last night.

Such changes would help ease pressures on the staffing a comprehensive Ontario medicare program, the Quinte MPP told the Ontario Associated Nursing Homes Inc. last night.

Provision of trained personnel to properly administer such a program is the greatest concern, he said.

"I believe that the first step in this direction would be to place the training and education of all medical personnel, including doctors, dentists, nurses, technicians and those in the paramedical field, under the department of education."

"Much greater emphasis must be placed on the training of auxiliary personnel to relieve physicians and dentists alike of the tremendous burden they are now carrying."

Already, the US is setting an example in such fields, Dr. Potter said.

"There is no reason why Canadian medicine cannot more fully utilize the training and abilities of registered nurses.

"Today, we find too much of their time devoted to paper work rather than patient care. With very little more training they could play a much greater role in medicine."

First step toward a comprehensive program should be the integration of the present three provincial health care agencies — OHSIP, the Ontario Hospital Services Commission and the Health Insurance Registration Board.

With such innovations — and co-operation of the medical professions — a total-care program can be successfully established, said Dr. Potter.

"In instituting a total health plan the cost, of course, would be tremendous, and there is no way it could be launched as one fell swoop," said Dr. Potter. Nevertheless, I believe that it must be begun. Arrangements must be made for financing, perhaps by means of a five - year plan, and, the various phases of the program instituted on a priority basis."

Huyck's Point Site?

on to remain undisturbed, informed this newspaper that the Royal Trust Company has taken options on land near Huyck's Point.

The federal and provincial governments are encouraging location of the Kraft paper mill on the lakefront between Trenton and Belleville as a feeder mill operation in the Bancroft district.

Together the projects could employ close to 1,500 persons.

Transportation, accessibility to markets and facility to transport wood to the mills were listed by the companies. International Paper Company spokesman as requirements for the plant's location.

He said that highway, water and rail access will be necessary for the mill to be considered in any complete plan.

Picton Mayor Harvey J. McFarland noted that water off Huyck's Point was between 34 and 37 feet deep, providing a harbor site suitable for ocean - going vessels.

Mayor McFarland said: "I would say this area has the inside rule."

Other advantages he mentioned were good drainage and close proximity to the Canadian National Railways line linking Marmora to Picton.

A similar industry utilizing a main plant and a satellite operation is that of the Bethlehem Steel with mine and iron ore smelters at Marmora and rolling mills at Picton on the Highshore Road near Picton.

Mayor McFarland stressed that the whole Hastings region would benefit from the establishment of such an operation, which could require a 2,500 acre block of land.

Norris Whitney said "it would bring a lot of employment and spin up the area."

"I understand that the newer paper plants don't have the disagreeable features of the older ones," he added.

"I think the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the air pollution people would be actively involved to keep harm to the environment at a minimum." He emphasized.

"Providing all the conditions work out for the best I would be very happy to see it in industry of this size locate here," the Prince Edward - Lennox MPP concluded.

The Picking Comes Easy With Strawberry Snitcher

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — As the strawberry season reaches its peak, fruit pickers at Windy Acres are lying down on the job with their bosses' approval. Stretched face down across a wooden platform propelled slowly forward by a three horsepower gasoline engine, workers at the West Lake farm of Reginald Windatt pick fruit from Prince Edward's only "strawberry snitcher."

Mr. Windatt, who operates a fruit and vegetable stand near his farm, built the machine three years ago with the help of his sons, John and Reginald.

The design was copied in part from one pioneered by a fruit specialist in Vineland Station. Although the machine is a time saver it is primarily valued by the Windatts because it eliminates "stramping" in their eight acre berry patch.

Since the fruit pickers riding the machine have no chance to put a foot down, plants avoid being crushed and broken.

Two men are required to operate the mechanized strawberry picker — one worker steers and supplies boxes while his companion turns full boxes in on a conveyer belt.

Lying on the narrow wings of the machine from 12 to 14 pickers can reach forward and pick the fruit from each plant.

Mr. Windatt notes a picker riding the machine can turn in about 100 boxes of strawberries each day. Picking by hand, the average worker can fill about 65 boxes before quitting time. Pickers are paid at an hourly rate instead of by the box when working from the machine's platform. Fewer pickers are required using the machine, paving the way for closer supervision if possible.

All pickers, observes Mr. Windatt, seem to prefer riding the machine to bending in the patch to pick by hand.

Foam rubber pads tossed over the platform of the snitcher provide a soft touch for workers. Strawberries picked at Windy Acres are marketed in Belleville, Peterborough, Napanee and Kingston. Dozens of boxes also are sold from the family's roadside fruit stand.

For those who believe that there is nothing new under the sun, Reginald Windatt's cherry pitter could supply a jolt to complacency. Constructed by his sons, the pitter is planned to make canning a breeze for modern housewife. By examining the one or two similar machines and taking a few notes, Mr. Windatt's son, John, an employee of General Motors, was able to provide the design for the pitter.

Throughout strawberry patches in Prince Edward County this week pickers are breathing — except at Windy Acres where work becomes a snitch until the strawberry snitcher - A short distance from the Windatt farm, berry pickers are laboring industriously in a huge patch owned by West Lake farmer Cecil Robertson. Amongst the hazards to fruit picking machines, Mr. Kleinhuber does have a claim to fame in his berry patch. Periodically a telephone bell peals sharply in the field, and like Oliver of Green Acres, this farmer hurries to answer the phone installed on a table near his fence. Farming in Prince Edward apparently is becoming increasingly progressive.

Northern Strike Off After Workers' Vote

A strike by Northern Electric employees was averted yesterday as a result of a referendum vote passed by the 800 employees.

At present the hiring rate for women employees is $2.11 per hour, men receive $2.36 per hour.

With the approval of the new rates, the starting wage for women will increase this year to $2.36, men to $2.50. Over the next two years, this rate will increase further.

The range, according to workers' grade positions, is a total increase from 39 cents to 69 cents over the two-year period.

This means that by 1972, the lowest grade female employee will start at $2.50, the men at $2.75, which is a 5.4 per cent increase for women, a 6.0 per cent increase for men.

Effective in June of this year, Northern Electric will pay the full costs of the OHSIP (Medicare) and the OHSC (Hospitalization) plan for the life of the agreement. Effective in 1971, the company will pay the full costs of the Ontario Blue Cross Extended Health Care Plan ($10-$20 deductible) for the life of the agreement. In March of 1971, the EME Plan is to be discontinued.

There are also changes in vacation plans.

Effective in 1970, three weeks vacation will be granted to employees of nine years, four weeks for 19-year employees. This level will be reduced over the next two years so that by 1972 a 7-year employee will receive three weeks vacation and a 15-year employee will receive four weeks.

Also on the holiday plan, December 28, Boxing Day will in future be a guaranteed holiday.

Double time is to be paid to employees for all hours worked on a plant holiday in addition to its regular plant holiday pay.

Last week it was voted by the employees at stage a strike if their demands were not met, but this will not happen as a result of the new agreements.

Cannon May Boom Again

TRENTON (Staff) — The old cannon on top of Mount Pelion may boom again.

Monday evening council granted Gabriel Bourget the power to examine the cannon, at no expense to the town, to determine if it can be restored to workable condition.

Mr. Bourges suggested that the cannon on Trenton's highest landmark would add a nice touch during festive occasions.

Trenton Avoids Suit Over Ice Machine

TRENTON (Staff) — This town is in a predicament.

Trenton council learned Monday evening that Trenton is one of many Ontario communities faced with an apparently unbeatable infringement of a patent rights suit.

The suit involves an ice resurfacing machine purchased by the town in 1967 from a Schomberg firm which has since folded.

Trenton's law firm advised council last night in a letter that they are represented by 23 Ontario municipalities on behalf of the Ontario Arena Association. In an attempt to reach a settlement with a Mr. Zambroni who holds patent rights for the Zambroni ice machine.

Council was told that the law firm has been instructed by its clients to accept a settlement of $625.

Acceptance of the settlement figure would provide a release for all claims for prior use and a license to operate the machine at any time in the future, council was informed.

A member of the law firm felt a better settlement was possible, but would ultimately prove more expensive because of Mr. Zambroni's intention of fighting the case to the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary.

Trenton will also have to pay a $250 retainer fee to the law firm and the total cost to the town is expected to be known by the end of June.

Accepting councillor Neil Robertson's statement that council be caught as we might as well pay and get out," council reluctantly agreed to retain the Toronto law firm and settle for $625.

Many of the youngsters working for Mr. Gentile arrived by bus from Belleville yesterday. Depending on their speed, pickers can earn from $8 to $13 a day.

Mr. Gentile said today that he expects a season's yield of 170,000 quarts of berries from his fields, an average of 18,000 quarts per acre.

Fashion Hiatus

Slowly but probably inexorably the fashion industry is grinding toward the potential disaster area of next fall's midi caper.

The designers of course are hell-bent on killing the mini which they regard as having overstayed its welcome, and besides is inexpensive and consequently bad for business. Paris fashion houses in particular are anti-mini, for those same reasons of economics, and also because it was invented in England — by Mary Quant who, just to complicate matters, is Welsh.

Miss Quant herself has forsaken her creation, in her latest showing, despite having once described it as "a classic that will never be replaced."

In any event there are signs that women are not going to be so easily won over to the longer lengths. Back in March Joyce Carter of The Globe and Mail said there were lots of groans and giggles, but only scattered applause as a well-known department store showed up a smorgasbord of hemlines to a mighty skeptical audience."

Described as the "only comprehensive Canadian showing of original haute couture models from Paris and Rome," the writer said it was the first show in years in which the young models managed to look older than the middle-aged women who came to watch.

Moving on to the present we note a report from Paris which says that with fine summer weather the girl scene on the Champs Elysee reveals about 20 minis to each midi. Unsold stocks of midis as well as minis will be said to be piling up in many stores while those who backed the new look and stocked ultra-short styles report record sales.

It is an interesting situation which recalls the appraisal of actress Meredith MacRae not long ago. The daughter of singer Gordon MacRae, she described midi skirts as the fashion designers' way of making money, adding: They are so unflattering."

And that seems to be the way it is these days. There is scarcely a midi in sight in these parts at least, and only uncertainty as to fashion's immediate future.

Brief Span

The death of an attractive young San Francisco teenager, Florencia Gomez, has baffled pathologists. She entered hospital recently complaining of "flu" symptoms. An examining physician apparently agreed and gave her a prescription, but on the way to the hospital pharmacy she collapsed.

Coroner Henry Turkel said she died from massive hardening of the coronary arteries which supply blood to the heart and called the case an "extreme medical rarity." Pathologists said they had never seen anything like it in a patient under 30.

Strange indeed are the ways of man and nature — of life spans which can range from the brief flowering of a pretty young girl to the centenarian status achieved by many of our senior citizens.

Fast Moving

North Americans like to look upon themselves as quick to make decisions and even faster to put them into effect.

But one of the sidelights of the recent British election proves we can still learn a few tricks from the old country politicians.

It was only a matter of hours before a moving truck was in front of 10 Downing Street removing the personal effects of the ex-prime minister, with another one on its tailgate waiting to move in Prime Minister Edward Heath.

It was an eye-opener in the speedy turnover of government.

Now, if Canadian politicians could only move as fast . . . ?

New Faces for Old

Monarchists among us may be sorry to see the face of the Queen disappear from four of our Canadian bills.

However, it is hard to argue with the decision to pay tribute to our Canadian heritage by having four men who played major roles in the development of our country — Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir John A. Macdonald, William Lyon Mackenzie King and Sir Robert Borden.

It is also fitting that our country which is growing into mature statehood should add a little more color to the new series of bills.

A little more color and respect for our past . . . It's a good combination to put to use in enlisting the Swinging Seventies.

Stanfield Tells True Story of Pearson's Budget Defeat

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It says something very basically reassuring for Conservatives — Leader — Robert Stanfield that in what he clearly considered the national interest, he should have sacrificed what may have been the one great opportunity to become Prime Minister.

It also says something for the quality of responsibility of this quiet, low - key man that until now, he has not breathed a word publicly about what could have been the watershed decision of his long political years.

And perhaps he might never have disclosed it had he not been provoked.

For more than two years, Robert Stanfield has been blamed and ridiculed — bitterly condemned as a disastrous failure by many Conservatives — for not pressing his overwhelming advantage that night in March of 1968 when the minority Liberal Government of former Prime Minister Lester Pearson was defeated in the Commons on a budget vote.

By all the rules and traditions of Parliament that should have been the end of the Pearson Government. For no defeat in the Commons can bring the enshrouding of political death so automatically as a budget beating.

Remember how it was back then?

Robert Stanfield had been Conservative Leader only six months and his stock was high and still soaring on the vote market.

Lester Pearson, his welcome long worn out, was at the end of his leadership days, with a half dozen of his Cabinet ministers hard for the great prize of the prime ministership he was giving up.

Fatigued by 10 years as party leader, five of them as Prime Minister, he was resting in the land of the Caribbean sun and sand, — and the roof fell in on the government. One of Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's budget bills had come a cropper.

In panic, Lester Pearson flew back to Ottawa, pleaded with the triumphant new Conservative Leader for 24 hours of grace.

Robert Stanfield agreed.

Lester Pearson tinkered with the traditional rules of Parliament, changing the meaning of the word defeat as the Commons for the years has understood it.

There was another vote. The Creditistes changed their minds, switched their few key votes from the Opposition to the Government, and Lester Pearson's Liberals were given a reprieve.

Came the Liberal leadership convention and Pierre Elliott Trudeau as Prime Minister; the election and the dramatic defeat of Robert Stanfield.

By giving Lester Pearson those crucial 24 hours, tried his critics, he had transformed certain victory into decisive defeat.

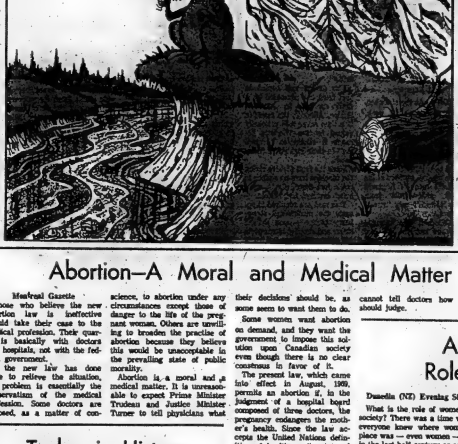
And that, until now was what nearly everybody believed — except for Robert Stanfield and perhaps Lester Pearson and Mitchell Sharp — it had been.

That is the way the record might have remained, too, had not Finance Minister Benson irritated him with the claim that last June 25 he had forced financial crisis was back in 1962 when former Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker had devalued the dollar.

Now Canada was revaluing, crowed Mr. Benson, and since there was no crisis, as such, there had been no need to consult the Opposition.

Wrong, protested Mr. Stanfield, there had been a crisis since '62 — just two years ago when the Canadian dollar was under dangerous attack by speculators on the international exchange markets.

So swift was the sag of the dollar that Pearson Government — in which Pierre Trudeau was then Justice Minister — was compelled to cry for rescue by both Washington and the International Monetary Fund.



As the pressure on the dollar mounted, Robert Stanfield now has disclosed, Lester Pearson and Mitchell Sharp came to him to confide just how desperately critical the situation was.

They asked no favors, he has been cleared since disclosed. Their Government had been beaten on the budget bill, but they did not plead with Robert Stanfield not to press the Conservative advantage and force an election. They simply told him how dicey it was with the dollar. And they left it with him.

He made up his own mind. In the name of responsibility and the national interest he gave Lester Pearson those 24 hours to regroup, reorganize.

To have done otherwise might have been to destroy the Government, plunge the country into election and send the sinking dollar to the depths of national financial disaster.

But what a decision to face — and make.

Abortion—A Moral and Medical Matter

Montreal Gazette

Those who believe the new abortion law is ineffective should take their case to the medical profession. Their quarrel is basically with doctors and hospitals, not with the federal government.

If the new law has done little to relieve the situation, the problem is essentially the conservatism of the medical profession. Some doctors are militantly opposed, as a matter of conscience, to abortion under any circumstances except those of danger to the life of the pregnant woman. Others are unwilling to broaden the practise of abortion because they believe this would be unacceptable to the prevailing state of public morality.

Abortion is a moral and a medical matter. It is unreasonable to expect Prime Minister Trudeau and Justice Minister Turner to tell physicians what their decisions should be, as some seem to want them to do.

Some women want abortion on demand, and they want the government to impose this solution upon Canadian society even though there is no clear consensus in favor of it.

The present law, which came into effect in August, 1969, permits an abortion if, in the judgment of a hospital board composed of three doctors, the pregnancy endangers the mother's health. Since the law accepts the United Nations definition of health as "a state of physical, mental and emotional well - being," it is clear that it gives the doctors the widest possible latitude.

It would be heartless to try to deny that a number of unwanted pregnancies are terminated by non-medical operators and that a number of others are endured with serious consequences for the well-being of the mother.

This does not justify the kind of permissiveness that would allow abortion under any circumstances. It does necessitate a serious and compassionate judgment as to whether the pregnancy is a grave physiological or psychological risk. Only the medical profession can make these judgments and the law, written by laymen, cannot tell doctors how they should judge.

Another Look at the Role of Women Today

Dunedin (NZ) Evening Star

What is the role of women in society? There was a time when everyone knew where women's place was — even women — but in the last century or so the subject has become so confused that no one can say for certain any more — not for long anyway.

An indication of just how difficult it is was given at a meeting of the National Development Council (recently) when Mrs. R. K. Dell, who had been engaged in some argument on the topic with male members of the council, said: "Women want to be treated as individuals — not as women." Presumably what she meant was that women want to be treated by men, obviously) as equals — in fact, just as men.

Just how many women Mrs. Dell thought she was speaking for she did not say, but oh rejection her proposition does not seem to be one that would appeal to a great many of her sex. Even in these days when women have entered many fields formerly reserved for men, when the same work side by side with men at the same job, there is still a difference. And, it is to be hoped, there always will be.

The point is that, no matter how many of them want to aspire in that direction, women are not men. They may be as good as men — indeed in certain jobs, but in asking for women to be treated as individuals rather than as women, Mrs. Dell is asking for somethint that is fundamentally, impossible. And, for that matter, fundamentally undesirable.

Some Communist countries have introduced sexual equality, sexual uniformity, to the extent that male and female workers, male and female soldiers, even are almost indistinguishable. Were the communists ever to be expected to meet common standards of performance. These unisexual people do, however, have a weak desh, deepening appearance and it is hard to imagine anyone in the country wanting to copy them.

Admittedly, some of the instant fashions for the young are going the unisex road, but they are a very different thing from the Chinese man's and women's pajama suits, for instance. The young people's objective is to express not sameness but the oneness that typifies the true male-female relationship.

It is that relationship also if the reason why men will never be able to regard women simply as individuals. No matter how much striving there may be to eliminate "la difference," men and women were created in separate moulds and have their separate but combined parts to play. Equality is all very well, but sameness is something that no neither possible nor desirable.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 12, 1970 . . .

Robert Clive, East India Company's military commander, won the battle of Plassey 213 years ago today — in 1757 — and dragged Bengal-ja-ud-Dowlah, who had invaded Calcutta and imprisoned English survivors in the Black Hole, where most of them died in a single night. On his return to England after two terms as governor of Bengal, Clive was accused of corruption, but a parliamentary inquiry commended him for "meritorious services to the state."

1885—The Star Chamber suspended print shops in England.

1838—Lady Hester Stanhope, adventurer, died.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — 1 — Marshal Erich Von Manstein's British were reported ready to accept a United States plan to hold a collective trial of German war criminals before a high military tribunal: It was announced that U.S. forces had captured Agarti, Luzon port, and paratroopers landed near Agarti to start the final battle of the Cagayan Valley.

Lesson of History

Current Ferment Can Lead to a Better World

Christian Science Monitor

Mankind today is in a state of unparalleled intellectual development. Everywhere, even in the remotest corners of the globe, there is a vast and significant intellectual stirring. Men, women, and even children are thinking, pondering, weighing, studying, and questioning to a degree never before seen in human history.

No one need be told that this state of mental activity has already wrought tremendous changes in man's thinking and that it foreshadows even mightier changes in the days and years to come. Nor need anyone be told that this ferment is a two-sided coin, one side bright and sparkling with promise, the other side dull and threatening with new problems, new threats, new breakdowns in men's relationships. In short, this is a period when incredible good and evil elements are coming to the surface.

Nor is it any wonder that many thoughtful men, looking upon this seething and bubbling, sometimes ask themselves where it will end, what it portends, how it can be controlled, what must be done to meet today's challenges most surely and constructively. Some become pessimistic and gloomy when facing the task of confronting today's unparalleled upheavals. Others, recalling mankind's long but steady climb upward, look upon today's overturning as a great, golden opportunity for progress if properly understood and intelligious measures are organized.

This newspaper, and the relishes it, remain steadfastly convinced that all such periods of upheaval come only because mankind is ready for new and higher steps. And we see today's ferment as proof that men are now not merely willing but determined to think beyond so many of those frozen attitudes and formulas of the past which hindered progress and so often left men fettered to outworn attitudes and dogmas.

Yet the question remains: How can this new readiness to progress, how can this urge to forge a better world be guaranteed of success? How can men be sure that the violence, the tension, the tearing-apart which accompanies today's upheaval be kept from nullifying and destroying the good which is struggling to be born? How, in fact, can the present time's great intellectual stirring be made fully fruitful?

History provides the answer and the guidelines. For history has shown that intellectual ferment and stirring are productive in the degree that they do not lose sight of the great, timeless moral and spiritual imperatives. The founder of this newspaper, Mary Baker Eddy, wrote that "Every step of progress is a step more spiritual." In the end no intellectual achievement, however brilliant, permanently blesses the human race unless it raises the latter's level of moral and spiritual outlook. When it does, progress and the solution of human problems are assured.

50th Wedding Celebrated By Couple

A most enjoyable event took place recently at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, when Mr. and Mrs. Cyril McMullen entertained their children and family to dinner on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The attractive tea table was centred with a beautiful three-tier anniversary cake and flanked with golden tapers.

Following the dinner all went to the home of the couple's daughter Mrs. Howard (Fern) Rouse where a happy time was spent. On behalf of the family a money tree was presented to the honored guests, after which voices were recorded on tape and piano music by the "bride's" brother - in - law George Campbell was enjoyed. All of the immediate family attended with the exception of the bride's sister Mrs. Nora Cummings, Edmonton, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. McMullen were married in Holloway Street United Church parsonage 50 years ago by the late Rev. A. H. Foster. Mrs. McMullen is the former Ada E. Gay, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Gay who resided in Sidney Township. Mr. McMullen, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McMullen, who was born in Rawdon Township, north of Stirling has lived in the Alnwick community for the past 58 years. Both are active in church and community affairs.

Ameliasburg Couple Mark 60th Anniversary

AMELIASBURG — Like so many young couples during that year of uncertainty, childhood sweethearts from the second concession of Ameliasburg — George "S. Harris and Luella Brown — decided to get married and share each others affections before Hitley's comet slammed into the Earth.

The wedding took place at Trenton at 5 p.m. June 22, 1910, and yesterday on the occasion of their diamond anniversary (60 years) Mr. and Mrs. Harris who now live in the village of Carrying Place were honored as hosts at a quiet family party.

The setting was the prize-winning Century farm of their son-in-law Floyd Huffman at RR8, Ameliasburg.

Mr. Harris remembered courtship comment concerned the moon-sired space phenomenon streaking across the sky with a great fiery tail behind it They watched the spectacle from a horse drawn buggy which was still the popular mode of transportation although horseless carriages were appearing with more frequency in centres of Belleville and Trenton.

The 'groom' recalled the wedding day as quite normal but added a special regrets for the marriage licence. By this time he was at Trenton on the way to the church.

His forgetfulness meant twin brother Lewis who acted as best man had to turn around and go back over the seven mile route and return before the ceremony could be solemnized. "For a marriage that seemed to start off on the wrong foot Hitley's improved and worked out for the best," said Mr. Harris.

It wasn't long afterwards that the Haley's threat passed with the comet continuing its celestial journey and disappearing from view for another 76 odd years according to Mr. Harris.

After the newlyweds attended a reception given for them at the Gilbert Hotel in Trenton they travelled to Colborne for their honeymoon. They returned to the Harris farm on the second concession where they lived until May 1976.

The union produced three children — two sons, George R. Harris of Carrying Place, Andrew Harris of Trenton and a daughter Mrs. Floyd (Norma) Huffman of RR2, Ameliasburg. Also four grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Yesterday their only granddaughter Mrs. Harold Whaley of Belleville poured tea. The servers were great-grand daughter Heather Whaley of Belleville, great niece Linda Forrester of Oshawa and her friend Shirley Carr of Trenton.

The gifts and cards they received included special messages of congratulations from the Queen and federal and provincial parliamentarians.

A Treat to Treasure

The occasion was very special for Bonnie Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Whaley of Belleville. She was at the family gathering for her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. George S. Harris of Carrying Place who celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary yesterday. She showed them the cake that was baked for them to mark the event.

Simple Operation Solves Many Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is now abundantly clear to even the most simply-headed fools that something drastic must be done within the next decade to limit the size of families or we are all doomed.

Now that the country has been scared out of its wits about the side effects of the pill — with very poor evidence, according to my doctor — there will be many more unwanted pregnancies. True, the abortion laws are being liberalized — in some states (as encouraging sign that we are emerging from the Dark Ages) — but still many women will die because the change in laws didn't come soon enough to their state.

ANN LANDERS

Ann Landers

Isn't this choice far as grossly unfair. Why must it be the sole responsibility of the female to keep from getting pregnant? After all, the male carries the sperm that fathers the child. A simple operation, called a vasectomy can be performed in a doctor's office. It sterilizes the male without affecting his sexual prowess. After a couple has had two children (which seems to be the ideal size for our hooked-up world) the husband could put an end to his wife's anxiety about getting pregnant by having this simple surgical procedure. What do you say? Are you with me? — M.I.M.

DEAR M.I.M.: My medical consultants tell me a "vasectomy is a safe, sane operation and it is no way reduces a man's virility — only his fertility. It has solved a good many marital problems and it could solve many more. Yes, I'm with you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wonder if you realize what's the tremendous weapon you wield in your column. I refer to the letter from the tramp who said she had been having an affair with a city official whose wife was in poor health. I'm sure a great many city officials were made uncomfortable by that column.

I happen to be a city official whose wife is in poor health. My wife reads your column every day — and so do I. Frequently she points out letters which she thinks are especially good. Sometimes she says, "Doesn't this remind you of So-and-So?" Today she was noticeably silent. It was one of the few columns she didn't comment on. She seemed a little sad all day.

The fact that a man's wife is not in the best of health health doesn't give him the license to fool around. I've had some interesting offers, but I wouldn't trade my wife for any woman in the world. Even though she is sick a lot, she's the only girl in the world for me. Please print this. — A CITY OFFICIAL.

* * *

DEAR OFFICIAL: On behalf of every city official in the United States (who isn't fooling around) I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I spent the weekend with a friend who went to the big city to work last year. We were high school classmates. I was surprised to find that every one of her towels and dishes has the name of a big hotel on it. I asked how she got away with all that stuff. She laughed and said — "Practice!" When I told her I'd be afraid to try, she said, "Hotels expect it. It's included in the bill." Is this true? Is what she does O.K. — MNX.

DEAR MNX: What your friend means is that hotel rates are higher because of thieves like her. Someone has to absorb the cost of the stealing. Do I think it is O.K.? I do not. A person has no more right to take a towel from a hotel than from a department store.

Coats Going to Midi Length for Fall

EDMONTON (CP) — "Coats, out here are going down in the calf this fall—there's no doubt in my mind at all," says Nadean Smith, co-owner of an Edmonton high-fashion dress shop.

Her statement is borne out by other fashion buyers on the Prairies. Most stores are planning to bring in midi lengths this fall, for young buyers at least.

Even for the older, more conservative women, hemlengths are creeping down. The average coat length this fall is 39 inches, which for most women is at the knee, said a department store coat buyer.

The midi, which they are bringing in for the younger set, averages 46 inches.

"Midi coats probably won't make up 50 per cent of our sales," said Carmen Heath, another buyer, "but we will be selling a lot of them. And almost all coats will be a little longer, any two inches or so."

Midi-length dresses and skirts will be extras in the wardrobes of most women, Mrs. Smith, a former fashion model, said.

"But coats are definitely going to be midi. You have to have a midi coat to wear over even one midi-length dress or skirt.

"And they also can look good with short skirts and even with pants."

Martha Allen, commentator for fashion shows in Regina, called the midi "an influence on the more literate people so that every length will be all right."

She believes that all lengths will be in fashion, allowing women to use their own good sense and taste rather than being a slave to one.

But even if the midi is the big fashion news this fall, girl-watchers need not despair.

"Almost all the midis I've bought for fall have a leg opening," Mrs. Smith said. "Leather skirts with lacing down the left leg, zippers with openings up the front, buttons down both sides."

Gordon Goodwin, a merchandising manager, said his Winnipeg store has a midi department with stock in excess of 300 coats.

He said the midi is definitely in, but that it will not be accepted overnight. For many women, the move to midi would be gradual.

Alex Krolik, a Saskatoon furrier, agrees that hem lengths are going down in fur coats as well. He is bringing in lengths to the knee and a few below the knee.

Mr. Krolik said he bypassed the maxi coat because he didn't think women were ready for it. But he thinks the midi has its place, of course and the fashion industry is tired of the short look.

However, the fashion experts agree that if a woman wants to wear the midi length, she ought to wear it properly.

"It's an elegant look," said Mrs. Heath. "But you've got to have the total look, including the right hat, boots, maybe a muff."

Mrs. Heath agreed: "That's right. It's a look, not just a coat or dress or skirt."

A junior fashion buyer in Edmonton said he had not liked the midi when he first saw it being shown.

"But recently I saw a show where the designer had really put the look together well. The skirts were split, giving a tantalizing look at the leg. There were elongated pockets. And the waist was back."

Coat colors for fall will mostly be dark, rich jewel colors.

"Plum and burgundy look big this fall," Mrs. Heath said. "Green, too. It might be the sleeper. We haven't had a green fall for a while, with that lovely forest green."

Mrs. Heath said she was also bringing in a lot of dark brown, especially in leathers.

"And black might be coming back, too."

Marriages Must Be Brought Down to Earth

By DORIS CLARK

"Marriages are made in Heaven. That's what's wrong with them!" This comment came from a marriage counsellor. What she meant was that if a marriage is to succeed it has to come down to earth.

People expect too much total happiness, the impossible! The wife and mother finds herself at home alone. She is lonely. When father comes home he wants peace — not a long report of Junior's misdeeds.

More than likely he wants peace all evening. Not interrupted by having to go some place.

Because of the unreal expectation of bliss, basic misunderstandings develop that with some people last a lifetime. Mary wants a Christmas present every day. John wants to be fussed over even when he is grumpy.

Unless both are willing to see it like it is, and pitch in to make it work, wedded bliss can be painfully disillusioning.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'd like some information on children with learning disabilities. I don't mean brain damage in the sense of mental retardation.

I mean such disabilities as not being able to tell right from left; a short attention span; easily frustrated, distractible, disorganized, poor reader. Does poorly in some subjects and above average in others.

People tend to regard the child who has an unrecognized learning disability as bad, lazy or stupid. What is the cause and what can one do for such a child?

— I Have One.

Dear Have One: A missing link in early learning experience is usually blamed. If a child has had a long illness at age three or four and then moves into school without having experienced some of the sensations and discoveries which usually take place ahead of school, he may show this gap by some confusion.

With special care, optimism and a heap of encouragement you can bridge the gap, often. He may need remedial reading, or a tutor, for a while. My 20 - cent booklet, "Children With Learning Disabilities," is on it's way. * * *

Dear Doris: I have a high forehead and I look funny with my hair all pulled back. How should I wear it?

My hair is long and I don't want to cut it at all, even for bangs. — Fair Hair.

Dear Fair: Bangs are a great help to bring down a high forehead. But if you can't have those, we'll have to think of something else.

Make a short part at one side and drape your hair to the side, gently falling over the forehead. This will detract from the height of it. * * *

(Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Stock Exchange and Welfare Council Take Opposite Views on Tax Reforms

OTTAWA (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange said Monday that government tax-change proposals put too much stress on short-term social fairness at the expense of capital growth.

The Canadian Welfare Council said the tax-policy white paper would let the capitalists off too lightly at the cost of social justice.

A Commons finance sub-committee, which has been studying the proposals since soon after their publication last November, thus received diametrically-opposed opinions in a single afternoon sitting.

Neither submission came as a surprise to the finance committee, which has the task of sifting outside opinions before making final recommendations to Parliament.

The stock exchange president J. R. Kimber remarked, after stating his belief that private business is "a most efficient user of capital" in comparison with government:

"You would expect me to say that, of course, coming from (where I do)."

Similarly, although the welfare council's submission stood out in bleakly-worded gloom by business groups, its ideas had been made public June 4 when the senate committee on taxation was presented to the Senate banking committee.

The Toronto Stock Exchange, Canada's biggest, said it believes in the principle of using taxation to get a more equal distribution of income and for some tax on capital gains.

But the government has displayed excessive concern for fairness in the short run, while neglecting the danger that the proposed tax system would undo fairness over a long period.

"The Toronto Stock Exchange believes that a vigorous expansion of the Canadian economy is a prerequisite for the achievement of virtually all other economic and social goals.

"The attainment of a more equal distribution of income would be a fallow victory if the income which is divided is far smaller than it could have been."

Mr. Kimber also said the government should not be trying to reform the tax system all at once. Reform should be a continuous process, with changes governed by the needs of the country's economic development.

Specifically, the exchange opposed key features of the proposals for taxation of corporations, their shareholders and their capital gains.

Instead of taxing company dividends at the personal tax rates of the recipient, with allowances for actual corporate tax already paid, the exchange proposed retention of a modified version of the present system.

At present 20 per cent of dividend income is tax free, regardless of how much if any corporation tax has been paid by the company issuing the dividend. The stock exchange proposed a sliding scale of tax allowances ranging from 15 per cent for "high-income investors" to 25 per cent for "low-income investors."

Instead of taxing capital gains as income, including any paper gains on assets every five years, the exchange suggested only one-third of capital gains or losses should be taxed as income and then only when the asset is cashed in for a gain or loss.

In addition, no capital gains tax would be levied if the taxpayer shifted funds from one asset to another, keeping no cash in his pocket. Tax would be applied only when the taxpayer cashed in his investments or at death, when one-half the gain would be taxed and estate taxes would be moderated.

Labor Act Penalties Tougher

raising the tension between groups of striking workers."

He said the amendment would encourage some strikers to enter into special arrangements with employers and to break picket ranks, crossing the line to go back to work.

Earlier, Mr. Bales had hailed this provision as a first for North America, saying that no other labor relations act provides any period of time within which employers may not hire permanent replacements for striking employees.

However, David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said the amendment would violate the spirit of a recent Supreme Court decision that said no worker ceases to be an employee when exercising his legal right to strike, no matter how long the strike.

Both Mr. Archer and Dusse de Hestle (L—Downcourt) criticized the group bargaining provisions for construction contractors as being a step in strengthening of the hand of employers in the industry.

Mr. de Mestle said the change will lead to "one vast lock-out" in the construction industry, a similar legislation had done in British Columbia.

Mr. Bales said the amendments were based on study of the late Mr. Justice Ivan Rand's report on industrial disputes in Ontario, the federal Woods report on labor relations and a special study of the construction industry by experts John Crispo and Carl Goldenberg.

But the changes do not deal with several key recommendations in these reports including protection for workers in the face of technological change, restrictions on strike-breaking, disputes in essential industries or bargaining rights for civil servants.

Also rejected were recommendations by Mr. Rand for establishment of a labor tribunal with wide powers to interfere in industrial disputes and for turning unions into legal entities that can be sued for damages.

In place of provisions for suing, the amendments set up a system by which both companies and unions may be assessed limited damages by an arbitrator for either threatening or carrying out illegal strikes or lockouts.

Formerly damages could be assessed only where the work contract outlawed illegal strikes or lockouts, defined as occurring during the term of a collective contract and before conciliation procedures are completed.

Mr. Bales said an illegal strike threat would have to be a "real" threat before court action could be taken. For example, a union leader would have to threaten his employer with an illegal strike unless the employer agreed to certain terms.

The damage assessed by arbitrators could come on top of fines imposed by provincial courts for breaches of the Labor Relations Act. The bill proposes that these fines be increased to $1,000 from $500 for individuals and to $10,000 from $1,000 for unions or companies.

Although the terms of Mr. Rand's tribunal idea, the amendments would authorize the labor minister to appoint special industrial inquiry commissions to look into protracted disputes or disputes in essential industries.

Such commissions have already been authorized by law in seven other provinces and supplement the powers of conciliation boards by requiring them to report on disputes and influence public opinion by making their findings public.

Mr. Bales suggested at a news conference, however, that they could also be an instrument in enforcing the federal wage restraint program.

Other changes will allow unions access to company property for organizing workers, such as employees of a company who live on company grounds will still come under laws taken to ratify collective agreements are conducted by secret ballot.

A simple majority vote is required for certification of a union as a bargaining agent, but the percentage of the work forces needed to request such a vote would be raised to 35 per cent from 45 per cent.

At the same time, the percentage needed to withdraw bargain accreditation without a vote would be raised to 65 per cent from 55 per cent.

Other amendments would protect workers against discharge or discrimination for union activity.

Employers may not change they can prove their loss of income necessitated was for legitimate reasons against the union or against the level of dues and fees.

Individuals may also be exempted from paying dues to a union on religious grounds, if the money is given instead to a recognized charity and if the union agrees that such gift has already in effect upon hiring.

This last provision was a concession to the 1,000-member Christian Labor Association whose members refuse to pay dues to unions they consider to be organized for "secular" purposes only.

Plans Revealed for $7-Million Quinte Shopping Mall

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Late next year the shopping habits of 138,000 Quinte consumers will be tempted toward change by a $7,000,000 lure.

That's now the estimated cost of Belleville's north end shopping plaza — now named Quinte Mall — outlines of which were unwrapped for its future customers today.

Details of the biggest —and most controversial — commercial enterprise in the city's history, revealed at a preview conference by developer Cambridge Leaseholds, include these ready-reference highlights:

Construction — Will start this fall and take about 14 months to complete the 225,000-square-foot area.

Stores — Simpsons - Sears, a Steinberg's supermarket as major retailers; satellite stores and services totalling about 40 tenants.

Customer Features — Parking for 1,500 cars; shopping in an air-conditioned mall.

Local economics — About 300 full-time employees; estimated $2,000,000 annual payroll; $150,000 in new city tax revenue.

For Cambridge, today's formal unveiling of the project at the Sun Valley Motor Inn marked a safe arrival of the development after a tempestuous two-year passage.

The scheme, bitterly contested by commercial rivals, was tested through two Ontario Municipal Board hearings. At one point, its initial rejection by the OMB angered Belleville Kiwanis, stimulating a petition demanding the provincial government review the entire controversy.

The controversy however, had its benefits — as Cambridge vice-president David King told today's conference.

Because of the extended OMB hearings, Quinte Mall became "one of the most carefully researched shopping centres in the country," said Mr. King.

Research reveals a Quinte trading area of 138,000 consumers and the mall will have the potential to attract $14,000,000 in yearly sales.

Besides the major chains, Cambridge will strive to lease the mall to a "carefully balanced mix of merchandise" to achieve the ideal of a one-stop shopping community.

"The success of Quinte Mall will be contributed to largely by the participation of merchants who are already familiar to the people of this area," said Mr. King.

Hence, the next immediate phase of the operation is notifying local merchants of Cambridge plans, Mr. King indicated.

The vice-president said he will remain in Belleville for the next two days to discuss the leasing program with area businessmen.

"This leasing program will be pursued aggressively and should be completed within two months," added Mr. King. "It doesn't take long before all the store space is taken in a major regional centre of this kind."

Ontario now in in the midst of a retail boom and the future of the entire industry rests with the regional shopping concept.

"Quinte Mall in Belleville is such a centre and the economic and social benefits of this development will be an asset to us all."

Cambridge president Charles Tabachnick said experience shows such regional shopping centres generate a social atmosphere and other advantages.

"In our other centres, we operate fashion shows, art exhibits and children's contests — and we intend to do the same sort of things here," he said.

"Experience with other shopping centres of this kind points out that they tend to serve as a magnet to other development and they draw additional purchasing power to their communities," said Mr. Tabachnick. "I'm sure this will be the case in Belleville."

Retailing Giants First Mall Tenants

Two of the biggest names in Canadian retailing — Simpsons-Sears and Steinbergs — will be the major tenants of a $14,000,000 annual sales potential at Quinte Mall.

They were the star tenants first signed on by Cambridge Leaseholds for the $7,000,000 north end Belleville.

Here's how both companies describe their Belleville plans:

Simpsons-Sears — Will be located on the northeast end of the mall with a 90,000 square foot of retail facilities. The store will be 491 feet long, 183 feet wide. It's a single storey, but provision is being built in for future expansion.

There will be 53 departments in the store, with strong emphasis put to quality fashions and family clothing, says Simpsons - Sears. Complete ranges of home supplies, sporting goods, automotive, plumbing and heating supplies will be carried. There will be catalogue facilities with daily delivery in Belleville.

It will employ between 150 and 200 people, practically all to be hired locally.

A company spokesman revealed that Simpsons-Sears — in Belleville since 1935 — has looked to a large department operation in the city for years.

"Although a number of sites were considered from time to time, until now none has met the requirements of a shopping centre of the size planned by Cambridge Leaseholds . . ." says the company.

Steinbergs — The Quinte Mall will be known as Miracle Mart Mall.

It is the first Steinberg operation in this part of Ontario — one of 180 operated across Ontario and Quebec by the Montreal - based chain.

"The very latest ideas will be expressed in the new premises to make marketing quick, pleasant and convenient," says a company announcement.

Guard Study Recommended

A recommendation to ask the city Police for a survey on the need for a crossing guard on Moira St. West at the entrance to the children's playground behind number two fire station, was passed by the Traffic and Light committee at their 2 p.m. meeting yesterday.

The recommendation followed a complaint that the lack of a guard would present a hazard to the children crossing the street to the playground.

The Police department received a second request from the meeting when a complaint was registered regarding the number of accidents at the intersection of Everett and Catherine Streets.

Inspector Ralph Blatchford reported this morning that the intersection study would be undertaken as an internal study basis. Constable Robert Hall, BPC safety officer, will undertake the counting study and forward a recommendation.

Swiss Women Not Anxious to Vote

BERN (AP) —The women of Switzerland, living in one of the world's oldest democracies, haven't yet achieved the right to vote. Surprisingly, some of them prefer it that way.

Suffragette movements are fighting an uphill battle among women who take little interest in politics and often regard the suffragettes as a threat to their sheltered way of life.

Some feel so strongly about it that they join the League of Swiss Women against Women's Suffrage.

Grey-haired Ida Moos, the league's president, regards the women's liberation movements in other countries as a direct result of the evils of voting.

"Women wear the pants in America," she says. "Their slogan is 'make war, not love' —take the man's job. We don't want that kind of equality."

Mrs. Moos, a well-to-do housewife and mother of four daughters, is far from eccentric. Her views are widely shared—by men and women —in the mountainous heart of Switzerland. Her home town, Lucerne, is a stronghold of women who prefer the status quo to the uncertainties of equal rights.

"We Swiss women have more rights and privileges than nearly all other women," Mrs. Moos claims. "It is the men who have given us these rights, because we have made them realize that it is for all women—the aged and the single ones as well as the wives. If we are allowed to vote, we will lose these rights."

On the other hand, she woes, Swiss women "lose their self-esteem in a world of equality. "We can't risk destroying men's role in the world," she says. "We must show him a task to perform . . . allow him to be chivalrous."

Swiss suffragettes claim that these are the arguments of wealthy, middle-aged housewives who have none of the problems faced by a working-class wife or a single woman living alone. One of the most active of Swiss suffragettes, Emma Kammacher, a 63-year-old Geneva lawyer, has been campaigning for women's voting rights for more than 40 years.

"Swiss women are still asleep," she says. "Our social laws were passed in 1912 and haven't really changed since then.

"For example," she says, "in nearly all parts of the country, women's salaries are barely 60 or 70 per cent of those earned by men doing the same work. Women are promoted more slowly and get less important jobs. Legally, a wife still needs her husband's permission if she wants to work outside the home. Her salary is simply added to the husband's salary for tax purposes, thus raising taxes on their joint income so high that the wife is discouraged from working at all."

All this, Mrs. Kammacher blames on the fact that Swiss federal law is made by men only.

Switzerland has a federal constitution. Among the 22 states, known as "cantons," the original Alpine valleys form the hard core of resistance to women's votes. Change comes slowly to these picturesque Alpine regions.

In most of the original cantons, public affairs are still decided by a Landsgemeinde, a general assembly of all citizens with the right to vote. Even such modern cantons as Geneva and Zurich—and the federation as a whole —make major decisions, also by referendum, often overruling the cantonal and federal parliaments. The Swiss call it "direct democracy."

In some of the more modern lowland cantons, the male domination is slowly breaking down and women can now vote in local matters. The Landsgemeinde of Glarus, one of the oldest cantons, broke ranks in conservative central Switzerland by allowing women to have a say in church and school matters—though still excluding them from the landsgemeinde itself. No woman can take part in any federal election or referendum, or be elected as federal representative or senator.

Geneva, one of the go-ahead cantons, not only gave women the vote but elected a woman mayor—an event greeted like a portent of doom in some of the more traditional cantons.

"Three or four times a day throughout my one-year term, I had to explain to women

Space Rescue System

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — It's too late to develop a rescue system for the Apollo moon program, but all future U.S. man-in-space programs will have emergency recovery and rescue procedures—whether they are earth orbital trips, moon missions or flights to Mars.

The Skylab three-man space station, scheduled for launching in 1972, will have double protection. Hooked to the laboratory will be a spacecraft that can be separated and flown back to earth. And, for the first time, a rocket will stand by at Cape Kennedy to fly to the rescue if needed.

For larger earth orbiting stations planned late in this decade, safety experts are studying "space lifeboats" in which up to three men can fly back to earth; protective components that can be sealed off from the rest of the station, and a shuttle craft that will operate as an airplane for quick trips into space.

Moon explorers beyond Apollo will find an unmanned emergency take-off vehicle waiting when they land. It will be deposited on the lunar surface in advance of the astronaut landing. The astronauts also will carry along small flying machines designed mainly for flitting about on the surface, but usable to fly to a rendezvous with a hovering spaceship in case of trouble.

Mixed Judy Outlook

Ontario and southern Quebec will have above average temperatures for the month of July while the rest of the country will be near normal with the exception of extreme northern regions which will be cooler than usual. The 30-day weather outlook of the United States weather bureau also calls for heavy rainfall in the Prairies while the rest of the country will experience moderate precipitation.

Laurier's Colleague Dies at 93

REGINA (CP) — William Melville Martin, known as "Sas-katchewan's grand old man," died Monday at 93 after 53 years of public service, including six years as the second premier of his adopted province.

The Norwich, Ont.-born lawyer also served for 26 years as chief justice of Saskatchewan and was political colleague that started in 1908 when he represented Regina as a Liberal MP.

He was the last known survivor of the band of Liberals that gave Sir Wilfrid Laurier his last term as prime minister. He was mentioned as a possible successor to Sir Wilfrid as head of the Liberal party but refused to consider it.

Mr. Martin served in Ottawa until 1916 when he was called on to replace Walter Scott, Saskatchewan's first premier, who was retiring because of ill health.

In his first government he retained the position of minister of education as well as premier.

During his 5½ years as premier, Mr. Martin led the Liberal party to victory in two general elections, in 1917 and in 1921.

Races and contests of all kinds were held with everyone given an opportunity to participate in dash, wheelbarrow, three-legged, sack and spoon, shoe scramble and women's nail driving brought the day to a close.

Drinks and ice cream were given to the children.

Winners of the draws were picnic table, Mrs. M. Fitzgerald; picnic cooler, C. Sturch; lawn chair, H. Donnelly; TV tables, B. Binsteed.

After these events all sat down to a picnic supper followed by a horseshoe throw.

Ready for Flight!

Cathie Lahey, 20, of Madoc gets ready to take off in one of the Oak Hills Flying Club planes. She is studying for pilot's licence and hopes to get it this summer. Cathie was one of the members present at the breakfast party sponsored by the flying club this past weekend.

Oak Hills Club Members Hosts for Fly-in Breakfast

Breakfast parties are not all that unusual but the one sponsored by the Oak Hills Flying Club this past weekend was a bit different. If the hearty breakfast did not wake up the partakers, the plane ride afterwards was guaranteed to do the job.

Members of the club were joined by members of clubs from Oshawa, Ottawa, Toronto and other points in Ontario. One plane came from as far away as New York State. A total of 145 adults and 20 children were served breakfast. The event is an annual one sponsored by the club which has approximately 100 members. After breakfast plane rides around the Belleville and Trenton area were available for all those wishing to take part.

Chief flying instructor at the club is Jack Bond, who has been an instructor for 11 years; three years for this flying club. He mentioned that the club owns two planes — a Cessna 172, four places and a Cessna 150, two places. Some of the members own their own planes.

Female pilots are certainly not lacking in this club. Cathy Lahey, 20 of Madoc has been taking flying lessons since a year ago April and hopes to get her licence this summer. In order to get it she must have flown at least 12 hours duo and 12 hours solo but the overall total must be 35 hours. She now must pass a written test. When asked why she has decided to become a pilot she said, "Ever since I was small I would watch the planes flying overhead and I decided that I would one day fly one of them." Cathie seems to be one of the few females who is really determined to become a pilot.

Overweight Aldridge Draws Cahill's Cheers

TORONTO (CP) — Almost any athlete checking into training camp overweight invites the wrath of his coach but that wasn't the case Monday when Toronto Argonauts' Allen Ray Aldridge weighed in.

The Canadian Football League linebacker tipped the scales 30 pounds heavier than he did last season and Argo coach Lee Cahill cheered.

"We've been trying for years to get 30 more pounds on him," said Cahill.

Aldridge weighed in with 250 pounds on his six-foot, six-inch frame.

"I plan to lose about 10 pounds in training camp," he said. "With this weight, I can lose 10 without losing strength. I couldn't do that before."

Aldridge had an operation at the end of last season for removal of cartilage in his right knee and now is satisfied the knee is stronger.

Among the 31 players reporting for pre-camp medicals Monday was all-star running back Dave Mahoney, who also has recovered from an operation to correct a damaged knee suffered late last season.

Another 26 players are to report Friday to the Argos' temporary camp at the Canadian National Exhibition. Saturday, the entire squad moves to nearby Aurora for two weeks of training.

In Hamilton, veteran tackle John Barrow was among 71 players participating in Monday-night's first practice by the Tiger-Cats.

Court Keeps Clay Home

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Supreme Court declined 8 to 0 Monday to give former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay permission to go to Toronto to fight Joe Frazier, his successor.

The plea, made by Clay's lawyers and publicly disavowed by the former champion, had been denied June 16 by Justice Hugo L. Black.

Clay's lawyers then appealed to Justice William O. Douglas, who turned the case over to the full court where all the justices, except Thurgood Marshall who has been ill and did not participate, ruled against the trip.

Clay was convicted three years ago of refusing induction into the Army. He is free on bail while appealing, but one condition is that he not travel outside the United States.

Sabres Pick Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Buffalo Sabres will prepare for their first season in the National Hockey League with a training camp this fall at Memorial Centre here, says Doug Nobes, the arena's manager.

Nobes said Monday that Sabres general manager and coach, Punch Imlach, was here during the weekend to complete arrangements for the training sessions.

Toronto Maple Leafs have held their training camps here in previous years but this fall plan to train at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Pool Prodigy Undaunted By Cast, Measles

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dorcas-Marie Gurr, undaunted by setbacks, is heading for the Canadian swim team's Commonwealth Games training camp in Quebec three days late but rarin' to go.

When the other members of the British Columbia team left for Quebec Friday, the 15-year-old sensation was at home recovering from measles.

And while tryouts for the Canadian team were held in Winnipeg last April, Donna had her leg in a cast.

But if her performance in Winnipeg was any indication, Donna's second setback may be a lucky break.

Donna balked her doctor into removing her cast and promptly won the 100- and 220-metre backstroke events in 69.4 and 2:29.2, respectively. Her times are among the top three in the Commonwealth.

She left by air Monday for Jonquiere, Que., just north of Quebec City, where the Canadian team is train ing for the Commonwealth Games opening in Edinburgh July 16.

She left behind her crutches, leg cast and measle spots.

Donna has been walking for about a month now, after having a jar her leg in a cast for five.

Last December, she was found to have osteochondritis dessicans in her left knee, loose chips of bone and cartilage in the base of the thigh which give intermittent sharp pains.

Her doctors decided to let the diseases heal itself and put her leg in a cast.

She continued to train with the Dolphins Swimming Club of Vancouver, using her arms primarily to cover distances from 4,500 to 12,000 yards a day, five days a week with only one leg for starting, turning and swimming.

The cast on the other consisted of glass fibre with cellulose acetate lined with a foamed polyethylene splinting material which provided light, strong and water-resistance support.

Winnipeg Falcons: 'Motley Team' That Won First Medal

VANCOUVER—(CP)—Frank Fredrickson thundered through a stack of dog-eared photographs from the 1920 Antwerp Olympics, lost in shimmering memories of the team he led to Canada's first hockey gold medal.

"By God, what a team," he sighed, looking up from a scrapbook as thick as a New York City telephone directory. "There'll never be another one like it; never, never again."

The team was the Winnipeg Falcons—nine Icelandic Canadians and one "foreigner," Anglo-Canadian goalkeeper Wally Byron, all from howling blizzard country around Winnipeg.

They brought Canada its first Winter Olympics gold medal, as well as the world amateur hockey title in the first fully sanctioned international tournament.

That was 59 years ago, an April 28, 1920, before a virtually pro-Canadian crowd in the Antwerp Ice Palace. As expected, the Falcons blanked the Swedish national team in the final 12-1.

Fredrickson, now a silver-haired 74, scored seven goals that night and in the process put hockey on the international sports menu for keeps. It was also the first step in a brilliant professional career back home in Canada that earned him membership in the Hockey Hall of Fame.

"I remember that after we won the title I was telling everybody who'd listen that some day, in the forseeable future, there would be a world hockey league," Fredrickson said.

"Well, I still think I'm right. It's only a matter of time before everybody gets together on it."

The Falcons came into being in 1919 when Fredrickson and several of his teammates got together in the Manitoba capital following First World War service.

"We were a pretty motley team," Fredrickson said. "No two players wore the same—colored socks, pants or sweaters, and four of us had been off skates entirely during the war."

When the Manitoba Senior Hockey League refused the Falcons entry, Fredrickson enlisted the support of the late Bill Finley, sports editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, and the two of them put together a new league.

Under the stern tutelage of coach Fred (Steamer) Maxwell, the Falcons jelled into a potent goal-scoring machine, took the title in their own league and clobbered the MSHL winners to earn the provincial title.

The Falcons whipped the Lakehead winners, then went to Toronto to repeat the feat against Toronto Varsity to win the Allan Cup and the Canadian berth in the Winter Olympics hockey tournament.

Also entered in the Olympics was what Fredrickson describes as "one of the toughest United States teams ever to take to the ice," led by centre Frank (Moose) Goheen, another Hockey Hall of Fame member. The 11-man U.S. team included six Americans and five Canadians.

There were also five European national teams entered—host Belgium, France, Switzerland, Sweden and Czechoslovakia—but everybody knew it would be strictly a two-way contest between the U.S. and Canada.

"The Europeans who organized the tournament didn't have the foggiest idea what the game was all about," Fredrickson recalled. "But it didn't really matter because everybody thoroughly enjoyed themselves and it was strictly a two-way fight between us and the Americans."

He shucked out from the stack a picture of the Swiss team, pointed at a rather decorous gentleman clutching a goalie's stick as though it were a manure shovel, and chuckled softly.

This, Fredrickson explained, was a certain Monsieur Savoie, netminder of the extraordinary Swiss team and probably the most inept goalkeeper in the history of hockey.

M. Savoie wobbled onto the ice for the tournament opener against the U.S., nattily attired in a snappy cardigan, white shirt and tie, and English cricket pads on his legs.

The American team clobbered M. Savoie and his countrymen 29-0.

The tournament rules called for two 20-minute periods, which meant the Americans were scoring goals at a rate of one every 70 seconds, for most of the game. There were seven men to a side and no forward passing.

"All through the tournament we tried to limit ourselves to 14 or 15 goals a game against the European teams," Fredrickson said. "Believe me, it was difficult; but we managed to stay within reasonable bounds."

After $9.50 Salary, Golf Looked Pretty Good

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Tony Jacklin headed home to England Monday as the 1970 U.S. Open golf champion, and before his departure he disclosed that a newspaper ad when he was a teen-ager made it all possible.

Jacklin, 25, said he worked for a year in a steel mill for $9.50 a week after leaving school 10 years ago.

"It was a dirty job and because I had to get up at 7:30 in the morning I didn't like it at all," Jacklin said.

Jacklin left the steel plant to work in a lawyer's office for another year, taking time off to play golf in the afternoons, when he noticed something of interest in a newspaper.

"I answered an ad in a London paper for an assistant pro's job," Jacklin said.

He finally reached golf star-dom in 1969 when he became the first Englishman in 15 years to win the British Open. And he was the first Briton in 50 years to win the U.S. Open Sunday when he wrapped up the $30,000 prize money with a two-under-par 70 and 72-hole score of 281.

Jones Takes Three

Heart-stealing Mets Turn to Bases

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets, who stole the hearts of baseball fans last year in becoming world champions, now have turned to stealing bases and more bases.

Cleon Jones stole three and Bud Harrelson one Monday against Chicago Cubs to increase the team's banditry that has netted 69 for the season—two more than the total of 1969.

The base-running, along with home run-powered rallies by Tommie Agee and pinch-hitter Donn Clendenon, launched the Mets to a 9-5 triumph.

In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from Montreal Expos 8-5 and 3-2, St. Louis Cardinals took a 6-1 win over Pittsburgh before dropping a 1-0 decision to the Pirates in the nightcap, San Francisco Giants downed Cincinnati Reds 13-5, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Atlanta Braves 4-3 and Houston Astros defeated San Diego Padres 4-1.

Losing the opener of the five-game series left the Cubs only ½ games ahead of the second-place Mets in the Eastern National League East Division race.

New York's ringleaders in the base thievery are Agee with 17, Harrelson 14, Joe Foy 11 and Jones 10.

Ferguson Jenkins, Chatham, Ont., native, had his five-game winning streak ended in the Met victory after he had pitched hitless ball for the first four innings and permitted only one baserunner. He hit Jones with a pitch in the first inning and Jones promptly stole second.

The Mets broke a 5-5 tie with three runs in the eighth. After Jenkins served leadoff singles to Jones and Art Shamsky, he was replaced by Hank Aguirre. Clendenon belted an 0-2 pitch into the leftfield bleachers and the Mets added another run in the ninth.

At Pittsburgh, the Cardinals backed rookie Jerry Reuss with a five-run second inning of the opener to give the left-hander his second win in as many starts.

Reuss got Matty Alou to out on a pop to the infield but Alou retaliated in the nightcap, driving in the only run with a single after Gene Alley led off the 18th with his 8th for the Reds, tops in the majors.

Trailing 3-3, the Giants broke the game open with six runs in the third, scoring on singles by Dietz, Hal Lanier and Ron Hunt, a balk and doubles by Alan Gallagher and Bobby Bonds.

Home runs by Wes Parker, Billy Grabarkewitz and Bill Sudakis powered the Dodgers past the Braves and into a second place tie in the NL West, nine games behind the Reds.

Byron Browne's two-run double in the sixth inning enabled the Phillies to take their eighth cap from the Expos at Philadelphia. Brown also belted a two-run homer and Deron Johnson connected on a two-run double in each of only three American League baseball games.

Elsewhere, Oakland Athletics edged Kansas City Royals 2-1 and Minnesota Twins squeezed by Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

The Orioles spoiled the Red Sox six runs in the first inning but came back in the seventh to tie it 8-8 before Boston regained the lead 9-8 in the eighth.

Carl Yastrzemski sparked the Boston explosion in the first with a two-run homer off Jim Palmer. Phoebus and the other four runs were unearned.

A bases-loaded walk in the second inning got Baltimore's first run in and the Orioles came back with five more runs in the seventh on a three-run homer by Curt Motton, Dave Johnson's triple and a two-run homer by Chico Salmon.

Boston battled back, taking a modest two-run bulge on Tony Conigliaro's seventh-inning homer and an eighth-inning rally built around singles by Mike Andrews and Billy Conigliaro and an infield out.

But in the ninth, Boog Powell doubled with one out and scored on Merv Rettenmund's single. Paul Blair doubled and Brooks Robinson walked, loading the bases for Frank Robinson, who doubled home the deciding runs.

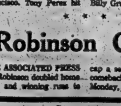
It was the fifth straight victory for the Orioles, who now lead the American League East by 3½ games. Minnesota, frontrunner in the West, enjoyed a lead to 4½ games by knocking off Milwaukee.

Harmon Killebrew's 18th home run, a three-run shot that broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth, was the big blow for the Twins. Jim Kaat throttled the Brewers on three hits until the ninth when Tommy Harper's two-run homer pulled Milwaukee within one run.

But Ron Fernandez came out of the bullpen to retire the last three batters and save the victory.

Rod Carew, Minnesota's second baseman and the American League's leading batter, was forced to leave the game in the fourth inning because of a leg injury after he was bowled over on a double play by Milwaukee's Mike Hegan. The injury was not believed to be serious.

Frank Fernandez ripped a pinch-hit homer leading off the bottom of the ninth inning to give Oakland its victory over Kansas City. The homer was the ninth this season for Fernandez, who was batting for reserve Bobby Locker, 1-1.



The Athletics' other run came on a fifth-inning homer by Sal Bando, his 14th of the season and third in the last two days.

Kansas City tied the score against starter Diego Segui with an unearned run in the seventh on Paul Schaal's double and an error by John Donaldson.

All-Star Rosters Go On Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Monday the schedule for televised All-Star Games for the National and American league All-Star games.

The game is to be played July 14 at Cincinnati.

The National League's eight starters, excluding pitchers, will be announced Monday, July 6 and the American League pitchers Thursday, July 9. The remainder of the National League squad will be released Thursday, July 9 and the rest of the American squad Friday, July 10.

Each team will be limited to 28 players. The starting eight are selected by the vote of fans and the others, including pitchers, by the managers—Gil Hodges of New York Mets for the National League and Earl Weaver of Baltimore Orioles for the American League.

Sport Briefs

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Rod Laver, the Australian pro star trying for his third straight All-English tennis championship title, took just one hour to eliminate George (Butch) Seewagen of the United States Monday in a first-round match, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2. Laver won at Wimbledon in 1961, 1962, 1968 and 1969. Arthur Ashe of the U.S., rated by many critics as Laver's liveliest challenger, opened his bid by downing Graham Stilwell of Britain 6-3, 6-2, 8-1. Stilwell, last year's British Davis Cup hero, who now is all amateur professional, started well but failed to live up to his promise.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Anti-apartheid groups threatened to disrupt a match between a South African and a Jamaican at the All-England tennis championships Monday, but nothing happened. Six policemen stood by the court as South Africa's Keith Diegraam defeated Richard Russell of Jamaica in a first-round match, 7-5, 13-11, 6-2. Before going on the court, Russell said anti-apartheid groups had put pressure on him and two other Negroes — Jamaican Lance Lumsden and American Arthur Ashe — to withdraw rather than play any South African.

MONTREAL (CP) — A record field is expected for the 32nd Valleyfield power boat regatta scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, July 11-12, the first year there were 256 participants. Organizers said more are expected this year to test the 1 2-3-mile St. Francis Bay course, with applications already on hand from top owners and drivers from the United States, Ontario and Quebec.

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Joe Louis, former world heavyweight boxing champion, is still a patient in hospital here, but a spokesman for his family said the ex-fighter "is doing a lot better." Louis was allowed to leave the hospital to spend some time with his wife, son and other members of the family Sunday, Father's Day. He returned to the hospital Sunday night. Louis maintains a home in Denver. He was taken to Colorado Psychiatric Hospital last month under a commitment order signed by his son, Joseph Louis Barrow Jr., 24, a law student at the University of Denver. Louis dropped his last name when he became a fighter. Soon after he was taken to the hospital, Louis was transferred to Veterans Hospital.

MONTREAL (CP) — Winnipeg Whips of baseball's International League announced Monday that they have traded outfielder Don Bosch to Houston Astros of the National League in exchange for right-handed pitcher Mike Marshall. The Whips also announced that right-handed pitcher Ron Piche of Verdun, Que., had been signed as a free agent.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian trotting championship race, which will carry a purse value of $15,000, will be held at Richelieu Park July 7. It was announced Monday. The winner of the Canadian event will automatically qualify to represent Canada in the $125,000 International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway, New York, July 18.

Nixon Complains Of Plate Coverage

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon complained in the Ontario legislature Monday that CBC-TV coverage of Saturday's running of the Queen's Plate omitted the closing presentation ceremony featuring Lt.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald.

Mr. Nixon said he had received complaints from viewers that the ceremony had been cut off and suggested inadequate program planning was responsible.

Premier Allan Robarts said he had not received any complaints and had not watched the television program. But live program planning was difficult and anybody who appeared on television risked being cut off for lack of time.

Africans Against New-Zealand Games

LAGOS (Reuters) — Forty African countries are to vote against a move to hold the 1974 Commonwealth Games in New Zealand because a New Zealand rugby team now is playing in South Africa.

A statement issued by the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa said Monday New Zealand sent a rugby team, "in spite of appeals and widespread protests by anti-apartheid organizations."

The council includes 11 Commonwealth countries.

The statement, signed by Abraham Dedia, council president, said national representatives at the Edinburgh Commonwealth Games next month will have to choose between New Zealand and Australia as the 1974 venue.

Police Chiefs Likely to Talk About LeDain Report on Drugs

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Civic area in this small northwestern Ontario community near the Manitoba border can expect law and order to reign for the next three days at least.

More than 100 police chiefs from across the province are here for the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police which starts today and ends Thursday.

Chief Jack Shrubb of Peterborough, association president, expected the opening day to be a quiet one, with the tempo increasing later in the conference.

In an interview Monday night, Chief Shrubb said some of the more important topics would involve drugs, the possible standardization of uniforms and a centralized computer.

"I would anticipate a great deal of discussion about drugs," said the chief.

"The growth of the problem and the increased interest in it over the last year has been great enough to warrant lengthy discussion."

He said the release last week of the interim report of the LeDain commission on the non-medical use of drugs also would help lead to drug dialogue.

"Many policemen have reservations about some aspects of the report. It certainly is an area of concern to police."

He said the maximum $100 fine recommended by the LeDain commission for possession of marijuana was not "much of a deterrent."

Miniskirts Blamed

TORONTO (CP) — A Metro Toronto police spokesman said Monday he agreed with findings published in The Law Officer which indicate the rise in miniskirts has caused a corresponding rise in rape and indecent assault.

"Abbreviated costumes are no doubt a factor in offenses against women," said Sergeant George Gough of the Metro morality squad.

The Law Officer, published by the International Conference of Police Associations, said surveys indicated 91 per cent of policemen believed the miniskirts were conducive to sexual assault.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is there any wonder so many people are nervous? Why do they cry? I'm supposed to be "tough" at 21 — your old businessman. For the first time since I was a baby, I cried yesterday. I was watching TV news. I heard and saw young Vietnam veterans as they were flown in to a VA hospital. It made me sick to hear one say, "Yesterday I had to have some hours for an enema pan." Another "An hour for a glass of water." And another, "I feel completely forgotten."

Today, you can understand why I'm on tranquilizers. But forget about me. What about them? Aren't they our responsibility? In addition to us little people, doesn't it give the jitters to the higher echelon in government to know what's going on?

The least we can do for these helpless, dejected young veterans is to bring them creature comforts we would offer a sick dog or cat. The problem seems to be lack of sufficient nurses. How about more volunteers to help relieve them of orderly duties the untrained can supply?

How much special training does it require to arrange off a helpless boy? To carry an enema pan? To dry him off after a shower? To sit him up in a chair? To wheel him around the ward so he can visit. To bring him a glass of water? Anything to take him out of his bed cell."

Funny thing, Dr. Steincrohn, I didn't cry because one of these sad human beings is mine. I haven't been touched personally by the war, I cried, I guess, because it struck me so forcefully that in forgetting these doomed invalids I saw proof of the saying: "Man's inhumanity to man" applies off the battlefield as well as on.

Where do we go from here? Tomorrow my wife and I personally will offer services on words to our local VA hospital. We hope that red tape will not interfere with our good intentions.

But meanwhile, isn't there anything else the government can do for these wounded veterans besides sending them their disability checks?

Is Washington unaware of what's going on? Unlikely. Nevertheless, Dr. Steincrohn, isn't this sad situation important enough for you to find space in your column to reprint my letter to alert people all over the United States — and, if possible (yes, begging) for these helpless ... Mr. M. Y.

More Help Needed To Tend Wounded

Comment: I cried — too. So did my wife. So did many of our friends. But the tears are dry. Now we come down to the nitty - gritty. As you say, "Where do we go from here?"

As a doctor, I know that veterans receive the best possible medical care in VA hospitals. In your own way, you and your wife have volunteered to relieve the nursing shortage, which is the basic problem. If thousands who read this column make similar resolutions, it would no longer be a problem. But will they? Unfortunately, we procrastinate. Tomorrow is time enough, we say. But invariably so many tomorrows pass with inaction that our original resolve evaporates.

So the sickness festers. The boys lie there as motionless and devoid of spirit as stuffed, forgotten, and discarded dolls. You ask what can the government do? Here's a suggestion I have received from Mr. D., another "tough" businessman:

"Thousands of citizens receive unemployment checks. Why not add an amendment to these checks before they can be cashed? Why not "employ" the unemployed in VA hospitals through the country? Not only would these people earn their keep; they would earn immeasurable fulfilment for themselves in bringing comfort to these many wounded and "forgotten" veterans. No longer would it be true for the helpless, bedridden, thirsty patient: "Water, water everywhere, nor any drop to drink." Are you listening, Washington?

Sydney J. Harris Says

Contrast Is Essential

If I ever wrote a story-book for children, it might be called "The Boy Who Had No Feelings. I thought of it during a chilly night in the country last winter, when I built a large fire after dinner.

As we sat looking into it, my youngest daughter blurted out, "I wish I had no feelings, then I could bear to watch this strange remark. "Well," she said, "then I could just sit on top of the fire and play in the beautiful flames. I could hide in the snow without getting cold. I could jump out of the window and not get hurt at all."

"That's very true." I agreed "but then think of the things keep us capable for good and enjoyable ones. An impossible child's dream.

Yet, don't most adults retain at least a residue of this infantile desire? To be provided with the maximum of pleasure and the minimum of discomfort? To have everything called for our comfort, and nothing burn us or freeze us or stick us or bruise us or bloody us?

And are we not as unrealistic as the child in this expectation? Isn't appetite sharpened by hunger? Isn't the warmth of the fire made doubly enjoyable after the chill of a walk? Is it not contesting, followed by the conquest of some hardship, that puts the glow into our sensibilities?

"Softness" has meaning only after "hardness." Living forever in a sea of roses would be as sickening as living in the shadow of an oil refinery. The sameness of existence, is, eventually, as boring and soul-destroying as the sameness of mere subsistence.

Contrast is all. Qualities do not exist without their opposites. This is a true physically as it is philosophically. Yet mankind seems engaged in an immense and incessant race to rid itself of all the negatives in nature that give the positives their value.

This is the true Utopianism of our species, and it exists across political or economic lines — the desire and demand for a constant level of comfort, which, if successful, would kill us more surely than the barbarous conflicts of Hardicr ages.

TORONTO (CP) — Alex Burke, president of the Tenants' Union of Prince Edward Island, denied Monday that he ever called Canadian social workers "lumps of the poor."

Mr. Burke said in a telephone interview that the remark at the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare was made by a delegate from Montreal.

A Toronto story June 16, The Canadian Press erroneously attributed the description to Mr. Burke.

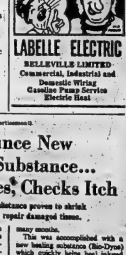
Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proves to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and helps to reduce the size of inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.



Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and in some important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

The way accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Civil Servants Urge Action to Halt Pollution From Cottages

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's existing pollution regulations should be toughened to the extent of giving health inspectors the right of entry to private cottages and the power to issue correction and closure orders, a watchdog legislature committee said Monday.

In a report tabled in the legislature, the committee warned that Ontario government is most act quickly to clean up the lakes and waters of the province's cottage areas.

The report estimates that 19 per cent of the existing 140,000 to 200,000 cottages in the province are contributing to water pollution, and 11,000 more cottages are going up each year.

The committee, made up of civil servants from five departments, said the first priority for 1970 should be surveys and correction of pollution in the Peterborough area, followed by certain lakes and rivers in the Muskoka district.

One of the report's recommendations, to place all land in the province under subdivision control, already has been acted upon by the government.

The report also urged the government to launch a major program this summer to find and correct pollution sources in the Kawartha Lakes region.

Pollution now is caused, by humans' septic tanks in rocky cottage land, bad treatment of effluent from the tanks and discharge of poorly-treated laundry water containing high amounts of nutrients, the report said.

The committee recommended the government should:

—Find methods of pollution and have them corrected.

—Strengthen controls and provide provincial standards of water quality.

—Educate cottage owners in ways to correct and avoid pollution.

—Impose stringent controls on development of recreational lands.

—Transfer planning initiatives to provincial authorities from private developers.

In other business:

—A committee rejected a motion to force Attorney-General Arthur Wishart to reveal regulations of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission. The motion by George Ben (C—Toronto Humber) that the regulations be submitted to the committee for scrutiny was defeated 11 to 4 in a vote that split party lines.

—Legislation to create a government agency to lend capital funds to industry in designated areas of Northern Ontario was introduced. Loans, some of them forgivable within six years, will be limited to a maximum of $500,000.

Children's Aid Bodies Termed Wasteful

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government is studying a report that says Ontario children's aid societies are badly managed and wasting millions of dollars each year.

The report by Urwick Carrie and Partners, Ltd., a management consultant firm, was commissioned by the government. It has not been released, but copies have been circulated to directors and presidents of Ontario's 51 children's aid societies for study.

Ward Markle, director of the Metropolitan Toronto Catholic Children's Aid Society, said Monday it contained "a lot of good recommendations" and many were discussed two weeks ago in a closed meeting with John Yaremko, minister of social and family services.

He said the report recommended a provincial advisory board be set up to exercise stricter control of the work and spending of the societies.

The report criticized societies for being wasteful of money, confused about aims and inefficient in operations. It said in 1968 about $18,900,000 of total expenditures "cannot be accounted for by increases in such factors as the number of children in care, service provided or changes in family levels."

Mr. Markle said the consultants studied operations of societies in Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa, but did not specify in which societies they found deficiencies.

Bid to Give Vote to Those in Prison Beaten

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) was unsuccessful in getting Commons approval Monday of his bid to give prisoners the right to vote in federal elections.

Mr. Howard made a strong plea for revisions to proposed legislation changing the Canada Elections Act that would have given the vote to Canadian citizens in penal institutions. The proposal was defeated 62 to 18 in committee of the whole, the step before third reading.

Mr. Howard said one of the main arguments in the past against letting prisoners vote has been the lack of political information available in prisons. But prisoners now read newspapers, listen to radio and watch TV as well as visit outside the institution at times, he said.

Mr. Howard said prisoners convicted of breaches of electoral laws should not be allowed to vote, however.

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald said the government had no position on the issue as cabinet ministers were divided. He said he was leaving it to the House to decide.

The bill under discussion would lower the minimum voting age in federal elections to 18 from 21, extend voting rights to include all federal public servants abroad and provide proxy voting arrangements for electors away from home.

Earlier Monday, John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) charged the government with "utter disregard" for Canada's British traditions.

His remarks came on a proposal by Pierre DeBane (L—Matane) that would have wiped out all special voting privileges for non-Canadian British subjects in Canadian elections.

The proposal, defeated 36 to 32, drew its support from those who argued that no one should be shown special treatment in elections simply because of their national origin.

Present law allows British subjects who have been in Canada one year to vote in elections. The bill now before the House would allow British subjects who were eligible to vote in the 1968 election to retain their voting rights.

The Commons later approved 44 to 8 an amendment by Grent Deachman (L—Vancouver-Quadra) that would give non-Canadian British subjects five years after passage of the bill in which become Canadian citizens if they wish to retain their voting rights.

Defeated 41 to 35 was an amendment by Lee Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre) that would have allowed a non-Canadian British subject to vote in future elections if he had arrived in Canada before the legislation came into force.

Also Monday, the Commons passed a bill giving more power to the councils of the Yukon and Northwest Territories and increasing the authority of the federal government to regulate land use in the territories.

The House voted 162 to 39 to adopt a government amendment enabling the cabinet in consultation with the territorial councils to establish land-use management zones and set regulations for them.

Also passed in informal vote were seven minor amendments to the bill enabling the cabinet to dissolve the territorial councils and call elections.

The Commons defeated 162 to 39 an amendment proposed by Eric Nielsen (PC—Yukon) that would have denied the cabinet authority to dissolve the councils.

Garvin Threatened

KINGSTON (CP) — Provincial Judge James R. Garvin told his court Monday he has received two threatening telephone calls in connection with a case involving a murder charge.

But Judge Garvin added he would not be swayed by the threats and sentenced Alex High of Kingston, a 22-year-old member of the gang, to 18 months definite and six months indefinite for his part in a sexual assault on a 15-year-old girl last November.

"I've been around a long time, 21 years as a judge, and threats don't worry me," he said. "I walk alone on the streets."

Nixon Aide's Letter Disclaimed as U. S. Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The U.S. State department has disclaimed a letter by an aide to President Nixon as an American policy document on continental energy. Informed sources said here Monday.

The letter maintained that the U.S. should be "curious" about exports of Canadian petroleum until Canada agreed to a package deal on the production and use of North American energy resources.

It caused a political flurry here and T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, accused Washington of political blackmail in an attempt to get its hands on Canadian water, mineral and other resources.

The April 22 letter was written by William E. Timmons, a senior presidential aide for congressional relations, to a group of 25 U.S. senators who objected to the American quota cut in Canadian oil imports.

The external affairs department consulted the U.S. state department to get clarification on whether the Timmons letter represented official policy of the U.S. administration.

Washington now has replied. Informants said that the letter did not have the status of an inter-government communication, which was obvious, and was not designed as an American policy statement.

However, it was pointed out that though the U.S. state department disclaimed the letter as a policy-setter, the White House itself had not, unless through a private communication between Mr. Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau.

Some 18 months ago, Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Nixon agreed to joint Canada-U.S. talks in the energy field.

But External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has said such talks have progressed little beyond consultation about the American import oil quotas.

The subsequent Timmons letter said in part:

"The national security of the U.S. requires the conclusion of a comprehensive agreement with Canada with respect to all energy matters and the imposition of some quantitative limitation on the entry of Canadian petroleum pending the conclusion of such a pact."

Energy Minister J. J. Greene has maintained all along that any oil discussions were completely separate from talks on any other energy resources. And Mr. Sharp said March 9 that water had been specifically excluded from such conversations.

Mr. Greene said last week the Timmons letter contained "patent mistakes."

Offshore Limit Unsuitable

CALGARY (CP) — Canada would find it difficult to accept a recent proposal by President Nixon that the outer limit of national control over resources be restricted to a 200-metre depth offshore, Resources Minister J. J. Greene said Monday.

Speaking to the convention of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, Mr. Greene said the proposal is an "artificial limit."

"Our continental shelf extends well beyond the 200-metre isobath in large part, many miles seaward in some localities."

The continental shelf off Labrador continued out to a depth of 400 metres and the shelf in the Beaufort Sea extended out to a depth of 320 metres.

That was why Canada was urged in the United Nations that the Continental Shelf be considered the limit of national jurisdiction.

He said the letter referred to an insecure oil supply in eastern Canada, almost 70 per cent of which comes from Venezuela.

He said that the U.S. itself deems Venezuela a secure source of supply.

Mr. Greene said the U.S. had just slackened some of its restrictions against Canadian oil imports and that therefore it was "peculiar" if Washington intended to use the restrictions as leverage for a continental energy package.

Munro Says Comment Too Hasty

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro apologized Monday for saying Friday outside the Commons that the government was committed to softening sentences for possession of marijuana.

"I got carried away and went too far," he told a hushed Commons.

He said Justice Minister John Turner was correct in saying Friday that the government would consider softening the sentences to fines from jail terms.

Mr. Munro said he wanted to express his regrets for his Friday statement outside the Commons to the Commons, press and people of Canada.

Ottawa Defence Building Blasted

Telecommunications Room Bomb Target

OTTAWA (CP) — A bomb explosion rocked a defence department building near the centre of Ottawa early this St. Jean Baptiste holiday, causing one death and sending two other persons to hospital with injuries.

The dead person was identified as Jeanne St. Germain, 50, a worker in the defence telecommunications room which bore the brunt of the explosion.

In Ottawa General Hospital suffering multiple lacerations was Bruce Valance, 22. Claude Giroux, 33, was under treatment in the same hospital for shock.

Windows were shattered over a radius of several blocks from the centre of the blast and streets in the area were littered with broken glass.

Capt. Russ McKee, an armed forces information officer, said it was assumed the blast was caused by a dynamite charge planted outside the corner of the building where the telecommunications room is located.

However, the number of sticks of dynamite used had not been determined.

Army investigators swarmed around the site of the explosion, which ripped away most of the wall section outside the signals room and another room just above.

Ottawa city police and RCMP also were involved in the investigation.

The blast occurred at about 2:20 a.m., about 40 minutes before the guard changes at the main entrance to the building, located about 75 yards away from the scene.

It was the first major explosion in Ottawa since New Year's Eve 1968, when a bomb went off in the former National Film Board building.

The explosion was heard far away from the scene. A resident of Elmvale Acres, eight miles distant, was awakened by it. His wife told him it was only thunder, and he went back to sleep.

Just before the explosion, an Ottawa radio station received a call saying a bomb would go off "in one minute's time."

Joel Scher, who lives in an apartment across the street from the blast site, said he was awakened.

"I looked out to see whether it was thunder. I heard the fire engines."

Mrs. Marjorie Grant, of the same apartment building, said she and her husband were just awakening.

"We knew it was a bomb. It shook the building. I never heard a noise like that before.

"I heard the sirens and went to the window to look. I saw people running from all over. Since my husband worked over there, I went over to investigate."

No U.S. Pledges About Lakes

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States appears to be sticking to its own pace and plans for combatting Great Lakes pollution.

This became plain here Tuesday after a day-long conference of Canadian cabinet ministers and White House officers at which the chief point of argument appeared to be one of talking over plans and trying to keep them co-ordinated.

Canada made several commitments to take specific steps. There were no new specific promises from the Americans.

Canada pledged:

—To conclude a Canadian plan for dealing with spills of oil and hazardous substances with the plan announced a month ago by the Americans. The Canadian plan still is being drafted.

—To ban phosphates in laundry detergents in line with recommendations made to the International Joint Commission. The U.S. refused to make a similar commitment, saying a ban is under "intensive review."

—To ban oil and gas production from Lake Erie wells and prohibit further drilling. No petroleum is produced on the American side of the lake. The Americans declined to commit themselves not to explore for or tap this resource in the future.

The two countries agreed that each will unify legislation for regulating waste disposal by commercial and pleasure vessels using the lakes.

Bid there was no specific mention of a Canadian-Alberta crude oil export deficiency, voiced recently in a Buffalo speech by Energy Minister J. J. Greene, to hold the U.S. to the letter of the 1930 boundary waters treaty setting up the International Joint Commission.

Mr. Greene in his address at Buffalo noted that the treaty's terms call for action against the nation polluting boundary waters and said the U.S. creates most of the Great Lakes pollution.

Canada and the U.S. Tuesday did say they agree to establish a working committee to consider common water quality objectives and programs proposed by either government.

But they reached no agreement on co-ordination machinery for these programs.

Mr. Greene at first said co-ordination will be the job of the working group. But later, in a news conference, he amended this to say it would be done by contact of officials of the two governments.

Wishart Sees No Sinister Implications

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the Ontario legislature renewed demands Tuesday night for a public inquiry into the relationship between senior provincial police officers and a businessman with a criminal record.

The demands were made in a legislature committee meeting after Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said investigation had shown that "no sinister implications" could be drawn from past social contacts between OPP officers and George Clinton Duke, 65, of Oakville, Ont.

Mr. Wishart's statement was the result of an earlier demand for an investigation made by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) who charged June 4 that Mr. Duke had contacts with three Canadian members of the Mafia.

The attorney-general acknowledged that 11 senior OPP officers, including Commissioner Eric Silk, had visited the Duke home socially — sometimes to attend promotional demonstrations of lawn equipment later purchased by the force from Mr. Duke. The visits occurred over a five-year period ending in 1969.

He also said that two OPP superintendents had visited Mr. Duke even after Commissioner Silk had become aware of the businessman's criminal record and had ordered a stop to such social contacts.

Mr. Wishart said Mr. Duke had acknowledged knowing the three men named by Dr. Shulman as having Mafia connections, but only in connection with his business.

The men named were John A. Papalia, 45, Donald (Red) LeBarre, and Dante Gabriel Gasbarrini, 48, all of Hamilton.

Ontario Seeking Power To Veto Tax Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario claimed virtual veto power over federal tax-change proposals Tuesday during a 4½-hour wrangle about tax reform between representatives of the richest province on one side and the federal government on the other.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, supported by a phalanx of officials in an appearance before the Commons finance committee, claimed the right of provincial participation in any decisions that would change Canada's basic tax system.

While senior federal officials jotted notes at the back of the committee room, Liberal members of the finance committee tangled with the delegation from Ontario's Conservative government in what one MP criticized as unproductive "confrontation tactics."

The Ontario plan in effect would retain a modified version of the present tax system for business and industry. It would substitute a system of tax credits and allowances for low-income Canadians instead of the federally-proposed idea of higher personal tax exemptions.

Coupled with fundamental disagreement over the tax "trade-off" of business concessions for personal tax-change proposals Tuesday during a 4½-hour wrangle about tax reform between representatives of the richest province on one side and the federal government on the other, was the question of whether Ontario is using tax reform to pre-empt future growth in total tax revenue.

Federal Liberals, led by Robert Kaplan (Toronto Don Valley) and John Roberts (York-Simcoe), challenged Ontario's estimates of the additional revenue which would be generated by tax changes on the ground that they overestimate the total tax take and thereby make possible the province's rival proposals for easier treatment of business combined with tax relief for low-income Canadians.

While main points of disagreement remained unresolved after morning and afternoon sessions, the largely-political sparring in itself asserted Ontario's claim to consideration in final tax-change legislation and possibly cleared the way for resolution of the variations in the arithmetic of Ottawa and Toronto.

Asked by Mr. Roberts whether Ontario was claiming the power of veto over federal tax reform, Mr. MacNaughton first said he did not know that he was claiming a veto, then added:

"You might call it a veto if you wish."

The federal government should not intervene alone when taxing powers are shared between the federal and provincial governments under Canadian constitutional law, he said.

On the question of the disputed revenue data and the breakdown of an Ottawa-Toronto agreement to co-operate in computer calculations, Mr. MacNaughton agreed at one point to provide the committee with at least one part of his working papers.

Barnett Danson (L—York North) lamented towards the end of the session that any attempt to make a sober assessment of the rival positions had been ruined by "confrontation tactics."

Mr. MacNaughton said earlier his government is "quite prepared to say we made errors" in some calculations challenged by Mr. Kaplan and Mr. Roberts. He said it underlined the need for federal-provincial co-operation.

Mr. Kaplan suggested that "the reason the Ontario proposals appear to be more generic is because you assume more revenue."

U.S. Jets Support Cambodian Forces

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian military command disclosed today that United States jet fighter-bombers, in an apparent major shift in U.S. policy, have attacked deep into Cambodia in direct support of Cambodian ground forces.

The announcement, which U.S. officials in Saigon would neither confirm nor deny, coincided with reports that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units were massing for attack at Phnom Penh, and that heavy fighting had broken out again at Kompong Speu, 20 miles southwest of the Cambodian capital.

The U.S. air strikes helped break the month-long siege of Kompong Thom, a provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, a Cambodian spokesman said. This extension of the American air war appeared to be a sign of recognition by the United States that without some assist from strong U.S. firepower, the Cambodian forces might crumple under the Communist command's growing pressure.

Planes Change Base

Buffalo Aircraft Welcomed

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The official welcoming of six Buffalo aircraft from St. Hubert, Quebec, Tuesday morning marked the beginning of a new phase for 424 Transport and Rescue Squadron.

Five of the turbo - prop Buffalo will remain here at CFB Trenton and one will be on loan to the Aeronautical Engineering Test Establishment in Ottawa.

The Dakota, which has been part of the air fleet for more than 20 years, will be withdrawn from service, as will the amphibious Otter, leaving the Buffalo and the Caribou to carry out most of the squadron's tasks.

However, two Dakotas with special search gear, such as homing devices, will remain active in a Search role.

The Buffalo is larger in size, can carry greater loads and can fly faster and at higher altitudes than the Caribou, of which the squadron has eight.

Four of the Buffalo are camouflaged, while the fifth is a specially equipped search aircraft.

Accompanying the Buffalo to CFB Trenton will be 26 personnel consisting of pilots, flight engineers and loadmasters.

Additional support ground crew also posted to Trenton will total approximately 60 persons.

Although commonly thought of as a search and rescue unit, 424 squadron at CFB Trenton is officially titled a "transport and rescue squadron."

Its present duties lend support to the official title.

Parks Additions Herald Summer

Every summer the city stages various kinds of beautification programs.

Last summer, installation of a small parkette at the corner of Front and Moira Streets was completed with a flower bed, walkways and park benches.

This was just one of the projects undertaken last year, and this year is no exception.

To help the program along, the Recreation and Parks board is installing a memorial sundial in Panters' Park on Coleman Street, one new and two replacement water fountains on Zwick's Island.

Last year Frank Panter, son of William Henry Panter, Mayor of Belleville in 1915 and an alderman from 1898 to 1903, presented the parks board with $500 toward a memorial for his late father.

The memorial takes the form of an Astrolabe sundial being installed for the past week and scheduled for completion on Tuesday.

Gerald Thibeau was yesterday installing the last pieces of stone to the surface of the memorial. The plaque and dial will be added later.

Meanwhile, at Zwick's Island, workmen are busy replacing two Centennial year water fountains. The fountains are situated by the tennis court and the pavilion.

The replacements, like the new one being erected by the canteen are, in the words of a parks board spokesman "of a more sturdy construction and a better design and with stand any natural wear as well as any extreme handling."

The new and repaired units will cost a total of $400 but will be constructed of stone instead of the earlier synthetic materials.

Bus Interference Claimed by BTC

A representation to the Traffic and Light committee was made Monday by the Belleville Transit Commission requesting that something be done to prevent interference with the bus company's stops on the west side of Front Street.

During rush hours, cars back up into the bus zone, making it difficult for the buses to manoeuvre.

The transit commission has been invited to attend the next meeting, in two weeks.

The committee is forwarding a recommendation to council that no parking be allowed on the south side of College St. West by the Bank of Montreal.

When driving into many large cities, small blue signs are often seen indicating hospital routes, directing visitors to the easiest route to the hospital in that particular area.

Approved to be sent to council is a report from city engineer Wilbur C. Purcell, that hospital signs be posted on main arteries such as Highways 401, 2, 37, and 14.

Blast City Hall

Taking city hall to the cleaners is Sid Farrell of E.R. Munroe Ltd., of London, awarded the contract to clean the surface of the century-old building. The sandblasting began late Monday afternoon and well over half of the market square was covered in a fine red brick dust. Only the building is being cleaned, to match the tower which was cleaned a few years ago.

'Earth Needs Mission Control' Speaker Tells Delegates

A group of ITS delegates attended a three-day Lab Program, Labor, and Teacher conferences of the United Auto Workers Education Centre at Port Elgin last weekend.

National Farm Union delegates Mr. and Mrs. Howard Weese of R.R. 1, Carrying Place attended the conference which this year is being known for the first time as the National Farm Union Conference.

The previous ten years, the conference has been known as the United Farmers of Ontario.

One of the guest speakers at the conference was Dr. Ish Burton, Professor of Geography at Toronto University.

The general subject of the conference was "Solution to Pollution: A Matter of Life and Death." Dr. Burton's theme was "Population."

"Ecologists seriously doubt that the world can support another 100 million North Americans with rapidly rising levels of consumption in the next 30 years . . ." he said.

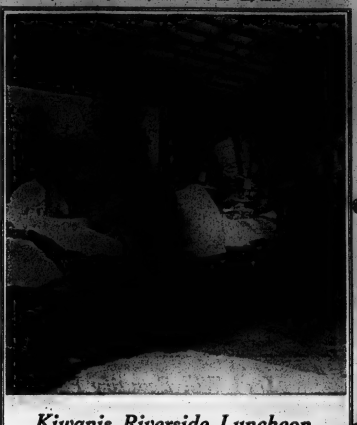
Dr. Burton said that the rich countries, which admonish the poor countries to control their population growth, while doing little or nothing about it themselves make "some politicians in developing countries read racist undertones into our concern about our population problems. . ."

"In their view it is hypocrytical for the rich industrial nations to try to impress them with the need for some environmental quality management."

Dr. Burton went on to say that if we take our own population growth seriously the other countries would be more likely to follow our example.

Commenting on Canada, he commented that an increased population of 40 million was not necessarily make our country better than it is now. "More people in Canada will probably mean more pollution here too.

"It will certainly mean bigger cities, more expressways . . . more dense high-rise living, more difficult access to open space and the countryside. It is by no means obvious that bigger means better (or) that the faster the growth the better."



Regarding "the leaders of the business community who can think of nothing better than to make New York or a Los Angeles or a Chicago in Southern Ontario or B.C. I can think of few worse ideas."

"Automation and methods of mass production are displacing the need for more people as producers . Trade unions are forced to adopt restrictive trade practices to safeguard the jobs of their members, and in a time of strong inflationary pressures, we have a chronic unacceptable rate of unemployment . . .

"More people are wondering why, when a city keeps growing and developing and getting more tax revenue that there are not enough jobs, and the taxes on the ordinary man in the street still go up and up, and there is inflation and the quality of life gets worse."

Dr. Burton drew a comparison between earth and a spaceship. He described mankind as the crew of a spaceship which grew in size not because more men were needed, but because they have found no way of controlling their number and cannot even agree among themselves that it is desirable to do so.

He concluded that if mankind really face up to the problems, ..."we cannot hope to do so without generating much political turmoil, and without drastically changing our attitudes and beliefs. A stabilized world population can probably be brought about only by a world authority. We have got to get a mission control for the spaceship earth."

Kiwanis Riverside Luncheon

Yesterday's regular luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club was held at the city's Riverside Park. Kiwanians and Rotarians donated the Fry portion of the riverside retreat to the citizens of Belleville for parks' development. After the meeting yesterday in the park's picnic shelter, Lloyd Syer, director of parks, explained to Kiwanians in attendance the nature of Belleville's park program.

Developers See Quinte Mall As Hub of Four-county Area

Starting yesterday, Belleville began to meet more to the rest of the Quinte district.

And the district should take on new meaning for the city which always has claimed to be its hub.

The reception that formally launched Cambridge Leaseholds's north end Quinte Mall gave the city a glittering $7,000,000 facility — a commercial development that makes Quinte history.

The mall will put a hallmark on Belleville's reputation as a rendezvous for what most people like to do most: Shop.

And, because of that, it will be a major concourse where Belleville and their Quinte neighbors will meet to numbers on a regular basis.

For what the mall may be Belleville's duo — after a dedicated fight — business rumors for the mall range over a much wider area. It is emphatically a regional shopping centre.

In 1971, its first year, Quinte Mall is designed to cater to a population of 128,000 — about four times the size of Belleville's. It will serve the needs of shoppers in the four Quinte counties — the area outlined by Cambridge spans north from Lake Ontario past Highway 7.

The area includes major Quinte centres like Trenton, Napanee and Picton; sizeable local communities like Deseronto, Frankford, Brighton, Stirling, Marmora, Madoc, Tweed.

"This large trading area is needed to justify the more than $7,000,000 investment required to build a shopping complex of up to 225,000 square feet," Cambridge executives remarked yesterday's reception at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Belleville, which fought so long and obdurately to bring the plans to the district, will reap some specific benefits. Annual tax revenue from Quinte Mall will exceed $150,000, it's estimated.

Belleville will have close to 300 more jobs to offer the region — even more during Christmas and other peak shopping periods. Total payroll is expected to exceed $1,000,000.

The name chosen for the mall best describes its regional character — despite the fact Quinte is a familiar title in the area. Cambridge treasurer Ron Ellingwood told the reception. Various other names were considered, but none were judged quite as apt.

Its symbol is a stylized thunderbird, recalling Indian heritage and the fact the region once was a meeting ground for the species.

As a meeting place for the Quinte area, the mall may have some highlights all its own.

Cambridge policy, said vice-president David King yesterday, is to have a full-time manager in all its shopping centres.

"It will be his responsibility to not only maintain and promote the stores, but also to make arrangements for special events and attractions in the mall," he added.

Supermart Workers Get Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Employees of Steinberg's Miracle Foods Mart ratified a new collective agreement today providing wage and fringe benefit increases of 78 per cent over two years.

The employees are members of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of North America. The meatcutters also represent 2,000 employees of Power and Busy Bee food stores and 1,620 workers in the A and P food chain.

In the last year of the new agreement, weekly pay will range from $126.50 a week for cashiers to $232 for meat managers. This is an increase of $46 for meat managers and $36 for other Steinberg employees.

Steinberg's also agreed to pay for employees and their dependants the full cost of a drug insurance plan under Ontario's hospital and health insurance plans, including future increases.

Areas affected by the new contract are Toronto, Oshawa, Hamilton, Burlington, London, Windsor, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Welland, Oakville, Mississauga, Brampton, Ancaster, Grimsby, Galt, Whitby and Ajax.

A Sign of Things to Come

Sign of the big things to come is Quinte Mall signboard on North Front Street site viewed by this group yesterday. Cambridge Leaseholds officers (from left) vice-president David King, president Charles Tabachnik and treasurer Ron Ellingwood explain development plans to Mayor Russell Scott.

PE County Council Is Alarmed By Welfare Payment Increase

PICTON (Staff) — Studying facts and figures for welfare assistance in Prince Edward County last night, county councillors generally agreed that a serious situation is developing.

Reeve Donald Thompson, Picton, head member of the County Home and Welfare Committee was the most boisterous one. I ever sat on in 12 years in council — everyone was expressing an opinion. While our meeting was noisy I'm afraid there will be louder ones in the future."

Mr. Thompson referred to a social services family assistance scale to point out to fellow councillors that some welfare recipients qualify to collect approximately $5,000 a year.

"I always heard that there is only ten cents difference between the man who works and the man who doesn't and the man who doesn't, gets it," quipped Mr. Thompson. "When they start handing out this $5,000, we should all sell everything, go on welfare and apply for it."

Mr. Thompson noted that in May, 126 welfare cases were reported, with the case load dropping this month to 126 recipients. He observed 14 of the latter cases were new ones. Because of lower housing rental rates in Prince Edward County there are a number of city residents moving into this area.

Curious as to why Prince Edward suddenly became home for 14 new welfare cases, Bloomfield reeve Allen Anderson asked, "Did we give them a warmer welcome than other communities did?"

Mr. Thompson explained the scale for welfare assistance is the same province wide and added that $120 is allowed for rent in Toronto while $65 is allotted for this expenditure in Picton.

Education was suggested by South Marysburg reeve Allan Bailey as the possible solution to the county's welfare problem.

"I am very concerned because I think it means many dollars for our governments to be paying out. A large percentage of welfare cases are there because they can't be anywhere else. I would warn you welfare is going to cost us more and more."

Mr. Bailey then remarked that the average welfare recipient must feel pangs of guilt because of his position in his community.

"I think if I had to look for work or welfare chosen for the next 30 or 40 years, I'd like to give up," he said. "I think the problem of welfare will be fought and won, for only an educated person can defeat welfare. We have to get these people out of their situation."

County warden Gordon Lloyd informed council he told the Hon. John Yaremko, minister of Family Services at a recent meeting in Belleville that family and social services for Prince Edward total about $600,000 annually. Population of the county is approximately 20,000 persons. Mr. Lloyd noted that it costs taxpayers $126,000 to provide social and family services annually, or 20 per cent of the county tax rate.

"I feel," said Mr. Lloyd, "that the solution should come under one department — the Children's Aid Society and the Welfare department should join. Perhaps we wouldn't save any money but we would do a lot better job," he concluded.

Tweed Area Fires Top 1969 Total

TWEED (Special) — This area has surpassed last year's total number of fires by one fire.

The figure stands this year at 58 fires. By October of last year, there were 57 recorded.

So far this year, 482.4 acres have been burned over as compared to last year's figure of 167.3 acres.

Four new fires reported in the area this morning.

There are two in Anglesea Township. These are a two - acre and a ½ - acre fire. The cause has not yet been discerned but is under investigation.

Also there is another ½-acre burning in Dungannon Township.

The fourth is a one - acre fire in Ashby Township.

The last two were caused by human negligence.

All the fires are under control and are being patrolled by Lands and Forests fire crews who have been tending these blazes since yesterday morning.

Everything Lost In Cottage Fire

AMELIASBURG (Special)— Harry Brencken and his 4-year-old daughter, Veronica, were left homeless by fire that destroyed their converted one-storey frame cottage on the bay shore about 3 miles east of Carrying Place yesterday.

Mr. Brencken, 32, out of work since he was laid off from the Knox Gelatine plant in Trenton two months ago, was away looking for work when the fire broke out.

Mrs. Brencken said the flames had gutted the dwelling and its contents to a heap of blackened ashes.

Bad luck has dogged the Brencken's since Mrs. Brencken was killed in an accident on Highway 2 near the Crews' side road west of Trenton on Jan. 6.

Mr. Brencken reported that his sister-in-law, Irene Thompson, was preparing the evening meal when there was an explosion. Propane gas was being burned for cooking. A large tank of it was installed in the kitchen, some distance from the building, but the contents did not ignite.

The housekeeper shepherded the little girl outside to safety while the flames raced in all directions from the kitchen.

The child's pet squirrel "Squeaky", kept in a cage in the house, was burned to death in the place.

Education At Cross Purposes

Dr. Richard Potter's expressed conviction that all medical training should be placed under the department of education is not getting the support it should from the provincial cabinet.

And a case in point is the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing which is going to be built in Belleville.

For two years Dr. Potter tried to convince his colleagues in the Legislature that the initial two years of academic training could be given just as adequately at Loyalist College rather than under a separate roof.

At one stage he thought he had won his point, only to be over-ridden at the last moment by a cabinet minister.

As a result, the regional school will be built to include classroom and teaching facilities already duplicated at the community college.

It is a shame the province did not try the proposal as an experiment right in the riding of the member of the provincial parliament who advocated it. There are only a few areas in which the province can economize and education is one of them.

The opportunity has gone by the boards in Belleville now but it is hoped Dr. Potter doesn't give up in his efforts to convince his own party to give his proposal a chance.

Point Well Made

Cambridge Leaseholds formally unveiled its plans yesterday for its north Front Street shopping plaza, appropriately named Quinte Mall.

Enough words have been written about the two year struggle to gain Ontario Municipal Board approval but one thing which deserves recognition were the words of thanks extended by Cambridge officials to residents of the community who signed the petition which brought about the second hearing.

Donat Clement, president of the Citizens for Belleville committee, was at yesterday's press reception on behalf of his committee.

The point that is important is that here is a concrete example of how residents of a community can influence the decision making of government if they try hard enough. All too often we either either criticize or neglect to allow the politicians and the civil servants to make the decisions they think are the ones we want.

This is just as true at the municipal level as it is at the provincial stage. Aldermen and mayors once elected are not given a mandate to make decisions in a unilateral fashion. They have a responsibility to reflect the views of the people who elected them and would be prepared to do this if the electorate would make its wishes known more often.

The Warning Is There

The Kawartha district has already been designated by the provincial government as a playground for this province's urban dwellers.

It would seem a logical step that when the regional development plan for Eastern Ontario is formulated next year that north Hastings will be placed in the same category.

It comes, then, as a fair warning, the decision of the provincial department of lands and forests to cut down on the number of camp sites on Lake of Two Rivers because pollution last year caused the lake to be closed.

It is encouraging that the pollution watchdog still barks, and in fact even has a bite.

But if the predictions for recreation growth in the north of Hastings and the Madawaska tourist region come anywhere near being at least half right, it will take a year-around watch to ensure that the ecology of this prime natural resource is not destroyed.

We are all happy to live with progress. But let us keep in mind the harvest of pollution headaches we reaped when the industrial seeds of yesteryear were planted in the southern growth areas of the province.

A Good Proposal

Being an unemployed student is not an attractive proposition but is one that faces many thousands of young people today.

Perhaps one of the possibilities that holds some appeal, in this corner at least, is the language training program announced by the Canada Manpower Centre.

Some students who wish to learn conversational French may now do so under a plan by which the Federal government will provide funds to defray tuition, room and board, books administration and other expenses. Travel to the selected university for the six-week course will be at the students expense.

A summer of idleness is not a happy thought. But this proposal seems one of the more beneficial alternatives put forward by Ottawa officials.

Legislative Monster

Nixon Signs Bill He Believes Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (CP)— As a result of the monstrous battling overtones of the United States Congress, President Nixon today has endorsed a two - headed legislative monster—half of which he wanted to sign into law, the other half believes to be unconstitutional.

Thus, to ensure a five-year extension of the historic Voting Rights Act that so far has extended the vote to about 1,600,000 southern Negroes, he also had to sign a law extending the vote to 18-year-olds in all federal, state and local elections.

Nixon has said he favors lowering the voting age from the present 21, but that it must be done through an amendment to the constitution.

He has suggested it would be morally wrong for him to sign such a law while believing as he does that the U.S. Supreme Court would overrule it. However he did so Tuesday.

Others—even backers of the lower voting age—tend to agree with Nixon's contention that it is unconstitutional for congressional assertion of congressional authority in an area specifically reserved to the states.

Only four states—Kentucky, Georgia, Alaska and Hawaii—now permit voting at ages below 21. Voters in several other states, in fact, have rejected proposals to amend state constitutions to lower the age requirement.

Nixon had to decide whether to sign the legislative package passed by the House of Representatives by a weak vote of or simply withhold decision, letting it become law after 10 legislative days.

To vote it would have meant the end of the 1965 Civil Rights Act which has been termed the most effective civil rights law in U.S. history.

It is because of broad support for the bill—which automatically came up for extension this year—that legislators memorized to have it linked with the far less popular voting age bill.

The measure was lined by they were separated, as some legislators attempted to do, the proponents of lowering the voting age could easily filibuster the bill to death before the expiration of the civil rights bill.

Action Needed Now At Street Corner

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I am writing this brief letter after another automobile accident has taken place at the corner of Everett and Catherine streets here in the city of Belleville. In the space of some six years of my occupancy of the residence at the corner of Everett and Catherine Streets I have had the task of calling the police some 20 times after car accidents. One evening last week while sitting on the veranda I counted no less than six cars in the space of one hour go through the stop sign, and unbelievably speed away unscathed.

I have reported these accidents and near accidents to the city over the years but as yet nothing has been done about them. Prior to my coming to Belleville the Stop Sign sat further out to the curb but because it was being knocked down so frequently by speeding drivers it was moved back onto church property. Why not the lane and cry is that persons cannot see the sign.

Might I suggest that a flashing light be placed at this corner, or will we have to wait, as have other corners in Belleville until some fatality takes place before we act.

Many of us are parents in this area and we now have reached the stage where we will no longer ask for something to be done, but are fast approaching the time when we will demand that something be done, and done in the very near future before some little life is suffered out for ever.

John Cabot reached Newfoundland 473 years ago today—in 1497—then sailed south along the Maritimes coast to Maine. He had landed on Cape Breton Island and planted the royal flag of England. Cabot was born Giovanni Caboto in Genoa but became a naturalized Venetian and settled in England from where he sailed on his voyage of discovery. When he discovered Newfoundland, Cabot was actually attempting to reach the East and thought the land he had discovered was an outlying part of north-eastern Asia.

Lesson to Be Learned About Littering

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I am a Belleville Grade 8 student who has recently returned from a class trip to Man and His World in Montreal.

Among the many pleasures and excitement of the occasion, I noticed something that was present in Belleville but which lacks completely. That is, the entire exhibition grounds were absolutely free of any litter, even though there were not too many trash cans.

Everywhere we looked, the people there would always dispose their trash in the trash cans, and for the rare few who didn't co-operate there would be a neat lady there on the right away to keep the grounds clean and litter-free.

Even though it would be impractical for Belleville to hire hundreds of sweepers, I feel it would be a worthwhile effort for Belleviliane to co-operate with each other to make and keep our city free from this unnecessary, ugly litter.

If so many people from all nations can do it, surely the people of one city can be proud enough of it to make it a beautiful, appealing place well worth living in!

Perhaps too, every year at the Belleville Fair, no one takes the trouble to toss their trash into the cans provided. But at this Fair that the litter in Belleville it at its worst and I think it is a disgrace to have Canadians litter our own country when so many foreigners are setting such an excellent example of co-operation and cleanliness.

Industry Proves Point Waste Can Be Prevented

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In the June 19 issue of the Toronto Globe and Mail there appears a photograph of a boy fishing in the Moira River with the information the Corby distillery by the installation of an industrial waste treatment plant, been able to discharge 97 per cent clear water into the river.

This highly commendable step suggests that what one company can do can be equally be done by another and it is devoutly to be hoped that Corby's example will be followed by concerns presently discharging less pure wastes into both the Moira and Trent rivers.

Air Arm Ahead of Politicians

Sovereignty Surveillance Means 18-Hour Gruelling Flights

By JOHN SOOSAR

WINNIPEG (CP) — A heavily dressed man floundered excitedly through deep snow searching the hillside for the long black canister which had hurtled from the aircraft minutes before.

Overhead the four-engined Canadian Forces Argus patrol plane prepared to make another pass over the tiny collection of buildings and radio towers, sweeping into a wide turn and dropping to 200 feet. The Arctic sun glistened on her silver wings.

On each pass the crew, knowing where the canister had fallen and vainly trying to direct the man to it, shouted encouragement.

"Throw something down so we won't think it's important to find it," the pilot suggested. He instructed a crew member to attach a note to a newspaper which someone had wanted to throw out. The plastic canister contained only apples and oranges neatly packaged in plastic.

As the Argus roared in for what was probably her 30th pass, a copy of that morning's Toronto newspaper with a note giving the approximate location of the canister shot through the all-purpose chute at the rear.

On the next pass the man was seen heading for his nearby snowmobile waving the newspaper and what appeared to be the canister.

The drop on the marines radio post on the southern tip of Nottingham Island was the last of three made that day by the crew from 405 (Eagle) Squadron based at Greenwood, N.S., completing another routine "sovereignty surveillance" flight over the Canadian Arctic.

Capt. Reg McCurdy, 28, of Musquodoboit, N.S., and his 14-man crew had left Winnipeg that morning packing 8,640 gallons of fuel—enough to allow them to conduct visual and radar observations and crew training in a section of the Arctic and return to Greenwood 18 hours later with two hours of fuel to spare.

It was the second flight north for McCurdy and his crew that week.

Little more than 24 hours earlier they had returned to Winnipeg from a 20-hour flight around the coast of Bylot Island and Borden Peninsula and over Hudson Bay.

These northern flights, started in 1967, are carried out each week by planes from air bases at Greenwood, Summerside, P.E.I., and Comox, B.C., as Canada asserts her sovereignty over the North. They look on the duties of "sovereignty surveillance" flights last summer and were stepped up last fall.

"We were patrolling the North long before the politicians thought about it," an officer told reporters at a briefing at Maritime Command headquarters in Halifax a few days prior to the flight of 405 Squadron's Argus. Nevertheless, the flights have been increased and the Greenwood crews, accustomed to flying long, tedious patrols over the North Atlantic, find them "a nice change."

The East Coast crews now are putting in more hours over the Arctic than over the Atlantic.

Hangar facilities, longer runways—the Argus needs a mile of pavement for takeoff—and the required stocks of high-octane fuel are some of the reasons why the three bases are the only ones where these northern flights originate.

"In this business it's not always practical," the briefing officer said when asked why they could not fly the missions three bases closer to the Arctic. "It's the anti-submarine warfare (ASW) role of Maritime Command's flying boats. Includes not only East Coast waters but also a section of the North.

With slides and maps to illustrate the course of the flight, he said it would serve a two-fold purpose—to detect any uncharted activities in the North, including the detection of foreign submarines, and new prospecting sites by oil companies and to "show the flag" in Canada's isolated northern settlements.

Leaving Greenwood, in Nova Scotia's lush Annapolis Valley, the 1,540-nautical-mile flight to Winnipeg, the staging area, took almost eight hours in the lumbering Argus, flying at about 8,000 feet.

The Argus, a modified Britannia, is ideally suited for patrol flights because of her size, which can accommodate the sophisticated surveillance equipment, and her long range

Council Favors Guidelines

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county councillors have unanimously carried a motion to go on record in support of the federal government's effort to control inflation by suggesting guidelines for control of wages.

Picton deputy reeve Donald Thompson commented, "costs go up with large wage increases and ultimately the cost to the consumer is governed by those helping to manufacture the product. I support some control. When people are out for an increase of $1.10 or $1.20 its getting way out of line. There has to be a profit when a man puts several million dollars in a corporation or incentive goes. There have to be controls."

Trenton Welcomes Buffalo Aircraft

Search and rescue operations are common, but the squadron is also fulfilling its transport role.

Five Caribous from the squadron have participated since June 9 in relief operations to aid Peruvian earthquake and landslide victims.

By Sunday June 21 the five aircraft had completed 52 sorties carrying 1,614 passengers and over 153 tons of cargo.

They are now flying four times daily into both Caraz and Anta, the airstrips near the disaster area in the Andes Mountains.

Initially the Caribous, which have short take-off and landing capabilities, were the only planes taking Anta with the outside world.

Now that the airstrip at Anta has been extending allowing larger planes to land there and roads are becoming serviceable, the need for the Caribou has decreased and the planes will likely return to Canada in the near future.

Bombing Probe Adjourns

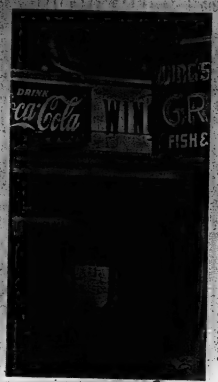
MONTREAL (CP) — The special fire commissioner's inquiry into Montreal's recent wave of bombings was adjourned indefinitely Tuesday night after two female witnesses were released from custody and four others were sent to jail for refusing to testify.

Commissioner Cyrille Delage suspended the hastily-called inquiry at the end of the second day's sitting. Further action would depend on Jerome Choquette, Quebec justice minister.

He liberated Manda Martin and Mrs. Andre Roy after they had testified and sentenced Andre Roy, 36, Pierre Carrier, 26, Claude Morissey, 19, and Francois Landel, 21, to 15 days in jail for contempt when they would not answer questions.



Lawyer Robert Lemieux, representing all six young witnesses, said his male clients could be out of jail in 10 days with good behavior.

The inquiry was ordered Monday by Mr. Choquette to investigate 12 bombings in the Montreal area since May 1.

Under terms of the Fire Investigation Act passed by the Quebec national assembly in 1963, the commissioner can order the arrest without charges of any person he considers would not appear voluntarily at such an inquiry.

There are no accused and persons appearing are witnesses only but one article of the act states:

"A witness cannot refuse to answer for the reason that his reply might tend to incriminate him or to expose him to a proceeding of any kind; but his reply cannot be used against him in any subsequent criminal proceeding, except for perjury."

French-Canadian 'Ghettos' to Be Tested

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to try out the recommendations of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism to create French-language units in the public service.

Announcing the decision in the Commons Tuesday, Prime Minister Trudeau said the new policy will not lead to creation of French-Canadian "ghettos" in the federal service.

The government would proceed with the understanding that the units "should not be considered an end in themselves and that we should have an open and experimental attitude towards their potential advantages and disadvantages."

He noted that such units already operate in branches of the public service in Quebec, in some departments in Ottawa and in the Canadian forces. The government will proceed with pilot projects designed to test the idea more fully "over the next year or so" in a number of departments.

Mr. Trudeau's statement, coming seven months after release of the royal commission's report on the "Work World," indicated acceptance of almost all recommendations on the public service and the armed forces.

Opposition Leader Stanfield cried the fact that the government will not create a public service language authority, recommended to ensure development of both official languages in the public service.

Mr. Trudeau's statement pointed to the creation last year in the secretary of state's department of an unofficial but similar official languages branch.

Mr. Stanfield argued the government was side-stepping a debate in Parliament over its policy by dropping the one recommendation that would have required legislative action. He rejected the government should bring the matter before the Commons.

Mr. Trudeau told the House the goal of the reforms is, in the words of the commission, "a real equality of opportunity, ensuring that the fact of speaking English or French would be neither a help nor a handicap to a person seeking entry into the institutions affecting our individual and collective life."

To that end, he said, the government was also willing to accept a recommendation that federal planning and advisory boards, "task forces" and similar groups have balanced participation by both Francophones and Anglophones.

"This is no way represents a modification of the merit principle," he said.

Instead, it would open the federal service to "qualified Francophone candidates whose knowledge of English is limited. It is a pool of talent from which the federal public service has been largely cut off."

Mr. Trudeau noted that many recommendations involving use of French in private industry in Quebec are beyond the jurisdiction of the government. But it would do what it could to promote their acceptance, and would ensure that information about federal contracts is made available almost necessarily in both languages.

The government's decisions on the 17 recommendations of the royal commission report prompted qualified praise from David Lewis (NDP—York South) and concerned criticism by Rene Matte (Creditiste — Champlain).

Mr. Lewis said he hoped the new policy had not come too late to undo the "traditional" absence of identification" with the federal public service on Quebec's French-speaking campuses.

Mr. Matte accused the government of "soft-pedalling" the commission's recommendations. He was afraid the Francophone units would merely be a means of teaching the English-speak French rather than to permit the French to work in their own language.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

BELLEVILLE V.O.N.

Grant Harrison welcomed all members and regional representative Miss Ruby Cuthbert to the June meeting of the VON Board of Management.

It was noted that dialogue has been resumed with the Trenton branch regarding a merger of the two branches and correspondence disclosed that requests directed by the VON to several area townships for financial support had been turned down. Members reviewed and authorized minor changes in the personnel policies of the branch.

Mrs. S. Gentle, vice-president, attended meetings of a social service conference held recently in Belleville and reported on these.

Decisions were deferred on the matter of appointing a representative to the UCS budget committee and on destending V.O.N. nursing service to Deseronto.

Visits to patients in May totalled 622. Members regretfully accepted the resignation of nurse in charge Miss Norma Guadal and her assistant.

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

On Wednesday evening a mixed garden party was held at the home of Mrs. H. Murray in honor of Gamma Mu's "girl of the year".

As Astrology buffs will quickly note, the party was held under the sign of Gemini. The Twins', and fittingly, two honors were bestowed upon the two members of Gamma Mu who tied for the title "Girl of the Year". The recipients Mrs. J. Sherry and Mrs. C. Rowbotham, were crowned with garlands of flowers, serenaded with the Girl of the Year song, and presented with a silver spoon box on which their names were engraved.

Congratulations and a toast were in order, following which everyone enjoyed a delicious pot luck supper provided by the members.

Gamma Mu's activities will recommence with "beginning day" celebrations in August.

BENEFITS FROM SPICE

Local Woman Active In 'Man's World'

Women's Editor's Note: This the second in a series of business stories dealing with local women who hold positions usually held by men.

By NANCY BAKELAGE
Women's Reporter

Another Belleville business woman taking an active part in a predominantly man's world is Mrs. Shirley Woodcox who has worked with the W. T. Hawkins Company for 21 years, and who is now manager of the company.

"It is quite unusual for a woman to be manager of a branch of this company," she said. It is her task to assist in formulating company policy. She is also in charge of manufacturing and shipping and customs broker for importing and exporting products. She hires approximately 25 permanent employees and there are approximately 30 summer students.

This reporter asks her opinion on the working conditions all the women now bringing in a second family income should decide on Monday morning to avail themselves of the option to stay home and be supported the business world would be hopelessly snarled in one week," she said.

"Having worked in the business world years before the campus co-eds started screaming for women's rights, I feel if they, with their added years, want rights in this way then it is all right. However, I strongly suggest women interested in a business career should work hard to qualify themselves for advancement. The right attitude is very important plus a strong motivation to succeed. One must be willing to put in extra time and work." She went on to say that promotion often depends on the company one works for and its attitude towards women.

Women should continue to educate themselves for their jobs by taking courses and management courses to keep in step with the changing business practices of today," she said.

"After 21 years in the business I wouldn't have been able to climb so far if I had been content to work with a company which discriminated against women."

KEEP BUSY!

Keeping Busy!

Mrs. Shirley Woodcox, manager of the W. T. Hawkins Company, Belleville, is seen at her desk. She holds the unusual position of being in the manager's seat, a not too common position for a woman in the business world.

Ann Landers

Husband Lives Way Beyond His Income

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can a woman do with a husband who refuses to live within his income? He brags to everyone that he is going to buy his daughter a car for graduation when our own car isn't paid for yet.

This bill came yesterday and I see he bought himself another new suit and six new shirts. When I asked him what was wrong with the shirts he has, he said, "They are white. Nobody wears white shirts any more." I told him a package of dye costs 25c and I would dye his shirts red or green if that's what he wants. He got mad and yelled and pounded on the table. I had to close the windows. My neighbor already has told me she feels sorry for me.

My husband never lets on when he's going to buy something. I learn of it when he brings home the boxes or I see the bills. If I complain he says, "You've getting nervous." Of course I'm getting nervous. Who wouldn't get nervous being in debt all the time? I work at a part-time job to make extra money and all my extra money goes on his back. The minute I pay one bill, he runs up three more. At times I get so mad I swear I'll never again use my money to pay another bill of his, but if I don't pay his bills his name will be ruined in this town and it's my name and the kids' name, too. What do you see ahead for me? — SEA OF DEBT.

DEAR SEA: More of the same. Your husband is an irresponsible juvenile. He also sounds like a compulsive buyer, which is a sickness. Tell him you are closing all joint checking accounts and if he wants to charge he can open an account under his name. When the bills come, the stores will dun him and not you. This might not be a cure but it puts the burden where it belongs.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother-in-law was one of the loveliest, kindest women who ever lived. The sorrow of her life was the poor relationship she had with her step-daughter, Martha.

Martha was out of control from early childhood-and no one could get along with her. My mother-in-law had the patience of Job to live under the same roof with that hellcat. Martha is now 36 years old, has her own apartment and no one ever sees her unless she needs something.

The day my mother-in-law passed away, Martha went to her house and helped herself to all the choice silver, china and jewelry. She took the finest oil paintings off the wall and carted them off.

My husband is furious. He had heard his mother say many times that she wanted me to have her lovely things. He is threatening to sue his step-sister. I told him I would not permit it. Material things don't mean that much to me. Please back me up. He is on a rampage. — BLUE GRASS.

DEAR B.G.: I agree with you. But I do feel a lawyer should talk to Martha about a more equitable distribution of your mother-in-law's possessions since your husband has some legal rights.

How sad that your lovely mother-in-law didn't put her good intentions down on paper — in the form of a will. She could easily have made certain her possessions would be distributed as she wished them to be.

Successful Living

Just Ask for It; Your Library Has It

By DORIS CLARK

When her husband proudly brought home several rabbits from a hunting trip, Molly wailed, "But what'll I do with them?"

"I don't know," her neighbor has answered, "but I'll bet they can tell you at the public library."

"Surely I," said Molly, who had always thought of the library as a dull place, full of encyclopedias and light novels. But in desperation she went, and explained her plight to the librarian.

"Of course!" replied the librarian. "We're here to help you locate any sort of information. If we don't have what you want, we'll get in touch with one of the large libraries in the area. They have even more extensive indexed material, including magazine articles."

"It's a challenge. And I think we can find something here to fill the bill for you."

Sure enough, the librarian helped Molly to find out how to skin rabbits and prepare them for cooking. A game cookbook turned up a number of appetite-appealing recipes.

Bonanza to the girls in our public libraries for the knowledge they make available to us! — Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: Isn't it a shame that most people don't realize just cannot make ends meet on her husband's salary. She tried working for a while after paying a baby sitter (for four children) didn't have much left.

I would like your list of ways to earn while at home. As for her, I know she would work hard if something could produce results.

I'm afraid this is the only little bit of help I can give her at the moment, and I don't have any ideas about it at all. — Real Friend.

Dear Friend: One mother I know works with another mother who runs a small business in her home. First mother takes home orders to type and filing to do.

Another mother irons and fills them with her own perfectly delicious salad dressing. Sells them at a neat profit to her friends.

What your friend does depends on her specialty; cooking, typing, sewing. Perhaps what she needs from you is a little courage to take a flier at something which interests her.

My leaflet, "Part-time Work At Home," may spark an idea.

Dear Doris: What can I do for blue jeans, skimpy calves and ankles? I have heard that massage is good. — Skin and Bones.

Dear S. and B.: Do you need a little rounding out all over? I'm sending you my 10-cent leaflet, "Chart For Curves," which goes into this.

I have never heard of massage for building up the legs. Jogging, or on a bike, spot running, can develop calves and firm up the thighs. Start with three minutes a day, gradually working up to 15. Lift each foot at least eight inches off the floor. In a month you'll see improvement.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I knew Mikey and Jimmy would start throwing sand at each other before the afternoon was over. I had a mess to clean up, so I sent Mikey home and put Jimmy in his room until dinner time."

Many preschool youngsters can spend in harmony. The wise mother who anticipates trouble steps in to prevent it, rather than punish after it occurs.

Mother: "Mikey and Jimmy get along for about two hours — then there's trouble. If I have them come in for a snack and read them a story after they play outdoors for a couple of hours, it seems to give them a fresh start."

TWEED — The 4-H Homemaking Club project, "Focus on Fitness," was successfully completed with Achievement Days held recently.

There were 223 girls from 26 clubs throughout the County (Hastings) taking part in the project. This is an increase of 29 girls in the same number of clubs over the fall project.

The 1970 fall project will be "Working With Wool." During this club the girls study characteristics of wool and wool materials in order to choose more wisely, know how to work with wool, give it the proper care and storage. Each member also makes a wool skirt or jumper. Application forms for leaders have already been mailed out. # Lettuce Retains More Vitamins When Torn Rather Than Cut

By MARY MOORE

"Mary why do some salad recipes tell you to "tear" the lettuce and other greens you are adding?"

By coincidence this query came from a young bride named Mary and at a time when we should pep up our salad repertory.

The answer to Mary is two-fold: When you tear lettuce or spinach or other salad greens instead of cutting them with a knife you retain more of their Vitamin C. Do an experiment yourself: cut a spinach leaf into shreds and examine the cut edges. You will see that they are bruised and darkened. This means that a greater area of leaf has been damaged than when torn causing the Vitamin C to be destroyed. So tear your salad greens for better nutrition and appearance.

Within the next few weeks Canadian grown radishes will be available to include these little beauties in your salads to enhance their color and flavor.

NOTE: Let the salad be the last thing you prepare before summoning the family to dinner to retain as many of its valuable vitamins as possible.

CHEF'S SUMMER SALAD

(Serves 4)

¼ average head Iceberg lettuce torn into 1¼" bits (about 3 cups not packed)
6 leaves curly or non-curly endive or Bibb lettuce, torn
6 tender crunchy spinach leaves torn in 1" bits
1-3 average cucumber pared and sliced wafer thin
4 washed radishes sliced wafer thin
1 tomato cut up (peeled if desired)
6 stuffed olives sliced
About 1-3 cup Gouda cheese (optional-but recommended), shredded
Shake of garlic salt
Shake of MSG
About 3 or 4 tbsps. French or Herb dressing or mayonnaise

As you prepare the salad ingredients drop them into a big mixing bowl. Do not add the dressing you choose until the last minute because you want to coat the ingredients — not soak them. Toss with wooden salad servers and transfer to salad bowl. If desired garnish border with an extra tomato cut into thin wedges or arrange garnish according to your artistic talents.

This would be an ideal salad for you to make for a Dominion Day outing for you could carry it in a wooden bowl covered with foil, and when you reach your picnic spot add salad dressing and toss it on the spot.

Legislature Deals With Three Major Bills

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I'm looking for the notice that reads, 'Caution: Using This Set May Be Injurious to Your Brain'."

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature held its first after-hours sitting this session Tuesday night and tackled three of the major bills the government wants passed before the house rises for the summer.

The vote was close, 40 to 0, on two amendments by Donald Deacon (L—York South) to the bill creating the regional municipality of York. The amendments were defeated and the bill will go to routine third reading.

The house voted that funds to set up the new northern affairs regional offices be taken from the province's consolidated fund until next March.

Mines Minister Allen Lawrence said about $800,000 will be needed to pay salaries for northern information officers and their secretarial staff and set up telecommunications to Queen's Park.

Don Jackson (NDP—Timiskaming) said the money would be better spent on research staff and secretaries in the north for legislature members from Northern Ontario.

Pat Reid (L—Rainy River) called the offices "nothing but a propaganda machine for the Tory party."

In debate on a bill to preserve the Niagara escarpment, Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said the government had better be prepared for compensation claims by owners of quarries and pits who will be forced to move or adjust their operations because of regulations prohibiting such operations on a 300-foot strip.

Mr. Lawrence said he could not begin to shed crocodile tears for those who have been using the strip because they have known for two years of government intention. They should also have been aware of the prevailing public mood for more realistic environment control.

He said the eight existing pits or quarries that the government knows about on that strip can continue to operate if they move some of their plants or change the direction of their digging.

Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) suggested the act make it illegal for any person to open a mine in a protected zone one mile on either side of the escarpment base, unless licensed by the minister with the approval of the parkintegration board. He suggested the licences should be renewable once a year.

The amendment was "to all intents irrefutably that the planning zone cannot be violated."

Mr. Lawrence said 1,888 possibilities would have to be considered before a mile-wide protection of mineral activities was legislated.

The amendment was defeated 71 to 48.

Grants to be Increased

TORONTO (CP) — John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, announced Tuesday that relief is being prepared for Ontario Children's Aid Societies which bear heavy costs of care for emotionally-disturbed and retarded children.

He told Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) that the government "is in process of taking steps that will go a long way to meeting the problem."

Mr. Reid had asked in the legislature whether Ontario will comply with the recommendation of a federal welfare report which noted the heavy costs for special services borne by the societies. He asked whether the grants paid for the care of the two special groups of children would be increased.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

If you are thinking of renting a camper or travel trailer for your vacation, don't wait to reserve one. Do it now. Renting a trailer before considering buying one, is a good idea. However, later on you may not be able to get the kind of vehicle you want. You may be forced to take a substitute and be disappointed. Renting a trailer not only allows you a chance to give a specific kind of work-out, but also lets you compare it with those of other people you meet on the trip.

Many first renters select a camper-trailer, which is essentially a collapsible tent stored in a box on wheels. Its advantages are that it is economical, light, has a low silhouette and is easy to handle even behind a small car. The camper is the easiest to tow, but small travel trailers much like tiny cottages on wheels are not difficult. Actually the biggest problem is not forgetting that you have one behind.

The biggest decision for the new trailer-camping enthusiast is whether to rent or buy, because quite often the down payment is considerably less than the cost of renting. A camper - trailer is cheap six people can be had for around $300 and travel trailers start around $1,500 with one suitable for a family of six costing about $2,000. Rentals vary from $50 a week for camper vehicles up to $100 and more for a family-size travel trailer.

Trailer enthusiasts, you'll soon discover, are divided into three distinct types:

The first considers his trailer to be a mobile summer cottage. He thinks it or a favored site within driving distance of his city home and leaves it there all summer, frequently occupied by his family. The second uses the trailer for his summer holidays, — sometimes a month — then lows it home and leaves it there until next year. The third type is more of the gipsy and stays only a night or two at any given trailer park, then moving on to a new sights and sounds. If you rent as a tryout to find out whether you like this trailer camping sport, join the last group. This way you'll get the greatest exposure to all the fun that it can be.

Government Caution Delaying Test of Oil-eating Microbes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The biochemical substance who proposed in April that oil-eating microbes could clean up the polluted shoreline of Nova Scotia's Chedabucto Bay, says government caution might delay action for a year or two.

Dr. J. E. Zajic suggested to the federal government that hydrocarbon-eating . . . organisms could handle the clean-up, at least eight times as fast as natural processes.

He recommended that Rabbit Island in the bay be set aside for fighting the pollution caused by the Feb. 4 sinking of the tanker Arrow had assured him they were interested in the plan.

Dr. Zajic, 41, said the government co-ordinators responsible for the pollution caused by the Feb. 4 sinking of the tanker Arrow had assured him they were interested in the plan.

But they insisted tests should be carried out in a laboratory before the microbes were tried on the oil spill scene. Dr. Zajic said tests are still being carried out in Ottawa, but they are unnecessary.

"Lab investigations of these microbes show that under controlled conditions in the lab, 95 per cent of the bunker C oil can be destroyed in 30 days.

"Our next step should be to go directly into the field and find out what happens there."

The University of Western Ontario scientist said he has vivified the scene of the sinking and now wants to begin spraying heavy concentrations of his microbes on the Rabbit Island shoreline.

Dr. Zajic said the spraying should be repeated each week for eight weeks during the summer, the best period for experiments and their consequent mediation as water temperature breakdown of the oil.

Construction Workers Back Fishermen

PORT HAWKESBURY, N.S. (CP) — Construction workers who left their jobs Tuesday in support of fishermen fighting for union recognition in eastern Nova Scotia were expected to return to work today.

Mario Dube, president of the Cape Breton Building and Construction Trades Council, said the 1,500 workers that they could not help fishermen by losing time themselves. He suggested they go back to work and contribute money to aid the fishermen.

The walkout at three major construction sites—a new oil refinery, a deep water terminal and expansion of a pulp mill—with a total value of $135,000,000—followed the sentencing in Halifax Monday of a fisherman to nine months in jail for contempt of court.

Everett Richardson of Canso, N.S., was one of 45 fishermen charged with failing to obey a provincial supreme court injunction prohibiting picketing at three fish plants.

Production has been stopped at plants owned by Acadia Fisheries Ltd. and Booth Fisheries Canadian Ltd. since late March

Some Anglers Only Bringing Home Fly Bites

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

So you went fishing for pickerel and got nibbled but lugs, a sunboots and fly biter.

The experienced angler will point out that maybe it wasn't just bad luck but rather wrong methods.

The department of lands and forests, in its weekly report to the Canadian Press, says good catches of pickerel, ranging up to 13 pounds were caught in the province last week.

While best baits varied depending on the lakes, minnows and worms proved to be the most popular although when the fish were hitting well they took just about anything.

However, before you set out for pickerel, a few of their habits should be remembered.

Because they have large protruding eyes, they are sensitive to bright light. During the middle of the day when the sun is hot and high, pickerel look to deeper water or shade.

They are usually difficult to catch during the day but one of the best angling methods is a slow trull at a depth of 15 or 20 feet. Because pickerel usually travel in schools, it is wise to drop an anchor and cast or still-fish in the spot where you landed one while trolling.

Evenings are by far the best time of day to fish. If the water is calm, trolling until you find a school of pickerel is the best method. If the water is choppy, try fishing in a bay where the waves end. There is a good chance pickerel will be in the bay as much of the feed is washed in that direction by the wind and waves.

Reports from the department's eastern districts:

Tweed — Bancroft division — Lake trout fair in Kmmelbeg, Weslemkoon and Wellington lakes. Speckled trout good in small lakes and Kaps and Papineau creeks. Pearch good in all waters and pickerel poor. Dacre division — pickerel poor in Palmer Rapids area, bad fair to good in Dacre and Plevna areas. Pike fair in all waters. Rainbow trout excellent in Mosque Lake but fair elsewhere. Lake trout poor in Burnt Lake and fair to good in other areas. Speckled trout fair to McHale Lake. Pearch good in Madawaska River. Tweed division—Pike and pickerel good in Moira, Beaver and Sheffield lakes. Muskellonge poor in all waters and speckled trout fair to good in Marlbank Pond and Goose Creek. Pearch good everywhere. Napanee division—pearch good throughout area. Pickerel fair in Trent River and Crowson and Indian lakes. Pike, bass, speckled and lake trout fair in all waters.

Laver, Ashe Favorites Into Third Round of Wimbledon Play

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — While Rod Laver of Australia and Arthur Ashe of the United States led a parade of favorites into the third round of men's singles in the All-England tennis championships today, the only Canadian at Wimbledon met swift elimination as women's competition opened Tuesday.

Freckle-faced Jane O'Hara of Toronto, making her singles debut here after playing in women's doubles in 1956, took a 6-4, 6-3 beating from Marianne Brummer of South Africa after opening up a 4-1 lead in the first set.

The 19-year-old Canadian junior closed champion lost her concentration and surrendered 18 straight games to her more experienced 21-year-old opponent before staging a mild comeback that was too little and too late.

Laver, the man to watch as he campaigns for his third straight title in the world's top tennis classic, whipped young Australian John Alexander, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1 Tuesday to hand a contingent of five Aussie professionals through the second day of the tournament.

John Newcombe, Tony Roche, Ken Rosewall and Roy Emerson, seeded second, fourth, fifth and 10th respectively, all had straight set victories in the second round.

Ashe, from Richmond, Va., led four other United States players into today's third round by overcoming Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia 9-7, 11-9, 6-4, 6-3 in a two-hour marathon which featured Ashe's powerful backhand. Ashe is the No. 3 seed.

Other Americans advancing were Stan Smith, Clark Graebner and Dennis Ralston, seeded seventh, ninth and 13th respectively, and unseeded Marty Riessen.

Two of the All-England tournament seeds dropped to the sidelines in Tuesday's grey, gusty conditions.

Eleventh-seeded Tom Okker of The Netherlands lost 6-3, 6-4, 9-3 to Bob Hewitt of South Africa, fired up at being left out of the seedings, while 13th-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia was stopped by Alexander Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-2, 7-5, 2-6, 2-6, 7-5.

In women's singles, top-ranked Margaret Court of Australia and second-seeded Billie King of the U.S. got into action today, although not against each other, after being idle through the opening round Tuesday.

Four seeded players advanced through the first round, Virginia Wade of Britain, Kerry Melville of Britain and Rosemary Casals and Julie Baldauer, both of the United States, all had straight set wins. The four are seeded third to sixth respectively.

Claude Douses Philly Fire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

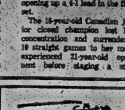
Montreal Expos were on their way to another of their classic catch-fading creations Tuesday night when reliever Claude Raymond came on to stop a Philadelphia Phillies threat and coax the Expos to a 3-1 victory.

The Expos scored in the first and fifth innings only took the 2-0 lead into the ninth. Then Rick Joseph and Jim Hoiton of Philadelphia singled.

Raymond relieved Dan McGlinn after a sacrifice by Gene Gamble and immediately gave up an infield hit to Ron Stone who drove home Hoiton.

Raymond then got Danny Doyle out on a short fly, intentionally walked Tony Taylor and struck out Larry Bowa to halt the Phillies.

Elsewhere in the National League, Bill Sieger pitched his1ess ball for 7 2-3 innings to lead Los Angeles Dodgers in a 7-5 romp over Atlanta Braves, New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 13-12, Pittsburgh Pirates downed St. Louis Cardinals 7-2, Cincinnati Reds trimmed San Francisco Giants 5-3 and Houston Astros defeated San Diego Padres 3-1.



The Expos got their first run off loser Jim Bunning when Mack Jones singled and took second on an error. He got home on a sacrifice and a fly by Rusty Staub.

McGlinn, who gave up six hits, accounted for a single in the fifth and scored on a double by Mary Staehle.

Clete Boyer broke up Singer's no-hit bid at Atlanta with a two-out single in the eighth and the weary Dodger right-hander was immediately lifted. Pete Mikkelsen finished, allowing the Braves' other hit in the ninth.

The Dodgers broke their game open with a six-run fifth inning, the first run scoring on a bases-loaded walk to Singer. Bill Grabarkewitz and Manny Mota each drove in two runs in the rally.

The Mets rallied for the tying runs with two out in the ninth on a single by Ken Boswell and then beat the Cubs in the 10th on Duffy Dyer's two-run homer.

Brunet Calls Washington Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Brunet, who has pitched baseball in 15 pioneer league cities and with eight major league clubs, appears to have finally found a home with Washington Senators as the man who stops the tramp.

Brunet, 32, scattered six hits over seven innings Tuesday night to lead the Senators in a 5-2 triumph over Detroit Tigers that ended Washington's losing streak at five games.

The left-hander also pitched Washington to its only other victory in nine games, a 2-1 win over Minnesota Twins last Monday.

In other American League games Tuesday, Milwaukee Brewers edged Minnesota 4-3, Boston Red Sox whipped Baltimore Orioles 5-1, Kansas City Royals beat Oakland Athletics 7-5 and Chicago White Sox downed California Angels 7-3.

Brunet made his professional debut in 1953 at Shelby, N.C., and has since been to such spots as Seminole, Okla., Crowley, La., and Hawaii.

He finally made it to stay in the majors in 1956 with Los Angeles Angels and was voted their all-time left-hander by Angel fans.

Tuesday night, Brunet, got help from Tim Cullen, Paul Casanova and Wayne Comer. Cullen hit a homer, Casanova had a two-run shot and Comer drilled a two-run double in the Senator's seventh inning that finished Tigers starter Mickey Lolich. Mike Epstein also unloaded a home run for the Senators.

Lolich, Detroit's ace left-hander, hasn't won since May 28 and his record now is 6-6. His single drove in both Detroit runs off Brunet in the fourth.

Pinch hitter Gus Gil cracked a two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning, giving the Brewers their narrow triumph over Minnesota.

Gil slammed his game-winning hit off reliever Ron Perranoski, who had just entered the game. Phil Roof connected for a bases-empty homer for the Brewers while George Mitterwald had a two-run shot for the Twins.

Ray Culp fired a three-hitter and the Red Sox smashed 12 hits, including home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli to snap the Orioles' winning streak at five games.

Conigliaro's two-run homer, his 16th of the season, started a three-run Boston fifth against loser Jim Palmer, 10-4, making it easy for Culp, 6-7, who struck out eight.

Dick Smith's Return Good Half of News

MONTREAL (CP) — There's good news and there's bad news, but for Montreal Alouettes, busy at training camp nearby Vaudreuil, one appears to balance the other.

Real Ouellette, general manager of last season's Eastern Football Conference last-place finishers, is an optimist and prefers to discuss the good news first.

O'Quinn said Tuesday that running back Dick Smith, a sensation after he came here from Washington Redskins of the National Football League last season was to report today.

Smith has been absent because of military commitments in the United States.

A seven-touchdown man last season five by rushing and two on passes-Smith had not been expected until some time next month.

However, O'Quinn's enthusiasm is somewhat dampened by the absence of another standout from last season's defensive halfback and cornerman - Mike D'Amato

"D'Amato has a good job in New York and while we've talked to him, we're not sure whether or not he'll report," O'Quinn said.

"I'll be talking to him again."

Also on the debit side is the case of centre Gene Ceppetelli, the former all-star with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League Commissioner, has banned Ceppetelli from the Als workouts until his status with the NFL San Francisco 49ers is clarified.

Ceppetelli was claimed from New York Giants on waivers by the San Francisco club, but reported to the Als as part of a deal between the New York and Montreal clubs.

There are no new developments on Gene, "O'Quinn said.

"It's being worked on and there is correspondence. It's all a matter of time."

The San Francisco club does not open its training camp for another month, and O'Quinn remains hopeful a solution will be found before that time.

Argonaut Practice Takes Heavy Toll

TORONTO (CP) — Tuesday's Toronto Argonaut football practice appeared to have the aftermaths of a brutalizing struggle with fierce opponents.

The Canadian Football League team reported injuries to four key players. However, the hurts did not appear serious.

Halfback Dave Rainey strained a right hamstring muscle; tight end Mel Profit has a slight tear in the lining of his left knee; centerback Jim Tomlin has a pulled groin muscle and centre Halfback Tony Moro is limping because of shin splints.

All four said the injuries were trivial.

"D'Amato has a good job in New York and while we've talked to him, we're not sure whether or not he'll report," O'Quinn said.

"I'll be talking to him again."

Rio Gives Epic Welcome To Pele and Company

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — Cariocos, the residents of Rio, were recovering today from an epic celebration marking the return of Brazil's World Cup soccer champions from Mexico City.

Rio staged a gigantic unprecedented welcome Tuesday night as the players returned with the Jules Rimet Trophy, symbol of world soccer supremacy. The Brazilians won it Sunday by beating Italy 4-1 in the World Cup final.

Hundreds of thousands of people turned out in downtown streets, waving flags and hurling firecrackers, as samba bands performed and ticker-tape drifted down from helicopters and buildings.

The players rode into Rio on two fire trucks after enthusiastic welcomers in cars and trucks created a five-mile traffic jam on the road from the airport.

It took about 1,500 police in Rio to control the crowds trying to embrace the players.

Tuesday was a national holiday in Brazil to mark the World Cup victory for soccer-mad Brazilians. It was also the third day of a carnival, which began when the soccer final was played Sunday.

Bean Best

GUELPH (CP) — Mike Bean, 27, of Guelph, led 63 qualifiers for the Ontario Open golf championship Tuesday by firing a three-under-par 67 at Cutten Club, his home course.

The 54-hole open starts Thursday at the same club.

Bean, who had five birdies on the front nine and two eagles-pars on the back nine, finished one stroke ahead of two amateurs, Bob Brolley of Oshawa and Bob Jarvis of Foxwell, and Tom Morgan, a professional from Flin Meadows, B.C.

Dave Morland of North Bay, former Ontario amateur champion, was in with a 70 while three more tied at 71.

They were Jim Leverle, Ernie Bentley and Gar Hamilton, all of Toronto.

Nijinsky Formidable Favorite for Derby

DUBLIN (CP) — Nijinsky, the American-owned superhorse which was bred at E. P. Taylor's Windfield Farms near Toronto, ruled today as prohibitive odds-on favorite at 7 to 2 to win the Irish Derby at the Curragh Saturday.

Nijinsky's dominance is expected to result in the smallest field since the race for three-year-olds first came under the sponsorship of the Irish hospitals sweepstakes eight years ago.

While 22 horses still are qualified—including two owned by Canadians—no more than a dozen may line up in search of the £57,262 ($143,155) first money and the second, third and fourth place purses amounting to a combined £23,045.

Nijinsky, owned by Charles W. Engelhard of Far Hills, N.J., has won all of his eight starts, including two British classics this year—the Epsom Derby and the 2,000 Guineas. The big Canadian-bred bay took both the major races easily.

The Canadian-owned entrants in the Curragh list are Taylor's Northern Monarch, trained in Ireland, and Party Mink, an colm D. Thorp of Sarnia.

Irish-bred colt owned by Mal-

Northern Monarch is trained by Vincent O'Brien, also Nijinsky's trainer on this side.

Nijinsky will be ridden in the Irish sweeps race by Liam Ward, a contract rider for O'Brien who steered the horse to his six wins in Ireland—five last year and one this year.

Lester Piggott, Britain's perennial riding champion who was aboard unbeaten Nijinsky in his three British wins, will be aboard Meadowville, a British entry that would look good were it not for Nijinsky's presence.

Piggott has won three Irish Derbies since 1955 and brought Ribotillo home second last year.

Widened Proxy Vote Is Defeated by MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Tuesday cleared one of the last hurdles to giving thousands of Canadians the opportunity to vote through a proxy system.

MPs limited the right to prospectors, mariners, fishermen, students and the handicapped and ill. They turned down a proposal that would have included workers in airlines, buses, railways and trucking who work away from their riding on election day.

The decision on proxy voting came during debate at the committee stage—the step before third reading—of a bill to amend the Canada Elections Act.

The bill would lower the minimum voting age to 18 from 21 and extend voting rights to federal public servants abroad.

The Commons does not sit today, St. Jean Baptiste Day.

A government proposal that the proxy vote be given to such persons as prospectors, students, and the ill was approved after the House defeated an amendment by Lee Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre) that would have extended the scheme to include transport workers.

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald said he had previously favored giving the proxy to other occupations. But he had decided it should be limited because of the problem of controlling impersonation.

Paul St. Pierre (L—Coast Dalcoda) said he had wanted the right of proxy extended to loggers but decided it "would not be very workable."

The Commons also approved an amendment that would reduce to 50 from 75 the number of electoral candidates a new group must field to be recognized officially as a party.

The Commons defeated 25 to 5 an amendment by Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) that would have wiped out the requirement that a candidate submit a deposit of $200 with his nomination.

Police Want to Be Involved In Drug Education Program

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — The president of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police says police must be involved in any program of drug education directed towards youth.

Chief Jack Shrubb of Peterborough said Tuesday the interim report of the LaMain commission on the non-medical use of drugs suggets police should not be the ones to educate youth about drugs.

"But how we can be divorced from any drug-education program I don't know," Chief He told more than 100 delegates to the association's annual convention that he and most of his colleagues are asked several times a week to speak to various organizations about drugs.

Chief Shrubb made his comments after Mayor Merle Dickerson of North Bay, speaking on behalf of the Municipal Police Governing Authorities, requested support for an attempt to set up committees on youth to deal with the drug problem.

The North Bay mayor said representatives of the police, medical profession, social services and youth would be on committees in communities across Ontario.

The police chiefs endorsed Mr. Dickerson's proposal.

The subject of drugs came up when the chiefs were told a Toronto-based organization is launching a $1,500,000 educational campaign on the dangers of drug abuse.

Nicholas Lelak, executive director of the Council on Drug Abuse, said his organization is starting its campaign by distributing educational literature to Ontario pharmacies. The literature is to be given free to customers.

He said the council, a non-profit organization of business and professional men, also is producing radio and television commercials, billboards and transit cards for subways, buses and street cars.

The association also approved a committee report calling for standardization of municipal police force uniforms across the province.

The report, put out by a committee headed by Chief F. W. Oliver of Oakville, recommended standardized pants, shirts, ties, headgear, coats and rank insignia.

Goldberg To Oppose Rockefeller

NEW YORK (AP) — In a primary full of upsets and firsts, Democrats nominated Arthur J. Goldberg, former United States Supreme Court Justice, Tuesday to oppose three-term Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Two veteran Democratic congressmen, Adam Clayton Powell and Leonard Farbstein, were defeated.

For the first time, the Democrats nominated a Negro, state Senator Basil Paterson of Harlem, for lieutenant-governor. Herman Badillo of the Bronx won a chance to become the state's first Puerto Rican-born U.S. congressman.

Fatigue and Depression Often Present During Menopause, Require Treatment

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I hope you can answer as soon as possible. My mother is very depressed and acting strange lately. This has been going on for a few months and getting worse. The other day she even hinted at suicide — for the first time.

She always complains of being tired, even though she doesn't have much manual labor at home or at work. I can't conceive how anyone can be tired every day.

She takes three vitamin tablets a day and a B12 shot once a month. Perhaps she isn't getting the right treatment. Perhaps she is tired because she is bored. My father has been dead quite a few years. She is only 54. I can't communicate with her because she is so sensitive. I've suggested a hobby. She says she is too tired. She thinks I don't care because I don't tell her every day that I feel sorry for her. This, I think, would make things worse. I'll appreciate any suggestions. — Mrs. S.

Comment: Of course, the first guess (only a guess) is "the change." If this is the reason for her fatigue and depression (two common symptoms) then I doubt that you, as a daughter, can help her. I believe her improvement must come from medical management.

I suggest that you ask for a consultation. Vitamin therapy doesn't seem to be helping her. Perhaps she needs to take female hormones, tranquilizers, or energizers.

If she happens to be suffering from "involutional melancholia" (an uncommon complication of the menopause) then her mention of suicide should be taken seriously. Her doctor may consider psychiatric consultation for appropriate preventive measures. To repeat: It's important for her doctor to welcome another medical opinion.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have had an undue amount of heartburn. Would it be likely that this is due to gall bladder trouble, ulcer, etc.? — Mrs. S.

Comment: Recently, I had (as guest) on my TV program an outstanding gastroenterologist and professor in medical school. I asked him the identical question.

His answer: "When a patient complains of heartburn alone it is usually a functional symptom. Organic disease such as gall bladder trouble, ulcer, etc., are not the reason for it."

However, we agreed that if it persists, it deserves investigation. It's not advisable to guess, and blame heartburn on nerves or tension alone.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have recently heard that drinking ice diet - drinks may cause one to give birth to a deformed child. Is this true? — Mrs. C.

Comment: Whenever in doubt about what to eat or drink; or about what medication is safe to take, especially during the first three months of pregnancy) I advise talking it over with your obstetrician.

Drug Use in Quinte Area Examined by Intelligencer Reporter

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — The idea for these stories on drug usage resulted from a recent experiment I had in this town of 14,150 residents.

Attracted by the honking of automobile horns, I was startled to see two girl wandering aimlessly in the busy street, disrupting traffic.

As they appeared unconcerned about the perils of the oncoming traffic, I skirted several stopped cars, and led the girls to the safety of the sidewalk.

They explained they had come outside because they feared the police would raid the nearby house in which they and some friends were staging a party.

Seeking an explanation, many questions crossed my mind.

Does this pair of girls use drugs?

Is drug usage common among teenagers or other local groups?

If so, why do these people take drugs?

To what extent does drug abuse accompany drug use?

And what efforts are being made locally to control drug use and drug abuse, if any?

Seeking answers I approached the girls at a later date and said my curiosity and interest were aroused by their conduct.

Also present at the time was a third teenage girl.

The trio admitted they used drugs and said they would be quite willing to discuss the matter.

After a lengthy discussion we agreed to a second meeting at which I could record on paper their comments and feelings concerning drugs.

It was at this stage that I decided to contact other persons who might be concerned with or had encountered drug use in this town.

From this point, the views of these people are interspersed with those of the girls.

Who uses drugs and how many people are involved?

The three girls estimated that one-half those in this area between the ages of 16 and 21 have tried drugs in one form or another.

"There is drug usage here, this is obvious," adds Trenton Police Chief R. J. Rutherford, noted that drugs were everywhere.

Jim Walker, vice-principal of Trenton High School concurred, saying "I think we realize there are people around here using them, but it's not an epidemic."

While few people here are in a position to accurately estimate the number who have tried drugs, many persons had ideas why some of today's teenagers may have tried drugs.

The three teenage girls told me they take drugs: "For experimenting; it's just something to do and it gives you a different outlook on life."

"Sometimes if you want to get rid of your problems you take drugs."

"You follow the crowd — do it because your friends do it — and go along with the gang at a party because it makes you feel out of place if you don't."

Noting that "drug usage is on the increase among teenagers," Dr. Lenk Hastings — Prince Edward Medical Officer of Health emphasized, "there is no doubt this is the disease of our age."

Drugs put these people in a country of illusion — they are running away from reality," adds Dr. Lenk.

"This is caused by a defect in their mental buildup which they cannot get eliminated by specialized help," he added.

However, Dr. Lenk stressed that alcohol was still more prevalent and claimed that most youngsters do not resort to drugs or excessive alcohol.

Mr. Walker explained that "youthful experimentation is a common denominator to young people."

"There are some who try drugs once or twice but also those who get hooked on them," he said noting that "the pressures on us all are greater today and people are looking for forms of relaxation."

"If the developmental process of a young person is arrested, primarily found deprivations (which can be largely unintentional), and a child's needs are not satisfied the individual has a tendency to act in as irresponsible or immature pattern" the probation officer explained.

"Deprivation it seems can produce hostility and along with this disorganization, whereby youth has a tendency to display hostile or destructive aggression," he revealed.

"Hence, both with alcohol and drugs, invariably behavior tends to lead them toward the court," he noted.

"Boredom is one of the principals of delinquency and so is the failure of a youth to meet common needs," he asserted.

"Alcohol and drugs can create a common ground for association, as can socially acceptable pursuits," he emphasized.

Comments by the girls substantiated many statements.

"Most of the kids who try drugs are bored with life — particularly with their parents — and this can be a form of rejecting their parents," one girl claimed.

A second girl said: "The parents have mostly lost their kids by the time this stage comes."

The main people who are on drugs probably drink more than they take drugs," the third girl estimated.

"It's done mostly at parties and get-togethers on weekends usually only grass (marijuana) and hash (hashish) are used — only one a week," one girl suggested.

"It's a mixed group and they're just like brothers and sisters to us — we just sit around, play cards and drink or smoke," a girl revealed.

All three girls agreed that criminal tendencies can be increased by the desire to get money for drugs, but they said this was not a common occurrence.

20 Pushers in Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — What drugs are on the local scene, where do they come from and are they easily obtainable?

A trio of local teenage girls, who admitted they "take drugs," told The Intelligencer that "drugs can be purchased locally without any trouble".

They cited grass (marijuana), hash (hashish) and acid (LSD) as the most common drugs in this area.

"Marijuana is smoked in cigarettes or pipes and costs either a 'nickel' ($5) or a 'dime' ($10)," one teenager revealed, adding that a nickel provides enough for five to seven cigarettes.

"Hash is brown or black in color and comes in small chunks which are put on the ends of cigarettes or in pipes, then inhaled," the girls said, "and a nickel will provide enough for three or four persons to get 'high'."

Acid was described by the girls as coming in all colors ($3 or more) in the form of "tabs" or "blotters" which are swallowed.

One "hit", costing about $4, is enough for a person, they said.

The girls said there is only a little speed (methamphetamine) here.

"Speed is addictive and when they say 'speed kills' it's really dost, so there's hardly any around here," they explained.

The girls added that they did not know of the existence of any heroin in this area.

Trenton's location, within easy driving distance of Toronto, may have some effect on the availability of drugs locally.

Pushers are the source of drugs locally, and the girls insist that there are an estimated 20 'pushers' here who "travel to Toronto to get the drugs from suppliers.

They buy in small quantities and then peddle or barter (perhaps for a "tab" of acid) and sell the same product down here for about $4, or perhaps more in smaller towns where drugs aren't normally available, the girls said.

"The pushers sell whatever they can get in Toronto and don't specialize in one particular drug," said one of the girls.

However it is the pusher, who also takes the biggest chance because he usually keeps the drug for the longest period and sells it on the streets, the girls added.

Dangers of Drugs

TRENTON (Staff) — Detrimental effects and possible dangers can result from drug use, states a local officer of health Dr. C. R. Lenk.

"There is no doubt this is the disease of our age," the MOH of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit said in citing the commonuse of barbiturates, tranquilizers, sleeping drugs and illegal drugs.

He stressed that drug usage is on the increase among today's teenagers.

Then, concentrating on the non-medical use of drugs, Dr. Lenk asserted that acid (Synergic acid diethylamide or LSD) was "extremely harmful and very vicious".

He said LSD was not addictive but added that it can cause re-occurrences, called "flashbacks", and more important, can break down chromosomes causing possible damage to future generations in the form of birth defects.

(methamphetamine) very "dangerous".

Dr. Lenk called "speed" — indeed it can ruin a person's health in a few years and is the most dangerous of the drugs not considered "hard".

"Heroin is a killer," he added, "but to the best of my knowledge there is none here."

"The association with "pushers" encountered by the use of drugs was cited by the medical health officer as another source of danger.

"Marijuana isn't harmful in a physical way and doesn't lead to other drugs, but a pusher may shut off the sale of this drug, so the subject look for something to replace it.

"Next the pusher seeks to earn 'real money' by selling more expensive and more dangerous drugs and this can lead to addiction."

In addition he said that the professional pushers do not take drugs themselves but often pass them on to kid pushers who sometimes take drugs as their shave but don't make money.

Other dangers cited by the health officer included misrepresentation of drugs and the sale of impure products which could cause serious harm.

After mentioning the obvious effect of reduced productivity in schoolwork, Jim Walker, a vice-principal of Trenton High School, noted that drug users could endanger others by their actions when under the influence of drugs.

Medical research's show that some drugs cause a distortion of space and time, making the user accident prone.

It has also been documented that the reactions to various drugs vary from individual to individual so that what is safe for one person may not be safe for someone else.

Help Centre Is Effective

TRENTON — One of the primary forces battling drug abuse in this town is the Help Centre on Dundas Street East.

Established in February of this year, the Help Centre is staffed by eight volunteer youths and guided by two interested adults — Father W. J. Murphy and high school teacher Mrs. Janet McKibbon.

Its purpose is three-fold — education, personal contact and emergency care.

The Help Centre is sponsored by the Trenton Kiwanis Club and is the local product of Kiwanis International's "Operation Drug Alert" program.

Father Murphy explained the philosophy that led to his involvement in these words:

"Adolescence and the emotional crises of growing from childhood to adulthood spans generation to generation," he said

"In previous generations, certain excuses were used to ease the pain of growth."

"Now a new form — drugs — is added to these escapes," he emphasized.

Why?

"Because they (drugs) are available and sometimes the pain of growth is harder to bear for youth than for adults because of the external environment, such as the smaller world and the greater mass which sometimes brings instability into our own living rooms."

"The main point is that the natural resources youth have within themselves can counteract these external forces if they (youth) really wish to use them," Father Murphy commented.

"And therefore they become much stronger people, independent of any artificial assistant.

"The challenge is theirs if they are willing to accept it, but sometimes it has to be pointed out to them."

"The same remains true in our lives as an adult, if we wish to be even more mature adults," he concluded.

Terming the operation "very good so far", Bill Alcorn, chairman of the Kiwanis committee in charge of the Help Centre, said the service club would continue to give its moral and financial support, but would seek financial assistance from other organizations.

Operating on an approximate annual budget of $2,000, the Help Centre provides a lounge, areas for private counselling and overnight facilities.

Success of the venture is based on mutual trust between the youths and the services club, Bill Alcorn said, noting that the youths also have a doctor they can rely on in case of emergencies.

"The Help Centre has been instrumental in returning five youths from Toronto and deferring several others from going," he said of least half-a-dozen teenagers they've talked to here for the present gone off drugs," he said.

"In addition they have persuaded these pushers to stop and have spoken to service clubs and school kids about drugs.

"If we save even one kid from starting on drugs it will be a success," Bill Alcorn concluded.

This summer the Help Centre will be open 24 hours a day if the volunteers are available.

The success of the Trenton venture has caused an organization in Belleville to lay plans for a similar centre, based on the same structure as the Quinte news's first Help Centre.

Would You Try Again?

TRENTON (Staff) — What effects do drugs have on the user?

Would a drug user follow the same course again if he or she knew what they do now after taking drugs?

Three teenage girls in this town answered these questions for The Intelligencer.

Grass (marijuana) and hash (hashish) are group experiences which you share by passing the cigarette or pipe around and inhaling it," one girl said.

"They are very relaxing — you get a giddy mood like drinking — plus some tiredness and sleepiness," she added.

A second girl commented: "Your hunger increases (particularly for sweets) and you experience dizziness, a loss of co-ordination and slower reflexes."

"Acid (LSD) is more of an individual experience with hallucinations and distortions," the girls explained.

All the girls agreed that drugs should not be taken by a person alone, that some friends should be around in case "you get a bummer or bad trip."

"It doesn't hurt in trying to get a job," one of the girls asserted.

Another claimed "I don't think it wrecks your life if you try it or something."

The opinions of the trio of girls varied as to whether or not they would try drugs if they were given again but knew what they do now after taking drugs.

"I would try grass and hash again, but not acid unless I had nothing else to do," one girl volunteered.

"Everyone should try grass or hash once at the age of 17 or 18," claimed the second girl.

The third girl answered the question indirectly. "I would advise someone to try drugs only if the friends were mature and know what they were doing," she added.

All three girls said that grass and hash had no lasting effects.

They noted that acid can cause re-occurences or "flashbacks", but claimed that neither grass, hash or acid were addictive.

What's Being Done?

TRENTON (Staff) — The proper method of combating drug use presents a dilemma for many local organizations, institutions and agencies.

Provincial probation officer Dennis Atkins explained the problems for The Intelligencer.

"If you don't provide drug education some are unaware of what's involved but, on the other hand, if you do educate you find youths with a tendency to experiment.

"There is a need for drug education, but there is also a need for education in other fields, particularly deprivations and the upbringing of children with emphasis on the teaching of responsibility at an early age," he said.

As probation officer, Mr. Atkins provides information about drugs on request and he also participates in panel discussions.

Many efforts to educate youth about drugs are being made locally, such as the Kiwanis Club's Help Centre which is the local product of Kiwanis International's Operation Drug Alert program.

Trenton High School has adopted a policy of supplying as much information and facts as possible and presenting them in an objective manner.

Vice-principal Jim Walker explained that grade 9 and 10 classes each receive six to 10 periods of drug education and are often supplied with charts describing and identifying the drugs and their effects, while grade 11 and 12 classes do some projects on drugs.

Medical officer of health Dr. C. R. Lenk termed the educational efforts "tremendous" and offered this opinion: Above all we must find a symbol for our youngsters to live for — something that makes them enthusiastic about living."

He expressed support for the British system of free clinics for help and the "hard drug survival program" which provides addicts with drugs to subsist on.

It is his belief that the availability of these things would eliminate to a great extent the "excitement" factor, thus reducing experimentation.

He also noted that the problem was reduced in poorer countries where people are concerned more with survival and there is less money available to the pushers.

Many of the persons contacted agreed that the role of the police in our society is one of law enforcement, rather than social work.

Camping Gear Tempts Thieves

Belleville City Police have issued a warning to citizens about supervision of their camping supplies should they be left outside overnight.

The warnings were prompted by two separate cases of theft of camping equipment left outside overnight.

Deputy Chief Harold Reid said this morning that the theft of a tent, several sleeping bags and a mattress was one of the two cases reported yesterday afternoon by a Westmount Drive resident.

"They leave supplies outside for children sometimes," Deputy Reid said. "They've got to keep an eye on camping supplies."

"If they're going to leave them outside they'll have to supervise them."

Now Adults, Youngsters Can Hear Vimy Band

Thanks to the Belleville Federation of Musicians, the public in the Quinte district will have an opportunity next week to hear the Canadian Forces Vimy Band from Kingston in concert at Zwick's Island.

A modern symphonic band with a reputation of excellence, the Vimy Band played in Belleville secondary schools this winter for students.

The Musicians Federation decided an opportunity to have the top - flight organization should not be denied the adults and smaller children of the district, and arranged to bring the band here.

It will play at the band shell at Zwick's Island next Thursday, July 2 at 7:30 p.m. In case of rain, the performance will be moved to Centennial Secondary School auditorium.

At full strength the band has about 50 members and plays for state functions and ceremonial occasions. Its purpose, in addition to providing music for government functions, is to stimulate a keener musical interest in Canadians of all ages.

The band has one native Belleville among its members. He is Sgt. Jack Denyes, who received his musical training here and is now a member of the percussion section.

Big Band Beat

One of the strong points of the Canadian Forces Vimy Band from Kingston is its 10-man percussion section, frequently brought to the fore in the up-best modern selections the band mingles with classics and traditional military airs in its programming. Standing to the left of the gong in the background is Belleville native Sgt. Jack Denyes, whose early musical training here carried him to membership in the 78-piece symphonic band. The band will be heard in concert July 2 at 7:30 p.m. at Zwick's Island, brought here by the Federation of Musicians.

'Bold Ones' Ideal Summer Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bold Ones, which is three series run in rotation, is ideally suited to the changes television executives make during the summer in an effort to brighten programs.

Motorbike Burns, Driver Unhurt

PICTON (Staff) —A Prince Edward county motorcyclist escaped injury yesterday when his bike careened across Main St., toppled to the pavement, then caught fire.

Richard Shannon, RR 1, Picton, was riding beside a curb opposite the post office when his motorcycle collided with a parked car shot across the street and hit the pavement.

The motorcycle's gas tank split and the bike burst into flames. Picton fire department answered the alarm and brought the blaze under control.

A spokesman for the Picton Police Department said today the new motorcycle was completely destroyed.

Mr. Shannon was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, where he was examined and released.

NBC has dropped one Bold Ones segment about a district attorney and a policeman and has ordered it replaced with programs about an idealistic senator. It was an easy job changing an auto's spark plugs.

David Hartman, the lanky young man who plays one of the doctors in the segment about contemporary medical advances, said the other day that while science will continue to dominate the segment, "we hope that it's going to try to humanize the characters."

It did seem sometimes last season that the antiseptic doctors were prisoners of their carefully-kept slaves to their shining equipment.

"I don't know what kind of cases we'll be having," said Hartman, "but I do hear that we're going to be given some sort of an existence outside the hospital—maybe even dates with girls."

David, 33, quit a career as a economist for acting. He had the usual lean period in New York, but has been increasingly successful in Hollywood. A native of Pawtucket, R.I., he graduated from Duke and after military service enrolled in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

His big break came with a role in the original cast of Hello, Dolly! After 88 performances in that, he was kept busy in the theatre, then signed with Universal Studios four years ago. He has been working steadily in films and television since, including one year as a regular on The Virginian. He traded his chaps and six-shooter for white coat and stethoscope in one of the E. G. Marshall in The Bold Ones.

Since Hartman's series consists of only eight or nine programs, it occupied only a couple of months of his time last season.

"But I knew the role I was going to play, and I spent months before that hanging around hospitals, watching doctors at work. I sat in on surgery, walked around with interns and got to know one cardiologist very well. It is impor-

Freak Accident Kills Driver

TRENTON (Staff) — A transport driver was killed late Tuesday afternoon in a freak accident two miles west of here.

Jean Jacques Bilodeau, 34, of Pointe Aux Trembles, Que., was driving a tractor trailer east on the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway at 5.15 p.m. the OPP said, when a station wagon driven by Myron Vlasov, 20, of La Belle, Quebec, pulled out to pass the tractor trailer but collided with it.

The tractor trailer swerved, sending the cab, engine and saddle tanks crashing through the centre barrier and plunging 23 feet to the Wooler Road.

The driver was thrown clear and rushed to Kingston General Hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

There were no other injuries. Police are still investigating.

Promoter For County Proposed

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Prince Edward county council last night voted unanimously to advertise for an industrial commissioner to promote the interests of this area.

The "decision to advertise this position followed a meeting of council's industrial and development committee where the value of brochures boosting the county was weighed against hiring a full-time industrial commissioner.

Committee members agreed not to endorse generalities of the brochures until advertisements for an industrial commissioner were placed and answered.

Chairman of the committee, George Vincent said response to the advertisement would indicate how much money the county would be required to pay for a full time promoter.

It was suggested that an industrial commissioner's salary could range from $8,000 to $18,000 annually, depending on his qualifications.

County warden Gordon Lloyd observed that from $8,000 to $10,000 would probably be within the county's budget.

"It's definitely not a welfare case," he joked.

The idea of examining the feasibility of hiring an industrial commissioner received endorsement from Bloomfield reeve Allen Anderson. "I look at Hastings County and their commissioner has Belleville on the move," he observed.

Committee chairman George Vincent emphasized the Prince Edward lacks development, partially because of poorly handled inquiries about its potential. "Blame has been put on certain groups because we haven't got development, but if inquiries came to township representatives we had very little information to supply. We've been getting what we deserve — a darned little," he commented.

Ham Operators In Competition

Ham radio operators come into their own this weekend, when amateur radio stations all over North America take part in a "simulated emergency test" under field conditions.

The Quinte Amateur Radio Club will hold its annual field day in conjunction with the event. It is scheduled for the farm of Mrs. A. Nancekivow, west of Wooler.

The object is to contact as many other stations as possible, and the local club will be assisted by the Emergency Measures Organization and co-ordinator Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy. The EMO here will lend a portable generator and other equipment for the exercise.

The field days being held all over North America June 27-28 are sponsored by the American Radio Relay League and take the form of a contest. Scores are tabulated at headquarters in Newington, Conn., and announced in December.

Welland Canal Lockage Charge Is Retained by Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is keeping the present lockage charge on the Welland Canal and has no immediate plans to increase tolls on the international portion of the St. Lawrence seaway between Montreal and Lake Ontario.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson told the Commons Tuesday that the question of tolls on the seaway's international section is in abeyance until the publication within a week of a consultants' report on the system.

Replying to questions by Thomas M. Bell (PC—Saint John-Lancaster) and William Scott (PC—Victoria-Haliburton), Mr. Jamieson said any change in tolls on the international section would require consultation with the U.S.

The Welland Canal schedule, established in 1967, set a charge of $20 a lock in that year and $29 increases each year to a maximum in 1971 of $100. The fee now is $80.

An official of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority said Tuesday the authority currently has no plans to raise the Welland charges.

The Welland Canal is administered by Canada alone.

In reply to Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), Mr. Jamieson said the economic plight of Cornwall is being "considered very sympathetically" in relation to seaway policy. The city's high unemployment is also being studied by the regional expansion department.

The seaway official said the seaway tolls are subject to revision for the 1971 navigation year.

He said the major "twinning project" planned for the Welland Canal is still under study by the government.

Animals Individualistic

Speaking of animal populations as I was the other day, reminded me that even the field of zoology has seen some startling breakthroughs in knowledge lately.

What has come to be called the "knowledge explosion" is by no means limited to such new, and recondite, areas as atomic physics or molecular biology. Our old friend, the naturalist, is learning a lot more, too.

In the last two decades, according to mamalogist Maurice Burton, some basic ideas have changed even in the relatively stable field of zoology. For instance, it was customary to divide animals into "diurnal" and "nocturnal," meaning those who hunted by day and lived by night, or vice versa.

Now we know that this division has been more man-made than God-given. Some "night" animals have been shown to be active part of the day during certain times of the year, and some smaller mammals are neither diurnal nor nocturnal, but divide the 24 hours into alternating periods of rest and action in 4- or 5-hour cycles.

(As far as the "crepuscular" animals are concerned, like bats, which operate in twilight, we have learned more about their sonic devices of hearing in the last 20 years than in the preceding 2,000.)

Not only have the old categories of day and night fallen, but the eating habits of animals are now see. to be less rigid and exclusive than zoologists used to believe — that some mammals were carnivores, others herbivorous, and still others insectivores.

Some traditional meat-eaters ingest a high proportion of fruit and vegetables, while even typical vegetarians like cattle and deer are now known to eat flesh or carrion. Recent invest igation of red foxes indicates the large amount of grass and wild fruit they consume.

What is happening in zoology seems to be a "liberating" knowledge from the old deterministic thinking of the past. Some animals have local diets, some have seasonal preferences — even idiosyncracies like humans — or whims and fads. Prof. Burton tells of a goat and a dog fed together, with the goat invariably eating the dog-food and the dog preferring the goat's rations.

In the subatomic world of physics, we are learning that nature is less rigid, less u n iform, less iron-handed, than we are learning that the subhuman species are more individualistic more "personal," as it were, than the mechanists used to think. There is a larger place for whimsy in the universe than philosophers have dreamed of.

Israelis and Syrians Wage Border Fight

Battle Answer To Peace Move

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's air force ranged deep into Syria today, and air, tank and artillery battles engulfed the Syrian - Israeli frontier in the wake of a heavy Syrian tank and artillery attack on Israeli posts in the Golan Heights Wednesday night.

Israeli tanks and planes crossed the ceasefire line to attack Syrian emplacements and gun positions, and fighting was still going on at 1 p.m.—7 a.m. EDT—a spokesman said.

Fighting broke out along the entire 50-mile ceasefire line but was heaviest in the central sector, military sources said.

An Israeli spokesman said the air force attacked camps at Quiana, 16 miles southwest of Damascus, and Kiswah, 19 miles south of the city. He also reported an attack on another camp at Selfeq, near Sowayda, 60 miles southeast of the capital.

A Syrian army spokesman in Damascus confirmed the attacks on Quiana and Kiswah, saying the Israeli jets bombed and strafed the two towns.

The spokesman said Syrian air force and anti-aircraft guns challenged the raiders, but an Israeli spokesman reported: "All Israeli planes are safe."

The Israeli and Syrian accounts of the Golan Heights battle Wednesday night differed sharply, as Israeli and Arab reports usually do. The Syrians said 175 Israeli soldiers were killed or wounded; the Israelis said they had one killed and seven wounded.

Al Baath, a Damascus newspaper which speaks for Syria's governing Baath Socialist party, linked the raid to the new United States proposals for a Middle East settlement. Observers said it indicated the Damascus government will not agree to a ceasefire, reported part of the U.S. plan. Syria has never agreed to the United Nations Security Council's ceasefire resolution calling for a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The Arabs said their tanks and other armored vehicles crossed the 50-mile ceasefire line at dusk beneath a furious artillery barrage and inflicted heavy damage on two Israeli fortifications in the heights Israel captured from Syria in the 1967 war. The Israelis said three Syrian tanks crossed the line, two were destroyed and the other fled.

Israeli military spokesmen said their artillery, tank and air attacks silenced the Arab guns after two hours.

It was the first reported attempt by Syrian ground forces to breach the ceasefire line since 1967.

A senior Israeli officer reported the Syrians have massed 200 to 300 tanks and 600 artillery pieces along the frontier.

In Damascus, a military spokesman said the Syrian forces stormed two Israeli positions and destroyed 12 tanks, five halftracks, five observation posts and two radar stations. He said the tanks returned to their bases, harried along the way by Israeli jets. He said one Israeli plane was shot down on the Israeli side of the line.

Judy Burns Shines to Learn

Student Demonstrates Virtues of Enterprise

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Judy Burns, 19-year-old psychology major, is "doing her thing" at day apprenticeship."

The next step was to learn what patron response would be and "response has been good."

Judy feels that she should get her tuition fee from her summer job.

"I've made $25 and I've only been here one week," she said. "The customers are very good and the shoeshine stand is rent free."

And Judy's hardworking responsibility does not stop at the shoe-shine stand. In addition to her employment she is involved actively in the newly-organized Belleville Pollution Probe.

It is for this reason that she decided to come to Belleville and try her luck here. Things looked just as dismal until the shoe-shine job came along.

U.S. Makes New Peace Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary William P. Rogers said today the United States has presented a diplomatic peace effort in the Middle East designed "to encourage the parties to stop shooting and start talking."

Rogers told a news conference the U.S. wants the Arab and Israeli foes to move, under United Nations auspices, "towards a real and lasting peace which takes fully into account the legitimate aspirations and concerns of all governments and peoples of the area."

Rogers refused to go into details on the U.S. peace proposal but it was understood the U.S. plan calls on Egypt, Israel and Jordan for:

—A ceasefire for at least 90 days.

Tonkin Resolution Repealed

U.S. Senate to Consider Deadline for War's End

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The United States turns today to a controversial proposal to withdraw all U.S. forces from Vietnam by mid-1971 after voting overwhelmingly to repeal the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution which president Lyndon Johnson used as authority to send more than 500,000 troops to South Vietnam.

The Senate voted Wednesday to overturn the vaguely-worded Tonkin Gulf resolution by 81 votes to 10.

Many members felt bitter over what they regard as Johnson's improper use of the resolution as a blank cheque for the U.S. troop buildup in Vietnam after a reported North Vietnamese attack on two U.S. destroyers.

The vote appeared mainly symbolic as the Nixon administration said it does not rely on the Tonkin Gulf resolution as authority for its actions in Indochina.

Republican leaders say President Nixon is using his constitutional powers as commander-in-chief to protect troops who were in Vietnam when he took office in January, 1969.

Senate supporters of the administration have publicly threatened to bring the new "amendment to end the war" up for a quick vote, which means it would probably be defeated.

The chief sponsors of the controversial proposal, Senators George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) and Mark Hatfield (Rep. Ore.), would prefer a vote in late summer, which would give them more time to muster support.

MacDonald Quitting As Ontario NDP Chief

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald today announced he is stepping down as leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party after 17 years.

Mr. MacDonald, 56, told a news conference he was retiring from the leadership at the party's October convention to make room for a younger man on what he called "the verge of the election of a New Democratic government in Ontario."

Mr. MacDonald has been challenged only once since he took over the leadership in 1953 when the party, then known as the CCF, held only two seats in the legislature.

Ontario Would Accept Compulsory Controls

Robarts Thinks Public Realizing Need for Pay, Price Curbs

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Wednesday the public is beginning to see the need for income and price restraints. He said Ontario would be willing to accept compulsory federal controls.

The premier said in an interview that Ontario now is co-operating with the federal voluntary restraint program but he indicated this co-operation may turn out to be of little value.

Without compulsory controls, the provinces really had no constitutional power to say "thou shall or shall not" to private companies and unions. They could not intervene directly in price setting or labor disputes.

"I feel voluntary restraints will have some effect but they won't bring the dramatic results the federal government wishes," he said.

Voluntary restraints could possibly reduce wage increases to about 10 per cent, but he doubted the six-per-cent maximum the federal government has proposed could be achieved that way.

"It is difficult for us to take effective action in Ontario to beat a nationwide problem," Mr. Robarts said. "Inflation really is a federal matter and if Ottawa decides compulsory controls are necessary we would accept them."

The premier said Ontario first agreed to co-operate in the federal voluntary program to fight inflation at last August's federal-provincial conference.

At a second conference in Winnipeg early in June, Ontario and other provinces tentatively endorsed the six-per-cent maximum on wage increases, called for by John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson has since suggested that the provinces could put teeth into voluntary by imposing the guidelines in negotiations with civil servants and by putting indirect pressure on employers to hold the line, perhaps even by threatening withdrawal of government orders.

Mr. Robarts has publicly rejected these suggestions and has informed Mr. Young that the province will not impose the six-per-cent wage guidelines on its civil servants.

He said Wednesday that the province will take no new action on a federal request that the provinces attempt to restrain rents. He pointed to Ontario's new landlord-tenant act, which empowers municipalities to establish rent review boards, and said he feels this is enough for now. So far only two communities have established rent review boards.

In an earlier interview, J. K. Reynolds, secretary to the provincial cabinet and Mr. Robarts' right-hand man in federal-provincial negotiations, described Ontario, the most populous, most industrialized province, as the key to success in federal restraint programs.

He said Ottawa could impose compulsory controls without provincial co-operation through constitutional provisions that allow federal emergency action for the sake of peace, order and good government.

"But it is unlikely the federal government would attempt a compulsory program without first obtaining the full agreement of the provinces at a federal-provincial conference."

In the meantime, the provinces are left in the difficult position of having supported the restraint program but without any real power to carry out their endorsement.

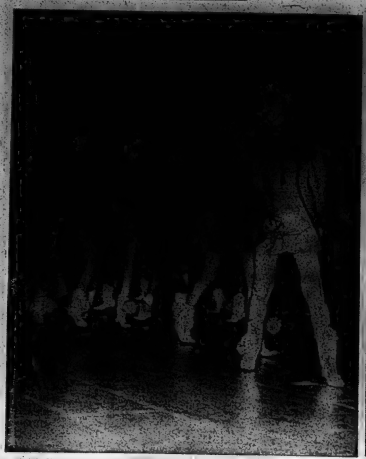
Britain Will Fight Inflation by Cutting Taxes

LONDON (CP) — The new Conservative government has prepared a plan to fight inflation in Britain by cutting taxes.

This is a radical departure from several other countries who have used tax increases as a weapon to combat inflation.

Britons have been under a "freeze and squeeze" program that the Labor government clamped on four years ago.

The Conservative program is to be unfurled July 3, in the speech from the throne opening the new session of Parliament and outlining the policies of Prime Minister Edward Heath's government. The program is expected to go into effect immediately afterward, subject to later approval by Parliament.



Inflation in Britain, Heath said recently "is not the result of running an economy at too fast a pace with high demand and shortages of manpower and of capital equipment."

"Our problem is not too much money chasing too few goods but too much taxation chasing too little income."

He said the old "freeze-and-squeeze" method of combatting rising wages and prices would only result in "throwing even more men out of work by the traditional methods of demand deflation and higher taxation."

Heath believes that by cutting taxes, industry will have greater profits and thus less excuse for raising prices. At the same time workers will have more money in their pockets and less excuse for demanding raises.

The answer to Britain's problem, Heath said, "is to break into the price-wage spiral by acting directly to reduce prices."

Following the crowning of the 1970-71 Dairy Princesses for Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, students from the Belleville, New Jersey high school, presented the crowd of 500 visitors with more than an hour and a half of music, dance drills, and song. The show was presented at the Belleville Armories. Earlier, on the grounds of the Ontario School for the Deaf, 1969 Ontario Dairy Princess Lorene Archdekin and CJBQ Farm Director Phil Flagler comment on the milking contest in which the four contestants each milked Holstein cows and cleaned their equipment. Although working in a downpour at the end, each girl came through with flying colors. Before the contest, the judges put the girls through a stiff questioning period. Here judges J. C. Palmer, a director with the Milk Marketing Board, Toronto; William McCorquodale, Toronto and Freeman Miller, Kemptville, both of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, question 17-year-old Susan Ray, contestant for the Hastings County Crown.

Dianne Gunning, Dorothy Parks Crowned Dairy Princesses

Four girls representing Hastings and Prince Edward Counties braved the drenching rain last night in the annual Dairy Princess competition held on the grounds of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Vying for the position of 1970 Hastings Dairy Princess were last year's Princess Dianne Gunning, 18, of RR 1, Tweed, and Susan Ray, 17, of RR 2 Roslin.

Competitors for the Prince Edward County crown were last year's Princess Dorothy Parks, 20, of RR 2 Bloomfield and a contestant from last year, Judy Ellis, 19, of RR 2 Milford.

Although the pending storm was making its presence known, the contest was to proceed according to schedule and the milking stations were erected for the event.

Each girl underwent thorough questioning by the three judges, J. C. Palmer, a director with the Milk Commission of Ontario, Toronto; Bill McCorquodale of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, Toronto, and Freeman Miller, Ontario Milk Marketing Board, Kemptville.

As explained later, the answers to these questions played the most important role in the judging of the girls.

Following the question period, each girl took up her position at the milking tables and was introduced to the crowd of approximately 300 people by CJBQ radio personality and farm director, Phil Flagler and Ontario Dairy Princess Lorene Archdekin, 20, of RR 2 Brampton.

Although a steady drizzle was soaking the scene, the entire proceedings were being broadcast with an on-the-spot report and commentary by Miss Archdekin.

As the rain increased, some of the crowd of well-wishers fled to the safety of the OSD gymnasium.

Soaked but not disheartened the girls finished the milking in record time under the trying conditions. Following this, they gave a three - minute address.

Speeches concluded the evenings event at the OSD grounds and the scene shifted to the Belleville Armories, where the presentations took place.

With suspense mounting, the girls, now changed into cool summer dresses from their milkmaid costumes, waited each other luck and the announcements were made.

Dianne Gunning was presented with her Hastings County winner's sash by Belleville New Jersey Mayor Kenneth Smith.

After the applause subsided, the girls were presented with a large array of gifts and the festivities began.

Between August 29 and September 3, both winners will travel to Toronto to compete in the Ontario Dairy Princess finals.

Visiting Belleville yesterday and entertaining at last night's performance, also live over CJBQ radio, were 104 students and the 20-piece high school band from Belleville, N.J., under the directorship of Robert A. Wing.

The two buses left the States at 5.30 a.m. on Tuesday, going first to Syracuse, N.Y. to do a show and then on to Belleville where the students took part in the "Quinte Beef" supper provided by the ladies of the Quinte Beef Producers Association.

What one person at last night commented on as 'one of the most professional performances and certainly one which none of our local high schools could compete with . . . possibly none in the province", was responsible for full audience participation by the more than 500 people present.

One CJBQ announcer said at 10.30, two hours after the beginning of the show, "so far I haven't seen anybody leave . . . it's a great show."

The high school cast, in a variety of sometimes dazzling and certainly beautiful costumes added th. perfect touch to the evening's festivities.

Following the performance a reception for the Dairy Princesses was held in the officers mess of the Belleville Armories.

The visitors from New Jersey stayed at Albert College, leaving this morning for another performance, this time in Montreal.

Pump Ready Monday

Boaters will have an opportunity to rid themselves of their sewage when they dock in Belleville starting next week.

Harbor Marine, managed by Douglas Knight, will be equipped by the first of next week with a sewage pump.

Mr. Knight told The Intelligencer this morning that work would be completed by Monday after beginning construction last year, when he was visited by a representative of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Mr. Knight explained that each boat is required by law to have a holding tank for sewage. This slops any waste from entering the water.

His pump makes it possible for sewage from boats to be pumped into Belleville's sewage system.

IN MEMORIAM

McCOMB — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Florence Isabel McComb, who passed away June 26th, 1968.
A light is from our homestead gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has decreed
He has not willed us to repine,
But as He will it we believe
Our trust in Him is all divine.
—Always remembered by daughter Doris, son-in-law Don and grandchildren Terry, Valerie and Debbie.

McCOMB — In loving memory of a dear mother, Florence Isabel McComb, who passed away June 26th, 1968.
Sweet memories are all I have left,
Of a dear friend,
One I loved best whom God could lend.
Loving, thoughtful, gentle and true,
Always willing a kind act to do.
—Never forgotten by daughter Dorothy, Harvey and family.

Why Buy Life Insurance?
"Life insurance is a character pen-chant. Men buy it because they are thrifty and believe in establishing certain plans; they buy it because they are sentimental about their wives; people men pay their debts whether they like to do it or not; they buy it because they are sentimental about their homes, families and their lives, including their business lives, including their business lives. They buy it because they love economy and they buy it because they are the thoughtful to their dependents. In short, in every situation if it is within their power to do something about it."

Shriners and Airmen Thrill Crippled Children with Aerial Day

Reactions varied when the Belleville Shrine Club and Air Transport Squadron 437 played host to 58 crippled children from the Quinte district at CFB Trenton yesterday. Highlight of the day, which included lunch, movies, an air rescue display off Baker Island and presentation of gifts from the squadron, was a 1½-hour flight from Trenton to Niagara Falls and back on one of the new 707 aircraft. Shriner Noble Hammy Dodge and airforce personnel helped children aboard the big jet, (left), but once aloft Diedre Evans, 5, of Picton, (centre), found the "bumps in the road" caused by air turbulance at 2,600 feet over Niagara Falls frightening and was comforted by Capt. Robert Burke of 437 Squadron. Steven Claus, 9, of Deseronto, worn out by a half-day of tours, displays and excitement, was lulled to sleep by the aircraft's motion. St. John Ambulance personnel from Belleville, CFB stewardesses and stewards and a doctor and nurse from the medical corps accompanied the children on the flight. Although the children were among the first civilians to experience a flight on the new 707 jet, this was the fourth annual occasion on which the air force treated crippled children of the district to a ride on an aircraft and special tour of the base.

Isidore Cooperman Named UCS Director

Isidore Cooperman, a former branch director of the Toronto YMHA and YWHA, has been appointed executive director of the United Community Services of Belleville and District.

Robert J. Ord, president of UCS, announced the appointment this morning. Mr. Cooperman will begin his duties June 29.

He came to Canada in 1964 to act as branch director of the Y's in Toronto, after serving in executive positions with the Queensboro Council for Social Welfare and the Pomonok Community Centre in Flushing, N.Y. and the Jewish Community Council in Pittsfield, Mass.

He is a graduate, with an MSW degree, from the Columbia University School of Social Work.

Mr. Cooperman was a founding director of the Ontario Association for Continuing Education and has served as its president. He has also been a board member of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, the Toronto Branch of the Ontario Association of Professional Social Workers and of his congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooperman have two daughters—one married and living in Brooklyn, N.Y., with two children, and another, aged 7, living at home.

"I am impressed by the evident economic growth of Belleville, which necessitates more concern about people," Mr. Cooperman said after announcement of his appointment.

"My basic job will be to effect on-going communication among people on all levels, to begin to understand their social needs," he added. "A community working together can best cope with social needs and change."

Mr. Cooperman added that UCS is concerned not only with social agencies, but also, through its planning arm, with bringing government, social agencies, industry, labor and religious groups together for action.

After "getting into the guts of the community to meet the people," the new director sees his next task to be an audit of all social resources, health, welfare and education, in the community.

Since the resignation of the first UCS director 1½ years ago, the agency has been run by co-ordinators Mrs. Harry Fast and Mrs. Freeman Burrows.

They served on a voluntary basis in holding the operation together in the absence of an executive director.

Mrs. Fast has left the city to join her husband in Zambia, where he is acting as a consultant on railway operations.

Mrs. Burrows will continue to serve on a consulting basis with UCS and will continue to direct the Volunteer Bureau.

325 Homes-on-wheels Converging on Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Centennial Park will resemble a modern version of a jumbo wagon train this weekend.

The occasion is the fifth annual rally of the Travel Trailer Clubs Association of Ontario, running from June 26 to 28.

Rally chairman Ed Todd of the host Quinte Travel Trailer Club expects that 325 present day "wagon trains" from the Association's 26 clubs will journey to Trenton for the annual rally which is being held here for the first time.

Working on an average of 2.5 persons per trailer, the Quinte club rally executive is counting on accommodating 1,200 persons.

The first visitor arrived from Markham at 10 a.m. Wednesday and by dusk 50 members of the host club and the "Tweet Centennial Trailer Club had set up in Centennial Park to prepare for the weekend influx.

Ed Todd noted that the tower had donated the use of, Trenton Community Gardens and Centennial Park for the rally and said "the co-operation has been marvellous, especially from Mayor Duncan McDonald and council, the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and Community Gardens manager Harold Long.

"This isn't a money-making venture but our anticipation is that it will drop a few thousand dollars into the coffers of the town," he said.

"Every TTCAO member club is expected to sponsor the annual rally sometime and we felt that we should this year," he explained.

Quinte club members have prepared many weekend activities for the visitors who will come from as far as Windsor in the west and Fenbroke in the east.

Following the registration Friday, the activity will pick up Friday evening with a pyjama and torchlight parade through downtown Trenton.

Participating in the parade will be the Quinte Travel Trailer Club's "Kazoo Band" which played for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip "in 1967.

Bill McWilliam made the instruments, which consist of common kitchen utensils with a "kazoo" attached.

A campfire on the bayshore will conclude Friday's activities and set the stage for Saturday's action.

Mayor Duncan McDonald and the Trenton Citizens Band will be present at 10 a.m. Saturday for the official flag raising and opening ceremonies.

At 2.30 p.m. a professional magician, Terry the Harry Magician, will perform during a children's hour.

Then the Trenton merchants Treasure Hunt will be held with local merchants providing gifts and prizes. The visitors will be required to find their registry number in a local merchant's window to earn their prize.

Saturday evening the Quinte Club will provide a full-course meal for just 50 cents.

Saturday evening activity will centre on inter-club entertainment in which each club performs an act in the Community Gardens.

Sunday there will be a pancake breakfast, an interdenominational church service (open to the public), the association's business committee meeting in the afternoon and a Sunday evening performance by the CFB Trenton Sing Out group.

Monday, CFB Trenton will stage an air rescue show on the waterfront, the Trenton Fire Department will put on a demonstration and a trailer road-eo will be staged.

During the five-day rally, which concludes Tuesday, CFB Trenton, Corby's Distilleries at Cobourgville and Bata Industries Limited will stage conducted tours for the visitors.

In addition, a number of commercial display will be set up in Centennial Park.

Welfare Role

Prince Edward County councillors this week went through what one member called "the most boisterous meeting in 13 years." The subject was welfare assistance costs.

The advent of new families on the rolls brought one comment that a number of city residents were moving into the area and applying for aid. Obviously there must be some truth in the matter. However, Belleville city council had a somewhat similar discussion two weeks ago with aldermen expressing strong objections to welfare cases from other communities moving into the city.

It does suggest that a closer study of the mobility of the welfare family should be undertaken. Perhaps the officials in the provincial social and family services department already have these answers but, if they do, they are not making the information known to municipal councils.

When the situation has reached the point of Prince Edward where 30 per cent of the county tax rate is going to provide social and family services, as Warden Gordon Lloyd claims, then it is time for a review.

Belleville claims it is a target for the welfare family because of its industrial growth of the past few years.

Prince Edward claims it is overburdened because of a lower cost of living enabling the welfare cheque to stretch a little further.

Tangled in the skein is the recurring complaint of all municipalities that some welfare families can be given more money than those on the lower end of the income scale can earn at their jobs.

Warden Lloyd thought he had one answer — he suggested the Children's Aid Society (although that is not its official name now) and the welfare department should join.

He is not even suggesting this might save money. He rather, holds out the hope it might do a lot better job.

The continuing upset in communities about the cost of providing this social role does make it evident it behooves the province to provide some answers.

An Appropriate Use

Kiwanians this week held their regular luncheon meeting outdoors at Riverside Park. It was an appropriate spot for such a move for this service club, along with the Rotary Club, was instrumental in getting this park project started.

That the club departed from its usual meeting format is also cause for comment for it does show how service club movement is, to borrow from the stage, "alive and well in downtown Belleville."

If anyone has not visited this particular park along the Moira River they should do so immediately. It is a delightful relaxing spot and tends to suggest rather strongly that the department's budget for parks development is being spent wisely.

Continuous Care Needed

A report from the department of lands and forests at Tweed that already this year there have been more forest fires than last year should serve as a strong warning to anyone using the woods.

Acreage burned has tripled and it is a waste of our natural resources if even one acre of destroyed timber is the result of human carelessness.

The story is there in black and white — personal injury and property damage as the result of negligence. It should be uppermost in everyone's mind who has occasion for the rest of the summer to travel through the wooded areas of Hastings.

Ironic

It was ironic that a project so closely tied in with farming — picking of the Quinte area dairy princesses — should be disrupted by the one thing farmers need most of all at this time, rain.

However, the show did go on last night as four contenders for the crown's milked cows throughout the storm as the watchers fled for cover in buildings at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

In a quick shuffle, sponsors switched the bagel concert to the Armory and enabled the 120-piece Belleville, N.J. high school marching band to strut its stuff.

It was a delightful interchange between the two cities and, it was a tribute to the hospitality of our city that Mayor Ken Smith of Belleville N.J., who visited here during Belleville Week last Fall took the opportunity for a return to this community.

Dialogue with a Radical

The Sad, Sick—But Dangerous—Platitudes of "Protest"

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Parliament Hill this last year has become a parade ground of protest.

It is a beautifully made-to-order arena for it.

There are the wide lawns spit by the Main Walk and the Confederation Flame. At one end the broad sweep of steps up to the peace Tower. At the other the Main Gates of ancient wrought iron leading out onto Wellington street where stands — low conveniently — the American Embassy.

Everybody gets to see and hear. The public. Parliamentarians. American tourists. Visiting students. Cabinet ministers. Even Prime Minister Trudeau.

What better place to call the Prime Minister a Fascist Pig or a four-letter word—as he has been called.

Protesters have protested, dissenters dissented marchers marched.

The great wooden doors of the Centre Block have been hammered. The Commons has been closed. Bombs have exploded. The Prime Minister has been reviled, Police — federal and city — have swarmed on and off the Hill. Heads have been cracked. Arrests made.

All this in the name of Protest.

What do these people want?

Peace, they say, as if that word covers everything in the world like a tent.

But when asked to explain, they talk in circles.

Speak to one of them — a Maoist, peacenik, hippie, new leftist — or almost any other member of the wildly variegated Radical Revolutionary World-in-Flames, and you will find out what frustration really is.

Ontario Conservative MP Wallace Nesbitt of Oxford, a 37-year Commons veteran; has taken a run at this Mission Impossible, and reports the dialogue went something like this:

Wallace Nesbitt: What is the matter with society and its democratic process of Parliament?

Young Maoist: It is irrelevant and arrogantly unresponsive.

WN: What is needed?

YM: Meaningful people relations.

WN: Which results in?

YM: Uncommunication. Dead line. Nobody answers.

WN: I am trying to get through.

YM: Nobody home.

WN: So what happens?

YM: Uptightness.

WN: What has to loosen us up?

YM: Meaningful dialogue of everyone under 30.

WN: The over-30s have no meaning?

YM: They are dead.

WN: So I am dead, so what about dialogizing the under-30s if there is no communication?

YM: We plug them in by radicalizing the moderates, like squares who think they can make it by working.

WN: How?

WN: Whose democracy and who participates?

YM: Ours. We do.

WN: But suppose the moderates just go on living and working and trying to make it in the square world, how do you compel their participation?

YM: We manipulate them, forcing them to link by confronting the Establishment.

WN: Exactly how?

YM: We march. Throw pots in the American embassy. Set bonfires on Parliament Hill. Call the PM a pig. Push people off the sidewalk. Sing a square. You know, roust.

WN: And then?

YM: Then there comes running. Creates a few heads. Make some pinches. Do-gooders deplore the violence. Moderates wonder what is up. The media makes a big deal of it, especially TV. We are in business.

WN: The media, what is the relationship there?

YM: With us it is a love-hate thing. We despise its objectivity as the voice of the Establishment, but we adore its easy manipulative use.

WN: Then it how?

WN: How, precisely?

YM: Helplessly it assists us in creating doubts. Appeases ment results. We get what we want when others do not. We can push our underground paper, pretty obscene stuff, you know, on the Mall or the Corral where the Red Cross, the Cancer Fund or the Heart Society are out to sell tags.

WN: OK, you are making yards, what next?

YM: Onward and upward: New demands. New confrontations.

WN: What kind of new demands?

YM: Non-negotiable demands. We want what we want or else. Give us the world.

WN: Or else what?

YM: We fight. If the fuzz grabs us we spit at the judge, tell him to stuff his court. You know, you have read us do it. Right here in the National Capital.

WN: This is fun?

YM: Not really. But necessary. Society hates. We are going to put it out of its misery.

We say kill it, we will survive and inherit what is left.

WN: But what are you going to do with it?

YM: Who cares, as long as it is ours.

Fun for the Kids

Durban, on South Africa's golden coast, attracts 35,000 overseas tourists annually. An important port, Durban is also a city of sub-tropical parks, eastern markets and oriental bazaars, a city too of tradition with museums and other evidence of the past. Latter day Durban is reflected by its night clubs and theatres and performances by ballet companies, and symphony orchestras. For young and old there are the blessings of a pleasant climate — and for the young people in particular Little Top, a tent theatre with lively audiences like the youngsters seen here.

Argentine Coup

Dictatorship Cult Persists In Latin American Lands

Christian Science Monitor

The pattern of political change in Latin America is itself in Argentina. This pattern is based on the paternalism and feudalism of the Latin countries' Iberian progenitors, Spain and Portugal. Strongmen rules often amplified by the authoritarian heritage of the church, is clearly persistent.

Indeed, some students of Latin affairs argue that real change to truly democratic rule will never come. They say that the Latin nations are failing further behind the dominant economic axis of Japan, the United States, and Western Europe. This accentuates the pressures generated within Latin - American nations as they change from agrarian to technological societies. Also years of elitist class rule have left the larger masses of Latin Americans uneducated, since the vote has always been tied to literacy, the masses have not shared what scant voice in the democratic process there has been.

But there are slim signs of hope in Argentina — despite the kidnapping of former President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu last week and the deposing of President Juan Carlos Ongania this week. The leader of the military junta which has just asserted its power, Lt. Gen. Alejandro Lanusse, like General Aramburu before him, is at least committed to the principle of civilian rule.

The country was not heading in that direction under President Ongania. In fact, the turmoil in the country — a worker revolt at an inflation - fighting showdown of the economy, a student revolt at the anti-intellectualism and repressive tactics of the Onganía regime — seemed to be putting off any return to rule by election for some time. Because those of Ongania could give the ruling Junta a period of grace in which to let the government against Onganía lapse. It is conceivable a civilian could be put in as caretaker, with an eye for eventual elections and full civilian rule.

But this is not certain. The strongman rule — which puts the spotlight on personal force of an individual or the military above the ability of the people to govern themselves — is painfully slow in Latin America. In Argentina's case, Lanusse has a in the richest and has had the strongest middle class of any Latin-American land. Democracy may be built all the more inexcusable.

Ironic Faith in Commonwealth

Douglas-Home Could Shift Foreign Affairs Goals

LONDON (CP) —Election of a Conservative government in Britain may mean important shifts in London's policy towards other countries, including relations with members of the Commonwealth.

Back in charge of the foreign and Commonwealth office is veteran Sir Alec Douglas-Home, who differs in some important respects from his Labor government predecessor, Michael Stewart.

One account published in London of the differences between Stewart and the 65-year-old Douglas-Home suggests that the Conservative is likely to place more faith in the Commonwealth than in the United Nations, although he is well aware of the Commonwealth's limitations as an instrument of international action.

Yet elsewhere reactions to the Conservative election victory include the prediction that Prime Minister Heath's new government will be too preoccupied with economic and European questions to spare much time for commonwealth affairs.

Heath must plunge almost immediately into negotiations for British entry into the European Common Market. And he also has to deal with crucial domestic problems, such as control of the income and prices spiral inside Britain.

But overseas affairs may prove one of the first major sources of controversy between the government and the opposition now led by former prime minister Wilson.

For one thing, Douglas-Home — himself prime minister in 1963-64—is much less unsympathetic towards South Africa in the matter of British sales of arms to that fascist-minded wealth country than was the former government in London.

Moreover, he can be expected to share the belief of many in his party that there should be one more try by Britain at reaching a settlement with Ian Smith's Rhodesia.

The Conservative attitude on the South Africa question means that the Heath government is at least contemplating partial repeal of the Labor government's ban against arms shipments to the republic.

Douglas-Home, foreign secretary in 1960-63, has echoed the distinction made by his party between sale of arms for use against disturbances within South Africa and those involving opponents of the racial apartheid policy there—and deals involving weapons earmarked for that country's external defence, a category the Tories consider to be admissible.

Conservative-Labor differences shape up too in the matter of Wilson's policy of withdrawing British military forces from points east of Suez.

The likelihood now is that a British presence will be maintained in potential hotspots such as the Persian Gulf and that London will not entirely turn its back on Southeast Asia.

But much foreign-policy attention in the months immediately ahead will be focussed on Heath's reiterated commitment to the bid for Britain's entry into the European Economic Community.

And indications are that the present prime minister is more popular than was Wilson in the country where opposition to British membership was most pronounced in past years—France.

Book on Leacock Written by Former Belleville Resident

By NANCY BARRIAGE
Staf Reporter

One of Canada's leading literary men for his humorous writings has recently been brought to the foreground in a book entitled The Man in the Panama Hat. Is author is Mrs. Elizabeth Kimball, niece of Canada's own Stephen Leacock.

Mrs. Kimball was formerly Elizabeth Burrowes and grew up in Belleville in the Farley house on Dufferin St. recalls Miss Nichols, proprietor of the Quinte Book Store.

Mrs. Kimball's mother, Daisy, was the youngest of 11 children born to Agnes Butler Leacock, a sister of Stephen. Elizabeth received her early education in Belleville and graduated from the University of Toronto.

In the book Mrs. Kimball recalls her childhood when she shared her uncle's world. It begins with a description of Leacock Land in order to orient the reader. Agnes Leacock her grandmother, lived in a cottage at the bottom of Lake Simcoe, 90 miles from Toronto. Uncle Stephen lived at the top of Old Brewery Bay (Orillia). However, the real home was four miles distant from the cottage. Here her grandmother spent the majority of her time when not at the cottage. Now the reader can visualize the surroundings as the author outlines the geography of the area.

In a prosaic, flowing style she proceeds to give a chronological history of her childhood and growing up years. She discusses the family as a whole and devotes a few chapters to the main personage, Uncle Stephen. As she describes her uncle it is evident that she is honestly outlining his character since his best qualities are depicted as well as his good ones. Mrs. Kimball is endeavoring to get across to the reader the man as she personally knew him.

She mentions he had the most wonderful voice she had ever heard, "the voice of a man who could, surely, have descended from no other people but the Irish". Leacock was born in England and loved his English heritage but his mother's people had lived in Ireland for generations before moving to England.

She remembers him as a kind, loving and generous man who did not speak down to children. He was a great fisherman, sailor, gardener and carpenter and spent many happy hours indulging himself in these hobbies.

His wife, Beatrix was a beautiful, very quiet woman who gave him one child, a son, Stephen who now lives in Toronto. He has said of his father "that he had a great sense of humor but he got very angry sometimes. However, the anger did not last for long. He told the author: "Oh, yes, indeed he had a temper," — but then what would you expect? A man who is given to high spirits and great stations, naturally experiences the reverse. Just as he was way up, when he was up so he was away down when he was down." He was nevertheless, she says, an essentially a happy man.

An amusing incident is recalled when Leacock asked her to fetch him a bottle open er. She unwittingly brought back a corkscrew whereupon Leacock got angry and threw it the length of verandah. He then turned to her mother and said: "Daisy you have raised an idiot."

Mrs. Kimball says her uncle very much liked to play God. He loved his family enormously, thought few of them knew what was good for them. Since he grew up in an unhappy household in which his father drank, beat up his mother, brothers and sisters and he was forced to kick his father out and become head of the household, he wanted desperately to set things right for his family. Even though he was not the oldest boy the task fell on his shoulders.

Uncle George, her favorite uncle, went over Stephen's stories with him and togetherthey refined them. Daisy said "He loved a joke — his own or anyone else's and I think he got more pleasure out of Sunshine Sketches than anything else he wrote." Agnes Leacock and her son, Stephen were very close emotionally as well as intellectually.

She was well educated in England and it was from her that Leacock inherited his sense of humor. They would often discuss his works together.

When Leacock died in 1942 he died leaving never outgrown his essential qualities of generosity and thoughtfulness, she says.

Her brother, Stephen, confirms the facts outlined in her book. He still resides in the Belleville area and, when interviewed, he recalled his fishing expeditions with his uncle when he visited him at Old Brewery Bay. Although he was only a child also when he knew Leacock, he remembers that he rarely seemed depressed. "There were always a lot of grown ups there whenever we visited Uncle Stephen at his home" said Mr. Burrowes, "and we children would have preferred to be elsewhere playing although we liked Uncle Stephen very much. He was always kind and good with children but we did get homesick."

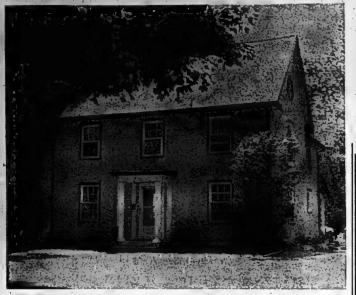
"Aunt Beatrix was very quiet and she loved children. Their son now, resides in Toronto but when we were young we used to visit him as mentioned in the book. Leacock was especially good to my mother since she was the youngest sister and he felt it was his responsibility to look after her."



There is another brother, Dick, who also lives in Belleville. He and his family live in the family home where he grew up. Dick Burrowes mentioned that he had read many of Leacock's works and he noted that the facts mentioned in his sister's book are quite valid.

He remembered an incident involving Stephen Leacock which was quite amusing. Having decided to provide his own eggs rather than buying them on the market, he bought a number of hens. However, since feed was so expensive, he decided to raise his own. Consequently, he bought a horse to till the ground, built a shed to house it and the hens and when he had finished the price of the eggs was outrightly no bargain.

The hens eventually ended on the dining roomtable.

Mr. Burrowes mentioned that he was only a child when he knew his uncle but he remembered Jones the gardener in particular. Jones was a Premier Frost's valet in the First World War.

The boys spent most of their time in the boat house where Uncle Stephen wrote Sunshine Sketches. He recalled that his uncle was always a kind man,' a characteristic which children would be sure to remember.

Iroquois Ask Queen to Support Their Claim to Independence

BRANTFORD (CP) — Iroquois Confederacy Warriors, a splinter group on the Six Nations Indian Reserve, asked the Queen Wednesday for support in anticipated squabbles over independence with the federal government.

The request is one of a series of moves by Indians on the reserve aimed at asserting independence from the Canadian government.

A rift that developed over the question of independence has split the reserve into three groups: The elective band council and supporters; the Iroquois Confederacy, a group of hereditary chiefs; and the Warriors.

Early Wednesday, a group of about 75 militant Warriors took over the council house, replacing locks on the door with their own locks.

Then they sailed a notice on the front door, proclaiming the reserve near Brantford an independent nation.

Members of the government-recognized council were refused admission to the house.

A spokesman for the Warriors said at a meeting Tuesday night that 831 of the 870 residents interviewed on the reserve signed a petition supporting the campaign for independence.

An issue in the dispute is the scheduled closing Friday of the Mohawk Institute, a reserve school which the federal government says is too costly to operate for the few pupils who attend.

Chief Emerson Hill, head of the Iroquois Confederacy, said in a telephone interview the situation may have been aggravated by the appearance Tuesday of geologists from the Guelph Agricultural College, taking samples of reserve soil, and previous aerial surveys of the reserve.

There are fears, he said that the reserve may be split up.

The question of independence, he said, has become more urgent because of attempts by the federal government "to legislate us out of existence."

"They want to call us Canadians," he said.

Last week, the warriors declared the Six Nations people politically sovereign and independent in their right to administer their domestic affairs.

Indians Seize Lighthouse

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP) — A group of 100 Indian students, including 10 Canadians, seized an abandoned lighthouse at Iroquois Point, 45 miles west of here Wednesday and demanded that it be turned into an Indian cultural centre and not given to a Michigan corporation to turn into a museum.

They were met at the door by United States forestry service officials who said they agreed with the students' demands.

Later the students, who are attending an Indian youth council here, left amicably after receiving a promise of further meetings with the forestry service, present owner of the building.

IODE to Build Indian Hall

TORONTO (CP) — The 415 chapters of Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in Ontario will build a $15,000 community hall in Attawapiskat, Ont., for the 630 Cree Indians in the area.

Mrs. Bruce Craik of Dundas, Ont., and Mrs. E. R. MacKay of Hamilton, president and vice-president respectively of the organization, said they would go Sunday to Attawapiskat, a remote community near the shore of Hudson Bay, to meet Chief Ashpee Wheesk and his council to choose a site for the hall.

The timber structure should be in operation some time next year.

The declaration came on the heels of a visit by Chief Hill to Europe when he used an Iroquois Confederacy passport to enter England, Sweden and Finland.

Indians said their treaty-making rights were recognized by the Crown as early as the 18th century and reaffirmed in the Treaty of Ghent after the American war of 1812.

The Ontario government, meanwhile, has adopted a wait-and-see attitude towards the council house incident.

William McKim, regional director of the provincial Indian affairs department, said it is mainly an internal problem and is up to the council to settle.

"All the forces of the establishment are being used to crush and grind these people," he said. The RCMP were taking the names of persons on the picket lines, he added.

Miners Strike in Sympathy With Nova Scotia Fishermen

CANSO, N.S. (CP) — Sympathy walkouts supporting striking Nova Scotia fishermen spread to the Cape Breton coal field today, with 2,000 miners refusing to work in two of the area's biggest mines.

The walkouts at No. 26 colliery in Glace Bay and No. 12 colliery in New Waterford brought the number of Nova Scotia trade unionists off the job in support of the fishermen to about 6,000.

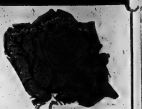
About 2,500 construction men working on major industrial developments stayed off the job for the third straight day in the Port Hawkesbury area of the Strait of Canso about 80 miles from this small fishing port.

Elsewhere in the province, workers went off the job on construction projects at Glace Bay, New Waterford and Sydney, in Cape Breton, and at Halifax. Some of the walkouts were new, others were continued from Wednesday.

The wildcat strike by construction men at the Strait of Canso which began Tuesday has continued despite an appeal from the president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union to return to their jobs.

Homer Stevens appealed Wednesday night to trade union members in construction trades, pulp mills and a heavy water plant "to follow recommendations of their officers and return to work."



Some 320 fishermen have been on strike since late March, demanding exclusive recognition of the United Fishermen union as their bargaining agent.

The trawler crews are on strike against Acadia Fisheries Ltd., which owns plants here, and at Mulgrave, N.S., on the mainland, and the Petit de Grat plant of Booth Fisheries Canadian Ltd., on the Cape Breton side of Chedabucto Bay.

Meanwhile Judge Nathan Green of Halifax, appointed commissioner to inquire into the strike, told a public meeting Wednesday a change in Nova Scotia labor laws to permit certification of a fishermen's union is inevitable within a year.

As picketing at the three plants continued despite a Nova Scotia Supreme Court injunction, Rev. Ron Parsons, an Anglican clergyman here, said people on the picket lines have been intimidated.

Washington Crime Rate Worries Canadian Embassy Staffers

WASHINGTON (CP) — Washington's spiralling crime rate has again touched the Canadian embassy and brought an official reminder to staffers to exercise care and caution in the capital.

The memo came shortly before the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported this week that crime rose by 31.7 per cent in Washington in the first three months of this year compared with the same period in 1968.

Nationally the crime rate rose 12 per cent in the same three months.

Last year, the Canadian embassy ordered several young women employees to move from downtown apartment buildings to the comparative safety of the Maryland and Virginia suburbs. This followed incidents in which women employees were verbally accosted by men on the streets.

Ottawa paid their moving expenses.

On June 7, a more serious incident involved Mrs. Rick Yorskey, embassy switchboard operator, and her husband, who was stabbed in the stomach by a man they went to assist in the belief he was ill.

Yorskey, a welder, was in critical condition for several days and had his damaged spleen removed. He now is recovering at home.

That incident resulted in the memo from the administrative branch of the embassy.

Mrs. Yorskey, the former Marguerite MacLeod of Ottawa, and her husband had noticed a car weaving, then pull to the curb. The driver signalled them and they parked behind and went to offer assistance, believing he was ill.

As they attempted to speak with him, the driver suddenly stepped on the gas and roared away. Only when her husband yelled did Mrs. Yorskey realize the driver had apparently reached through the open window and stabbed him. She drove him to hospital.

Police Sgt. Jackson Hamm, assigned to investigate the crime, said Wednesday it still is "an open case" but with little evidence in hand.

Hamm said he has interviewed the Yorskeys several times and is convinced "they were sincerely trying to give help."

"It is hard to suggest people show poor judgment in such situations," he said, "but, in this day and age it doesn't pay to get out of your car in any situation unless you are prepared for the worst," he said.

Violent crime in the area has become so common that the Washington Post now lists the previous day's criminal activities in small-type columns, similar in style to the manner in which most papers present classified ads.

Items are grouped under such headings as "stabbed", "assaulted," "raped," "robbed." This listing and a companion feature, "court and police notes," frequently fill half a page.

When Will Hoover Step Down?

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A big question at the FBI is whether J. Edgar Hoover still will be at the helm when the agency moves into its new headquarters across the street from its present location.

At present, neither seems to be moving—Hoover out, or the building upward.

Hoover, 75, seems to be as firmly in the saddle as director as he was when the agency was founded in 1924 and he became its first chief.

The new FBI offices still are a gaping hole in the street six years after the plans were drawn up and three years after work started. It is not expected to be finished for another three years.

The recent resignation of the FBI's No. 3 official, Cartha de Loach, seemed to outsiders an indication of high-level frustration within the agency at the apparent refusal of either Hoover or his second-in-command, Associate Director Clyde Tolson, 70, to consider a graceful exit.

De Loach, 48, leaves the FBI to become a vice-president of the Pepsico Corp. He had been with the agency since 1942, apart from two years' war service in the U.S. Navy.

He had been in charge of criminal and counter-espionage operations, was Hoover's liaison man with the White House during the Johnson administration and played a major part in the international manhunt for James Earl Ray, convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Sources close to the FBI say his departure was a sign that de Loach foresaw no vacancy in the No. 1 spot for some time.

But the FBI staff of thousands seems as firmly wedded to Hoover as they are to their present offices in the Justice department building on Pennsylvania Avenue.

The costs of the new building have gone up considerably faster than the walls.

The original estimate put the cost of the 11-storey building at $88,800,000. Work started late in 1967 and so far only two levels of the three-floor basement substructure have been completed.

The cost now is estimated at $182,300,000, making it the most expensive federal building in Washington.

Each New Year's Day, Hoover's birthday, someone speculates that American's top cop is ready to call it quits. But not as regularly, the FBI denies it.

Each new president that is elected—there have been seven since Calvin Coolidge ordered formation of the FBI 46 years ago—announces Hoover's reappointment.

Part of the problem is that Hoover has become so closely identified with the agency he organized that any reform of the FBI is probably impossible while he is there. With death the only apparent possibility of removing him, some of the major reforms favored by politicians seems possible.

The first reform would be to impose a time limit on the tenure of office for the director, possibly eight years.

The second is to have the successor to Hoover chosen from outside the ranks of FBI agents.

The third would be to split the directorship into two sections—operations and intelligence. One would deal strictly with crime—catching kidnappers, aircraft hijackers and other offenders of federal laws. The other would tackle the subversives and sundry political agitators whom the government might regard as dangerous.

At present, they are fused into one with Hoover directing it all.

Accidental Development

Dundas Street in downtown London, Ont., was developed almost by accident in 1964 when the street was closed for sewer repairs. While it was closed it was decided to reduce the street to two traffic lanes from four, widen the sidewalks and install planters and display kiosks. Merchants along the street had feared a loss of business when Highway 401 passed a few miles from London, but their fears proved to be groundless. (CP Photo)

The Experts Say

See-through Coffee Table Creates An Illusion of Space

TORONTO (CP) — If you live in an apartment, you might consider a see-through coffee table. It helps create an illusion of space, which is what most modern apartments lack.

If you are moving into an apartment from a big house, try to remember you will be most comfortable with furniture that suits the scale. You may not be able to use your four-seater chesterfield or house-sized dining room suite.

To help solve the problems of apartment living, Eleanor Brown has some practical tips. She is interior decorating lecturer and trainer for the Robert Simpson Company.

Mrs. Brown says that with the increase in the number of people living in apartments, some furniture manufacturers have begun to make furniture scaled down to fit.

She suggests using modular furniture that can often be chosen to make best use of wall space, serve as room dividers or be reorganized to fit a new area if you move.

A credenza and hutch or a secretary can provide a lot of storage space, usually a problem in an apartment, in a minimum of wall space.

Mrs. Brown says a series of 30-inch-wide bookcases do the same thing and give an appearance of height to your room.

Mirrors can be used as well as see-through furniture, to give an illusion of space.

In many apartment buildings all the walls are painted off-white, and tenants may not change them. But there are things you can do to brighten them.

Mrs. Brown says you can use the pre-pasted "dry strippable" paper and peel it off when you move.

You may be able to use paper on one wall, use it on the ceiling or use strips of border paper to break up the monotone.

You can hang pictures or posters singly or in batches to brighten almost any room.

You can use a wall hanging at the head of your bed instead of a head board to save space as well as changing the look of the wall.

She suggests hanging carpet on one wall for a change of pace and as a sound deadener.

"You can use fabric to match your curtains. Put it on with staples or with double adhesive."

If you do have a plain bare spring and mattress without head or foot end, Mrs. Brown says two bedspreads instead of one give an interesting effect. Put one of them between spring and mattress, pleated down the middle to take up extra width. You get a skirted effect.

If you go out to work every day she says you would probably enjoy returning to an apartment in bright, warm colors. If you are at home all day she advises "cooling it a bit."

You are more confined in an apartment than in a house and cannot get away from a strong color scheme.

If you have large, bright windows, and are trying to keep colors cool, try white sheer curtains in a loosely woven see-through fabrics.

Mrs. Brown suggests getting drip-dry fabrics so you can wash curtains in the tub and hang them again the same day.

If you have white sheer curtains, she says you can put a little powdered milk in the rinse water to produce a bright white.

Family Pressing for Payment of Debt

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: At my father-in-law's funeral my husband spoke to his mother about money, we have owed for several years and she said not to worry about it.

Now the will is to be settled and when the others found out this money was owing they called his mother into isolation on this feeling the money within 90 days. She says she wants it straightened up in order to be fair to the rest of the family.

We have a large family and do not know what to do now, other than increase our mortgage. Later I could get a job, when my children are all in school. But no one is willing to wait.

They are also asking for back interest — which would really add up! — In A Corner.

Dear Corner: I'm sorry. This is the sort of thing which makes hard feelings. The inheritance just isn't worth it.

Was there a written agreement about the debt? Or even an I.O.U.? It probably wouldn't come to a court case, but without something in writing, just how much force would they be inclined to use?

Better ask for a conference with all family members present, including your husband's mother. Offer what you can, when you can, undertaking to pay regular amounts at a time when this is possible.

If the loan was made without any suggestion of interest, I'd dispute this part. The viewpoint of your lawyer about it would be worth a lot.

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter and her young man are talking marriage. The daughter wants to bring us together with this young man's parents on a friendly basis. Who is supposed to issue the first invitation?

His parents are prominent people. We do not intend to put on the dog. Could you suggest something as a guide to get through this first annoying meeting? Thank you.

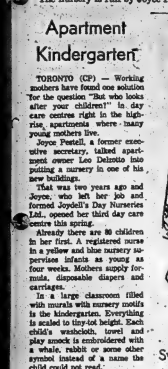
Dear Mom and Dad: A good deal depends on just how set everything is. It could be an embarrassment to you if the young people broke up at this stage. Once the engagement is fact, the groom's parents make the first move.

But I wouldn't count forever. Once the die is cast, if you don't hear from the groom - to - be's parents, issue your own invitation for a social evening.

* * *

Dear Doris: Is it all right for a girl to send a "Missing You" card to a guy, when he has left? I don't want to start letter writing. I just want to let him know he is in my thoughts and prayers.

This guy, like none other, seems to want me to take the lead in things. For example, he has often said that he doesn't see much of me as if I'm supposed to do something about it. Also, he says, "You didn't tell me", about various things.



Since going away he has visited me a couple of times and phoned twice. — WAITING FOR Daddy.

Dear Waiting: Sure. It wouldn't be the first time a woman had to take the lead. Let it be a studio type card, maybe a humorous one — but one of the insulting variety!

Then keep on with your pen-friend writing before making any other move. Sometimes the guys take a little longer than the dolls to wake up to romance.

Apartment Kindergarten

TORONTO (CP) — Working mothers have found one solution for the question "But who looks after your children?" in day care centres right in the high-rise apartments where many young mothers live.

Joyce Pestell, a former executive secretary, talked apartment owner Leo Delrotio into putting a nursery in one of his new buildings.

That was two years ago and Joyce, who left her job and formed Pestell's Day Nurseries Ltd., opened her third day care centre this spring.

Already there are 80 children in her first. A registered nurse in a yellow and blue nursery supervises infants as young as four weeks. Mothers supply formula, disposable diapers and carriages.

In a large classroom filled with murals with nursery motifs is the kindergarten. Everything is scaled to tiny-tot height. Each child's washcloth, towel and play smock is embroidered with a whale, rabbit or some other symbol instead of a name the child could not read.

Lunch is served while they are in class.

Older children whose mothers work walk to the centre from neighborhood schools for lunch and return after school until 6 or 7 p.m. when mothers come home.

There is a ratio of two trained staff members for every eight children.

In their own grounds around the centre the children have modern new play equipment. An indoor playground with a dome roof is being built for wet or cold weather.

Each classroom has its own flowerbed that the children tend, and there are plans to build tree houses in the playground.

Even the smallest toddlers can walk just a few steps from their apartments down a private walkway far from street traffic.

Kitchen Tested Recipies

Tasty Desserts During Strawberry Season

By MARY MOORE

You, dear readers, seem to be the directors of this show. You say "repeat your Glazed Strawberry Pie" to me, I bow and say "Yes Mam".

It might interest you to know that French chefs admit that North American Lemon Meringue Pie and Glazed Strawberry Pie are equal in rank with some of their greatest creations.

Make one of these for Dominion Day dessert or possibly you would prefer Strawberry Shortcake, which was requested too and which will appear here on Saturday of this week.

GLAZED STRAWBERRY PIE

3 pints berries (1¼ qts.)
1 cup boiling water
¾ cup sugar (¼ cup plus 2 tbsps.)
1 tbsp. corn starch (or arrowroot flour for a clearer glaze)
2 tbsps. lemon juice
Shake of salt
Pastry for 10" pie plate

Make Pastry first. I used ¼ cup shortening, 3 tbsps. butter, 1½ cups sifted all - purpose flour, ½ tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. cold water. When the pastry is rolled out, line pie plate, making a high fluted edge and chill in fridge at 500 deg. Fahr. for 12 min. At this high temperature you have to watch this like a hawk but it produces lovely tender pastry.

FILLING: Wash berries and hull them. Mash 1 pt. in flat-bottomed saucepan. Mix the sugar, corn starch (or arrowroot flour) and salt well, and stir into mashed berries, then stir in the boiling water and cook, stirring, until thick. Reduce heat to very low and cook stirring, for 5 min. Remove from heat and force through sieve. Discard seedy pulp. Add lemon juice. (Do not add lemon juice ahead of this stage or it may cause the mixture to go thin.) Cool remaining 2 pts. of berries in halves, reserving about 8 big perfect ones for the top. Fill baked pie shell with sliced berries, sprinkling an additional 2 tbsps. sugar through and over them. Arrange the 8 whole berries in a circle on top and slowly and carefully pour the hot strained glaze over, being sure it flows into all crevices between berries and covers the entire surface. Cool at room temperature. Garnish with whipped cream piped through icing tube if desired. Serve same day as made.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Betsy, for goodness sake, stop leaning on your elbows and sit up and eat right! Look at the way you're holding your fork. I'd be ashamed to have anyone see you eating like that."

Betsy: "I don't want any more lunch."

Mother: "This is the right way to hold your fork. It fits in your hand comfortably and you can eat with more grace. When you want to cut your meat, this is the way to do it."

Betsy: "Do I cut my salad with a knife, too?"

Graceful table manners are not inherited and it's up to parents to instill them. However, manners are best taught in a mannerly way, by friendly constructive instruction rather than by scolding and criticism.

Mother's Business To Choose Friends

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Kindly devote a column to the Romeos of the Social Security Set — the way they worm their way into the widow's home, lounging on the well-stuffed, expensive furniture, bought and paid for by the late husband, who worked his fingers to the bone (may his soul rest in peace.)

My elderly mother and I live together in the family home. I have not been in very good health lately. My biggest worry is that a certain old coot who has been courting Mother for several months will marry her if I should die.

I've tried to open her eyes but she is flattered by his attention and acts like a silly school girl when he is around.

This man is like a bone in my throat. I can't stand him. Please give me some advice, Ann. She reads your column every day, and if the old coot reads it too, that perfectly fine with me. — HATE OLD MEN.

* * *

DEAR HATE: If the furniture is as good as you say, he won't hurt it. Apparently your mother enjoys the old coot's company and that's her business. You need a hobby, Hilda. I recommend a young coot.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister passed away six months ago. She was only 34 and left three young children. Her husband was never one of my favorite people. Last week I bumped into him at a downtown intersection. He was talking animatedly with a good looking, blond woman. I couldn't tell whether they were together. I greeted my brother-in-law as warmly as I could because he pretended that he was never married to it.

This incident has bothered me terribly. Should I get it off my chest and tell him what I think of him for forgetting so soon? — STUNNED AND STEWING.

DEAR STUNNED: Perhaps wearing that wedding ring would be like a knife in his heart, so why don't you tend to your knitting and let your brother-in-law handle his grief in his own way?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our baby is three months old. This is the first child in my husband's family for 25 years so you can imagine the excitement.

Whenever we walk into a gathering of his relatives, they go wild over the baby and I am a nervous wreck. My mother-in-law grabs him, then an aunt comes along, next a cousin, then an uncle and a great-uncle — and round the room he goes, from one pair of hands to another like a hotpotato, and everyone gets a lick.

Each one bounces him higher and handles him more roughly than the last. Naturally he spits up his lunch. My mother-in-law then demands to know what I fed him that caused him to throw up. They think because this is my first child I am a dumbbell and don't know anything.

What can I do with all these well-meaning idiots? I'm ready to try anything. — ALEXANDRIA, LA.

DEAR ALEX: You're not going to change your relatives, nor can you dampen their enthusiasm for the crown prince but you can eliminate the problem by leaving the baby home when you go to these functions. Infants don't belong at formal adult gatherings. The relatives can see him when they come to your home — two or three at a time.

New $20 Bills Are Spurned

TORONTO (CP) — Crisp new Canadian $20 bills brought few takers when they were offered for as little as $2 by a reporter conducting a survey for The Telegram.

Alyn Edwards said some persons even refused to take the new bills for free.

When the reporter tried to spend the new bills introduced Monday he ran into further opposition from downtown merchants.

In most stores cashiers handed the money back.

The reporter tried to pass the bill to a police constable.

"I can't even arrest you for trying to pass counterfeit money," the policeman said, "because it doesn't remotely resemble the old bill."

Second Bomb Damages Bakery in North York

TORONTO (CP) — A bomb rocked a suburban North York Italian bakery early today. It was the second bombing of a bakery here in nine days.

Police said nobody was in the bakery when the explosion occurred.

Today's blast also damaged an adjoining drapery store.

On June 18, five men escaped injury when a bomb blew out the front of another North York bakery, also operated by Italians.

Police suggested the explosion, powered by eight sticks of dynamite, was the work of extortionists.

In the last 18 months there have been at least five explosions at Italian-owned businesses in Metropolitan Toronto.

Slayings of two Italian businessmen, one a soft drink bottler killed three years ago and the other a shoe store owner killed last year, are unsolved.

Charge Against Chief Dismissed

Judge Discounts Evidence Of Three Police Constables

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Amherstburg Police Chief Ronald Seney was found not guilty Wednesday of assault causing bodily harm by Provincial Judge C. E. Perkins of Chatham.

The four-day trial ended in dismissal with Judge Perkins saying he was discounting the evidence of three police constables who testified as Crown witnesses and accepting Chief Seney's evidence.

Judge Perkins called the evidence of Constable Wilfred Fryer "not reliable." The Amherstburg constable testified Chief Seney had kicked Frederick Brown, 23, of Amherstburg, in the face and groin and that Chief Seney had threatened to fire Fryer from the force if he gave certain evidence.

Judge Perkins also ruled out evidence from two Anderdon Township constables, Neil Bouzsey and William Cota.

The judge said he rejected Constable Bouzsey's story mainly because he had lied about another constable drinking on the job and had served two days for a breach of the Police Act as a result.

"Constable Cota is a young and inexperienced officer," said Judge Perkins. "His version of what happened consists largely of what he assumes happened."

Chief Seney testified Monday that Byers, who had been fined $100 for causing a disturbance earlier on the night of Feb. 21, swore at the chief and kicked the chief after the chief told him twice to get out of a car.

Canadian Back from Russia

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 23-year-old university student who wanted to make a fast $5,000 smuggling drugs into Canada says he wound up manufacturing mittens in a Russian prison for $8 a month instead.

William Leibeed, released recently by Soviet authorities, said he has no regrets and got what was coming to him—two years in jail for smuggling 5½ pounds of hashish into the U.S.S.R.

"I'm not bitter about it—it was an education," Leibeed said in the first interview he has granted to reporters since returning home in late April.

North Korea Invaded South Korea Twenty Years Ago Today

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Twenty years ago today North Korea went to war against South Korea. On the anniversary, an uneasy peace hangs over the country.

June 25, 1950, was a warm Sunday. North Korea's armies in a surprise attack quickly overran the 38th parallel, which had been set up in Second World War agreements as a dividing line between the two Koreas.

Seoul, the South's capital, fell to the invaders in three days. Before the armistice of July, 1953, nearly 2,000,000 lives were lost and damage was counted in billions of dollars throughout Korea.

U.S. casualties totalled 134,661, including 33,629 killed. Canada was one of 16 nations that contributed forces to fight the North Koreans under the banner of a United Nations police force.

There were 22,000 Canadians in the UN force and Canada suffered 1,543 casualties, including 309 deaths.

President Syngman Rhee, whose armed forces did not possess a single tank when the war broke out, is long dead and a new republic has been founded in South Korea under Chung Hee Park.

Park has rebuilt South Korea into a nation which has boasted an annual average economic growth rate of 12 per cent during the last five years.

Premier Kim Il-song, who masterminded the invasion 20 years ago, still leads North Korea.

The two Koreas are technically still at war since no formal peace treaty was ever signed. Tension continues along a 151-mile truce line where occasional gun battles threaten the armistice.

Since the armistice was signed, 55 U.S. soldiers have been killed and 125 others wounded in battles with North Koreans.

South Koreans, who guard the truce zone except for an 18-mile American sector, have suffered nearly 300 dead.

North Korea has paid a higher price by UN count: 631 dead and 76 captured.

City Athletes Show Way at County Track Meet

BANCROFT — Out of the 204 contestants representing 21 district schools at the Hastings County Public School Track and Field Meet at Bancroft High School many Olympic stars of the future may have been discovered.

Outstanding performances were recorded at the day-long meet which was won by Area No. 7 with a total of 205 points. This area includes the Belleville schools plus CFB Trenton's Brandon, Marmora Senior, and Batawa public schools.

Individual standouts in the midget age class were Gary Christopher of Sir Mackenzie Bowell who was clocked in 12.4 and 27.0 for victories in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and Charlie Roy of L'amable, victorious in the 440 and triple jump; Lorraine Duffy, (Harry J. Clarke) with wins in the high triple jumps and Kilanay Dobson (Stirling) with first-place finishes in the 80-yard dash and the long jump were the best for the girls.

Bob White of Brasshar led the bantams with a double victory in the 440 and long jump. Bob Barriage of SMS picked up a win in the 220 with a time of 28.3 and a second in the 100. Batawa boys' Carla Parkin paced the girls by winning the 100 and 80 yard dashes. Donna Webber of Harmony swept through the 220 and 440 races wearing both very handily.

Robert De Jong was a triple winner for Stirling in the peewee division taking the hurdles, long jump and the triple jump. Bob Belsey was the closest in matching De Jong's performance by winning the 100 and 440.

The second best Bill Forbes of King George too fast for their liking as he flew to 13.0 and 30.5 second victories in the 100 and 220 yard races. Heather Poulain picked up red ribbons for the girls in the 100 and 80 yard runs.

Harry J. Clarke won both the boys and girls relay in the plum class while SMS picked up the fastest time of the meet, 54.8 seconds, in winning the boys midget relay; they also were victorious in the bantam division.

In Wednesday's edition The Intelligencer reported in error that in Tuesday's Ellis Juniors - City Hotel Commercial Softball League game Bob Ethier had 17 strikeouts. It should have read Ted Waite of the Juniors picked up 17 strikeouts as the Juniors picked up an eighth-inning 1-0 win.

Belch Peewees to Be Weekend Hosts

Belleville's William Belch Construction peewees get their first taste of OASA tournament action Saturday in the Belleville Minor Softball Association Peewee Tournament.

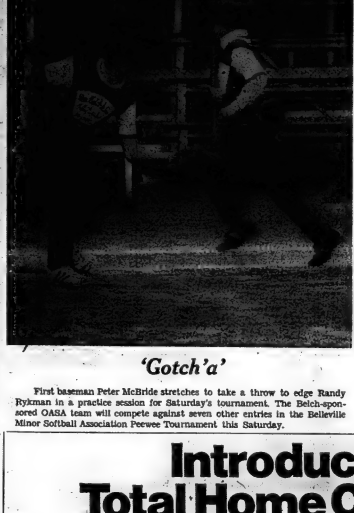
The local peewees will be playing only their third game of the season when they meet Cobourg in the tournament opener at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. They have lost a pair of exhibition games to Napanee, which is also entered.

Other first-round matchups feature Napanee and Stirling — we don't feel that it would be fair to tie up teams, with the possibility that we'd have to call it off."

The Belleville midget tourney will be replaced by a bantam competition which is currently being organized.

Another scheduled city tournament will be held July 11th with squirt softballers vying for the honors.

Second round action gets under way at 11:30 a.m. The "B" championship will be held at the Alemite Field at 4 p.m. with the "A" finalists meeting on the same diamond at six o'clock.



"I think that probably our strongest point is our pitching," claims Belleville coach Ken Price, who will have Paul Wilson and Rob Chase available for mound duty.

His opening lineup will probably include Peter McBride at first base, Ross MacLeod at second, Tom Sharland at shortstop and Eric Powell at the hot corner. Outfielders will include Derek McDonald, Gary Thompson and Rob Chase.

Ross Morrison will handle the catching duties and Paul Wilson will, in all likelihood, get the starting assignment.

Belch's opening game against Cobourg will be played at the Alemite field. The team is also entered in a July 25 tournament to be held in North York.

Meanwhile, plans for a July 25th midget softball tournament here have been scrapped. "We're not certain about the future of our midget all-star team," said Minor Softball president Howie Shugg. "And since Trenton has a midget tournament scheduled for the same date,

'Gotch'a'

First baseman Peter McBride stretches to take a throw to edge Randy Rykman in a practice session for Saturday's tournament. The Belch-sponsored OASA team will compete against seven other entries in the Belleville Minor Softball Association Peewee Tournament this Saturday.

Lacrosse Midgets Draw Tough Start

Belleville's first taste of Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association all-star play could be a bitter one, as the midget entry opens their schedule tonight against Oshawa, a mainstay of Canadian lacrosse.

"It's too bad that they are competing with teams with so much experience," says one Belleville official, "because we've got a good little team. It will, however, prove to be good experience for them."

The Belleville midget all-stars is made up of the top players from the junior house league, and have held three or four practices under coach Wally Uheryuk.

They will play a home-and-house schedule with teams from Oshawa, Ajax, Whitby and Peterborough.

Goalies for the Belleville team will be Paul Morton and Pete Cox, while Danny Payne, Danny Coulson and Ray Muldoon will anchor the defence. On the forward lines it will be Danny Nuttall, John Loder, Steve Cowan., Rick Bell and Andy Ricketts, among others.

Bantam Sluggers Like Home Ground

The Belleville Minor Baseball League broke from its usual interlocking Bantam schedule Wednesday night as the Trenton and Belleville teams battled it out within their own home confines.

At Park Dale the West Hill outslugged the East Hill 13-7 while in Trenton, Gilbert Hotel whipped the Lions Club 17-5.

Don and Ron McTaggart toiled on the mound for the West Hill giving up 11 hits while fanning five and walking four.

Reg Abrams and Peter Nokash took the loss for the East Hill allowing 14 hits, five walks and striking out two. West Hill batters.

Paul Champagne hit a double and two singles to pace the West followed closely by Don. McTaggart with three singles.

Tom Coughlin with a triple and single was the best for the East with Pat McKenny adding a double and a single.

In Trenton Don Armstrong went the distance for Gilbert Hotel giving up just five hits while fanning 12 Lion batters and walking only five.

Jim Conley, Jim Baker, and Jim McGeachy all felt the rubber for the Lions allowing 14 hits and picking up seven strikeouts. McGeachy helped his own cause and led the Lions at bat with a home run and single.

Armstrong was a one man team last night as he punched a triple, double and three singles besides working the mound duties. Jeff Baker with a homer and a triple and Curtis McLean with a triple rounded out the Gilbert attack.

Turbos Steam To Top

The CNR Turbos steamed into first place in the Industrial Softball League, recording their fifth win in 11 games as they beat Deloro Stellite 9-4.

Brian Trumpour pitched the win, giving up six hits and walking five batters. He struck out six.

For Deloro, it was Paul Trumpour, with relief help from Gary Mailer. The two hurlers gave up ten hits and two walks, while taking the measure of two batters.

Cam McKenna homered and singled for the Turbos, while Mill Bell, Zane Plumbe and Bob Shortill added two hits apiece.

Kinsmen Better Early

Unfortunately for Belleville's Kinsmen Juniors, it's not "better late than never" in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association.

The Kinsmen arrived in Port Hope 45 minutes after their Lakeshore league contest with Port Hope Imperials ended but was scheduled to start and found they had lost the contest 9-0 by default.

Parsons Alive and Kicking

Bay of Quinte Soccer Association teams continue to get a kick out of Belleville Parsons as the league leaders continued their unbeaten string with a 4-0 win over the Bata Braves.

After an uneventful opening 30 minutes, Peter Clinkard gave Parsons a 1-0 lead with a dash down the centre, crashing in his own rebound. John O'Neill scored the second marker, lofting a high shot just under the crossbar.

In the second half, Lloyd Rose finished off a solo effort by tapping the ball past the Bata goalie for his team's third goal. Dennis Jones finished off the Parson scoring.

Goalie Brent Gallupe and Peter Koutsoubis played outstanding games for the winners.

Despite the lack of a finishing touch around the net, Belleville Eagles were able to dominate the game and come up with a 2-0 win over CFB Trenton.

Bob Watson opened the scoring in the first half, driving a loose ball in the top right hand corner of the net. Later in the half Charlie Nesterovski converted a pass from Cresswell for the other goal.

Bitter Hoad Complains Egyptian Beat Him With Net Serves

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Lew Hoad, 35-year-old Australian veteran, had tennis players and officials arguing today over whether let service calls should be abolished.

Hoad lost a five-set match to Ismael El Shafei of Egypt in the second round of the All-England championships Wednesday, and the Australian complained bitterly that at least a half dozen of El Shafei's winning services touched the net.

Hoad accused the 23-year-old Egyptian of accepting the points when he knew that his service had touched the net.

The row provided ammunition for the British Tennis Umpires' Association, which recently passed a resolution urging that let services be scrapped altogether. South African umpires also want to abolish the let.

El Shafei, who earlier, this year accused two victories over Australian top-seed Rod Laver on indoor wooden courts, defeated Hoad 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 4-6, 6-1.

...At one point during the match Hoad told the net judge: "Wash your ears out."

Afterwards, the former Wimbledon champion said he lost six or seven points because the net judge failed to call lets on El Shafei's services.

"Once I asked El Shafei whether he was reading the lets. He said he hadn't heard any and that it wasn't his job to call them, anyway.

"I told him he was a liar."

It was the second day running that arguments over let services had disturbed the Wimbledon peace.

Tuesday, Peter Curtis of Britain staged a scene during his first-round victory over Jim Osborne of the U.S. The Briton claimed he was being wrongly called on let services.

In that match there was no net judge and the umpire made the calls.

In women's singles Wednesday, top-ranked Margaret Court of Australia opened her campaign for the championship left undefended by Ann Jones of Britain by sweeping easily past Australian lass-ager Sue Alexander 6-0 6-1 Wednesday.

Mrs. Court's main rival, second-seed Billie Jean King of the United States still hasn't fired a shot in her quest for the title. Her scheduled match Wednesday against Fiorella Bonicelli of Peru was put off until today because their designated court was still sopping from overnight rain.
